Accuse Poland of Failing to Withdraw Troops—Lithuanian Towns Taken in Fierce Fighting.

GENEVA, Nov. 21.—A day of rest for the members of the League of Nations Assembly was rudely interrupted by a statement from the Lithuanians that the Poles were attacking them with fifteen divisions and a request that the League put into action against Poland Article XVI. of the covenant, which enjoins that if a member of the League goes to war without first trying all means to avoid conflict it shall be subjected to an economic blockade and whatever military and naval pressure the League Council may think fit to employ.

A further complication was provided by an announcement by the Spanish Premier Dato that the Spanish Government had not, as stated last Friday, agreed to send two companies of Spanish troops to assist in maintaing order during the Vilna plebiscite which has been decided upon to settle the Polish-Lithuanian dispute.

The League Council is now holding a meeting on the new aspect of the problem. Obviously there is a great difference between maintaining order during a plebiscite and having to oppose a powerful Polish army.

It will be remembered that the Polish General Zeligouski occupied Vilna after the retreat of the Bolsheviki with two divisions, supposedly on his own initiative. The Lithuanians now declare that he is attacking them on a wide front and that they have identified prisoners from fifteen different divisions, which, they say, proves that Zeligouski has received much further support from Poland.

Reds Break Off Peace Parleys.

RIGA, Nov. 20.—Peace negotiations between Soviet Russia and Poland were interrupted today.

Adolph Joffe, head of the Bolshevist delegation, told M. Dombski, chief of the Polish representatives, that the work of arranging for a permanent peace could not proceed until Poland loyally fulfilled her promise to withdraw troops to her borders.

He added this declaration was a result of the action of Colonel Ribak, head of the Polish section of the Joint Military Commission at Minsk. Ribak proposed that a scheme be worked out for the withdrawal of the Polish troops by the establishment of a thirty-mile zone between Polish and Ukrainian troops, and finally asked for the dissolution of the commission itself.

M. Joffe emphasized his claim that the proceedings signed here on Nov. 14 concerning the withdrawal of the Poles excluded these questions. He asserted Colonel Ribak was planning for the union of the armies commanded by Simon Petlura, Ukrainian leader, and General Balakovitch, commander of the White Russian forces, which have been operating in the rear of the Bolshevist lines southeast of Minsk for the last three or four weeks.

Poles Take Lithuanian Towns.

WARSAW, Nov. 21.—Newspaper dispatches received here assert that the negotiations between the Poles and the Russian Soviet delegation at Riga have been broken off. The dispatches allege that the Poles have not kept their armistice agreement. The Poles are described as expecting soon to adjust the differences with the Soviet delegates and are not considering the break serious.

The Soviet delegates, according to the dispatches, charge that there remain in parts of the Ukraine several detachments of Polish troops east of the armistice line, contrary to the Riga agreement, which provided for the withdrawal of all the Poles to the armistice line by Nov. 19.

Russian Bolshevist and Polish soldiers are face to face at various points along the Zbrucz River in Eastern Galicia, a narrow stream which was designated at

W. D. Vanderlip Seeks Soviet Recognition; Assails Wilson's Administration as "Idiotic"

Copyright, 1920, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—Washington D. Vanderlip, representative of a group of Pacific Coast capitalists, who just has acquired an immense concession in Eastern Siberia from Soviet Russia, tells me a great campaign is starting in the United States to induce Congress to recognize and reopen trade with Russia.

"President Wilson now is endeavoring to balk trade with Russia by engineering a Bolshevist scare in the United States. If he succeeds in hoodwinking the public, it will be a most colossal blunder and a fitting climax to the most idiotic administration ever inflicted on the American people," says Mr. Vanderlip.

"England has a thousandfold more reasons to fear communism; yet she has just accepted a trade agreement with Russia. Will Congress refuse the trade of a billion dollars yearly when our industries are declining merely because of the groundless fear of a revolutionary sentiment which is non-existent?

"The Red leaders made an offer to Mr. Wilson fourteen months ago to withdraw all propaganda from America on a resumption of normal relations. It is inconceivable that America should be allowed to lose this immense trade because of Mr. Wilson's prejudices."

PLANS LAID TO BLOCK LOCKWOOD INQUIRY

HYLAN REGARDED AS ENEMY

City's Action in Holding Simultaneous Inquiry Believed to Be a Hostile Move.

Two moves to block the Lockwood committee's investigation into the Building Material Trust will be inaugurated today, according to counsel to the committee. One is the Board of Estimate's inquiry into $62,000,000 worth of city contracts and the other is the effort of Elizabeth O'Dea, an employe of the Builders' Supply Bureau, to have the Supreme Court hold the Lockwood committee's authority to subpoena witnesses invalid.

Miss O'Dea has been subpoenaed to produce the books of the Builders' Supply Bureau before the Lockwood committee. Martin Conboy, acting, it was said, on behalf of Thomas A. McCarthy, a contractor, friend and until recently said to have been a business associate of Charles F. Murphy, obtained an order from Supreme Court Justice Leonard Giegerich to have the committee show cause why the subpoena should not be vacated. The action comes up today in Part I. of the Supreme Court. Mr. Conboy maintains that Miss O'Dea is not an officer, but a paid employe of the Builders' Supply Bureau, and that the committee has no legal right to obtain the books of the organization. He holds that the committee's action in this respect is a violation of the State and Federal Constitutions.

Both moves are laid to politicians affiliated with Tammany Hall. The action of Miss O'Dea followed the Lockwood committtee's inqury into the affairs of the group of contractors alleged to have control of the docks used for dumping and for unloading building materials. George Atwell, a witness, well known in Tammany circles, who was questioned by Samuel Untermyer, counsel to the committee, concerning the "link betweeen building and politics," said that the contractors who controlled the private city docks also dealt in sand, and that independent purchases of sand could not be made because of the difficulty of getting boats "alongside the docks" where the material could be transferred.

It is felt by some members of the Lockwood Committee that if the action of Miss O'Dea is sustained it will halt the proceedings of the committee until the question is sustained by the United States Supreme Court.

City Inquiry Opens Today.

The city's investigation announced by the Mayor as a sweeping inquiry into $62,000,000 worth of city contracts, will begin this morning and will be in charge of Assistant Corporation Counsel John P. O'Brien. F. H. LaGuardia, President of the Board of Aldermen, will make another attempt to have counsel in the investigation named by the minority members of the Board of Estimate and not from the Mayor's official family.

Mr. Untermyer has said that the city's investigation might be generally regarded as a whitewashing operation, and he has accused the city of bad faith in ordering it before the Lockwood Committee concluded its inquiry.

It is known that counsel to the Lockwood Committee is of the opinion that the city would be betraying the interests of the people if it called witnesses from among the contractors and then gave them clean bills of health. Such a procedure would tend to tie up the books of the witnesses and thus embarrass the Lockwood Committee in its work. If the city undertakes to adopt this method of making its inquiry it is believed that contractors who may be completely exonerated by the Board of Estimate will be called, one by one, before the Lockwood Committee and evidence adduced to show their complicity in "rigging" contracts and matching bids.

From what is known of the evidence in the hands of the committee it is felt that the city would suffer the humiliation of a reversal of its judgment within twenty-four hours of the Board of Estimate's examination of witnesses

SHIPPING GRAFTERS TO BE HUNTED DOWN

OUTLINES HIS POLICY

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Colonel Guy D. Goff, general counsel of the United States Shipping Board, recently nominated by President Wilson as United States Shipping Board Commissioner, from the Great Lakes section, issued a statement today in which he declared that it would be his "one and single purpose to run to cover every person" employed in the Shipping Board or Emergency Fleet Corporation, whether "man, woman, clerk or official who is guilty of corruption." He said he would prosecute them to the fullest extent of the law, as well as every private citizen "who offers the glittering bribe or sweetens his petition with gold."

Colonel Goff explained that his statement had no direct bearing on the charges against R. W. Bolling, brother-in-law of President Wilson and Treasurer of the Shipping Board, on Saturday, but was intended as an outline of general policy. Admiral Benson, Chairman of the Shipping Board, also said that the Goff statement had been prepared before the charges were ever brought to notice by the Walsh Committee.

Colonel Goff said that the statement was prepared yesterday before he had any knowledge that the "Bolling story was coming out today."

Colonel Goff's Statement.

In the statement Colonel Goff said:

"Graft is the twin sister to the tip. A gratuity in commercial or social life becomes a bribe when the party accepting or soliciting the favor is a public official. Bribery in public office is the loathesome canker eating at the very roots of the Government itself and poisoning the very lifeblood of society. When men sworn to uphold the integrity and the honor of their State barter away its sovereignty and view a public trust as a private snap, they are simply conspiring renegades ready to violate their country's confidence and to betray its secrets.

"Such a man, no matter what his position in official life, is too wretchedly craven to be a traitor. Such a man has last his worth in the habits of treachery, and by comparison Judas Iscariot is a saint and Benedict Arnold a patriot. Such practices will not only rot the soul of this nation, but stamp our public servant as a man whose stomach is his god and whose dollars are his graven images.

"It is and will be my one and single purpose to run to cover every person employed in the Shipping Board or the Emergency Fleet Corporation, man or woman, clerk or official, who is guilty of corruption, and to prosecute them to the fullest extent of the law, as well as every private citizen, whether he be tradesman, ship operator, claimant, attorney, lobbyist or solicitor who offers the glittering bribe or sweetens his petition with gold. My appointment as a Commissioner to represent the Great Lakes will not in the least interfere. I shall continue as long as I am connected with this board to give such matters my individual and undivided attention, even to the extent of personally conducting the prosecution whenever and wherever the Department of Justice may deem it expedient or advisable."

No Bearing on Bolling Charges.

Chairman Benson and Colonel Goff were at the Shipping Board office today. When a newspaper man said he assumed that Colonel Goff's statement had a definite bearing on the Bolling charges, Colonel Goff answered:

"It has not. I issued that statement yesterday, and had no indication that the Bolling story was coming out today. Of course, you have heard the Bolling story, and I knew of it, but the statement which I issued was issued independent of this story, and without this story specifically in mind."

Colonel Goff gave a detailed explana-

CALL FOR STERN MEASURES

GOVERNMENT IS ATTACKED

MAY BE A FINAL DEFIANCE

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The London Times, commenting on the Dublin outrages, says this morning:

"The injury that the Sinn Fein has wrought not only to its own reputation but to the cause of Ireland is incalculable. To murders such as these is but one answer, the sternest and most unremitting vindication of law. In so far as the power of the Government can procure the arrest and punishment of the murders it must be exercised to the full. It is, however, in circumstances such as these that justice most needs to be above reproach.

"We do not believe that in normal circumstances these murders could have met with aught but reprobation from the great mass of Irishmen, but an army already perilously undisciplined and a police force avowedly beyond control have defiled by heinous acts the reputation of England, while the Government who are the trustees of that reputation are not free from suspicion of dishonorable connivance."

The Daily Mail says: "Murder begets murder. This diabolical orgy of assassination is only the culmination of murderous wickedness on both sides. The Iirish exremists attempted to terrorize the British Government by murder, the Government retaliated with lawless and indiscriminate reprisals, which they have never had the courage to defend openly in Parliament. Yesterday's slaughter is the dreadful result of a policy of illegal violence to which the Government has for months past turned a blind eye."

The Morning Post, commenting on the Dublin outrages, says: "We recently have been told by the Prime Minister that the rebels are losing ground. The outrage of yesterday may be one of the last desperate attempts to fortify a dying cause, but let the Government take no risks. Too much is at stake to permit of any slackening, and the more firm the authorities are the earlier will the rebels and their dupes realize that the game is up and Ireland will be given that security without which liberty is a mockery and freedom a name."

The Daily Telegraph says: "Such defiance can only stimulate authority to new and yet more searching measures of suppression against the ruffianly conspiracy which they have undertaken to root out of Ireland as the first necessity for bringing about a constitutional settlement."

The Daily Express says: "It is evident that the recent experiments in abolishing Irish terrorism have failed. Bad has become, if possible, worse. Martial law, which at least arms repression with customary authority, remains, but so long as a reign of terror makes impossible a truce the Government must consider urgently other courses, such as that of withdrawal, of leaving the rest of Ireland to wallow in its own anarchy until reason returns."

The Daily Chronicle, in an editorial on the Dublin outrages, says:

"Shocking as such an orgy of cold-blooded massacre must appear, there seems to be no reason to infer from it that the Irish Republican army is gaining power. It bears much more the stamp of a desperate stroke by hunted man around whom the toils are closing.

"So growing, indeed, is the general sense in Ireland that the once omnipotent murder gang is doomed to defeat that not only has the boycott against the police been abandoned over large areas, but the authorities are being aided by information from the people to an extent that was not dreamed of six months or even three months ago."

German's Action May Cause Breaking Off of Trade Negotiations.

COPENHAGEN, Nov. 21.—A special dispatch to the National Tidende from Helsingfors quotes the Krasnaja Gazeta as saying that the negotiations regarding the renewal of trade relations between Russia and Germany probably will be broken off owing to the refusal of the German Government to vise passports of the Soviet Government's representatives who are going to Germany in order to fetch goods ready for export.

Disguised Men Kill Two Near Limerick

DUBLIN, Nov. 21.—Michael Blake and James O'Neill were shot and killed near Limerick last night by disguised men, who held up the motor in which the two were riding to their homes from Limerick Junction.

Patrick Blake, a brother of Michael, and O'Neill were acquitted by a court-martial in July, and it is believed the attack was the outcome of this trial.

When the automobile was stopped, the attacking party demanded if a man named Blake was present. Michael answered in the affirmative and was shot dead. O'Neill attempted to escape, but his body was found later riddled with bullets.

FIND PRIEST'S BODY IN GALWAY BOG

KIDNAPPED LAST WEEK

Fellow Clergy Declare That Father Griffin Died a Martyr—Other Priests Threatened.

GALWAY, Nov. 21.—The body of Father Griffin, the priest who disappeared several days ago, was found yesterday in a shallow grave about four miles from Galway. There was a bullet wound in his temple.

The body was brought to Galway this morning. Intense excitement prevails.

The body of Father Griffin, who was the curate of Bushy Park, was found in a bog by the roadside near Darna, four miles from Galway. Volunteers had been searching for the missing curate since he was kidnapped by three unknown persons last Sunday. A party of country lads made the tragic discovery.

The boys observed in the bog what appeared to have been a recent upheaval. They began probing into the mound with sticks and finally uncovered the skirts and the overcoat of the priest. Without proceeding further they sent for priests in Galway, and when they arrived, working under their direction by moonlight, unearthed the body of the missing curate.

The bullet wound in the head of the priest was evidence of the cause of his death.

Cottagers in this bleak and sparsely inhabited part of the countryside tell of the mysterious arrival at midnight last Sunday, following the kidnapping of Father Griffin, of a lorry load of men. The lorry halted near the spot where the body was found and the lights were extinguished. In about twenty minutes the lamps were relighted and the party drove away.

When the body of Father Griffin was brought into Galway today it was placed uncoffined on the high altar of the parish church. Huge crowds passed before the bier, while three priests knelt near by reciting the Rosary. The first intimation the townsfolk had of the tragedy was an announcement made by the priests at the morning masses.

At St. Joseph's Church, where Father Griffin presided, pathetic scenes of grief were witnessed. The priests omitted the usual sermon and confined themselves to relating incidents of the life of Father Griffin and paying tribute to him. They declared that the priest had earned a martyr's crown and begged the congregation to pray for the repose of his soul, but not to forget also to pray for his murderers.

Although a number of priests lately have been ill-treated or threatened, Father Griffin is the first to forfeit his life. In fact, no priest has been done to death in Ireland in many years.

Father O'Meehan, Father Griffin's colleague and senior curate, with whom Father Griffin lived, said in his church today that he had received five written threats of death since last May, and that he did not dare sleep in his own home. He added that Father Griffin had never received any threats.

Large Reinforcements of Troops for Ireland; Shooting Begins Again at Night in Dublin

LONDON, Nov. 22.—The Daily Mail says that arrangements are under way to send large reinforcements of troops to Ireland and that the opinion is held in official quarters that the danger of assassination is spreading to England.

Fire broke out in Dublin this evening in various places, says the Dublin correspondent of The Daily Mail. Twelve nurses were among those arrested today.

DUBLIN, Nov. 21 (Associated Press).—Shooting began again in the streets just before midnight, and a number of people are reported killed. There is much military activity.

The casualties in Croke Park are semi-officially given as 10 killed and 65 injured, 11 seriously.

PANIC AT HOCKEY GAME

LONDON, Nov. 21.—An orgy of outrages occured in Dublin today.

At 9 o'clock this morning officers and civilians connected with the court-martial proceedings against Sinn Feiners were sought out by gangs of desperadoes in the Gresham Hotel, and then in private residences, and shot down in their bedrooms, one in the presence of his wife.

Fourteen were killed and five wounded. Four prisoners were captured, one of them being wounded.

In the afternoon the police, believing the murderers had come to Dublin under the guise of witnessing the hurley or hockey match between Dublin and Tipperary, surrounded Croke Park, where 3,000 spectators were collected. Sinn Fein pickets opened fire on them. They replied, killing ten and wounding many. In the stampede of the crowd which followed one woman and one man were trampled to death.

The fact that practically all the officers shot down were employed either as court-martial officers or in collating and preparing evidence against Sinn Fein, connects, in the official view, the outrages with the great progress that has been made in the last few days in getting at the heart of the Sinn Fein movement. About fifty important arrests in and near Dublin were made last week, sixteen on Saturday, and THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent is informed that a number of documents almost as startling as the typhoid and glanders orders, published a few days ago, have also been seized.

The idea of the raiders, it is believed, was at one stroke to kill the principal prosecutors and to capture and destroy the evidence collected. The murders were committed by gangs of from twelve to twenty men, as far as is known. They came, in twos and threes, through the streets like ordinary, peaceful citizens, and met outside the places to be raided. Then they forced their way in and killed their victims with practically no resistance.

Officers Slain in Their Rooms.

At the Gresham Hotel L. A. Wilde was shot down while he was actually in bed and former Captain P. McCormack before he had left his bedroom. At 28 Upper Pembroke Street Major Dowling and Captain Price were met as they were leaving, in uniform, their bedrooms and shot in the doorways, while Colonel Woodcock, Colonel Montgomery, Captain Kennelly and a Royal Scots officer named Murray were wounded. At 117 Morehampton Road Captain D. L. MacLean and two civilians, T. H. Smith and J. Caldoun, were surprised in their bedrooms, taken to the top of the house and killed there.

At 38 Upper Mount Street two officers named Bennett and Aimes were dragged from their bedrooms to a rear room to be shot. The same method was used in butchering an officer named McMahon at 22 Tower Mount Street and Captain Fitzgerald at 28 Earlsford Terrace.

At 92 Tower Baggot Street, a gang of twenty-five men broke in. They found Captain Newberry in his bedroom with his wife. He apparently had time to fire, for a prisoner captured there is wounded, but he was shot down at his wife's feet.

In many cases the murderers before they left made a hurried search for documents, it is supposed, in the hope of finding the evidence on which the Government is founding its prosecutions but it is denied officially that they captured anything of importance or that the death of these officers will hinder the steady pressure the Government is putting on the Sinn Fein. Moreover, the number of informers is increasing and Dublin Castle expresses confidence that it is making real headway at last.

The murderers, it is supposed, as soon as they had accomplished their purpose, left the houses quietly and, mingling with passers-by, walked away unmolested.

Police Fire on Crowd.

The authorities reckoned their best chance of capturing some of them was to search the big crowd that was expected to gather for the Dublin-Tipperary hurley match on Croke Park ground. They waited until 3,000 spectators were assembled and then dispatched a strong force of police, Black and Tans, and military to surround the field. As they drew near Sinn Fein pickets sighted them and, perhaps not realizing they were faced by an overwhelming force, opened fire. It was returned and a terrible scene ensued.

The spectators dashed hither and thither in a wild attempt to escape, and the weaker were trampled under foot. Ten men had fallen, killed by the police volley, and many others were wounded, and at least one man and one woman, it is known, were thrown down and crushed to death by the crowd in its terror.

The police, however, insisted on searching all in the grounds, and the 3,000 were gone through.

As the spectators saw what was coming, those who had arms dropped them on the ground, and the police thus captured about thirty revolvers and other firearms. They also made some arrests and got possession of important documents.

An agency dispatch describing the scene in Croke Park says that in the presence of 6,000 spectators armed forces, accompanied by armored cars, mounted with machine guns, entered the field. The crowd tried to get away and was seized with panic. Shots were fired in all directions and many persons were badly injured during the stampede which followed. It is reported that several were shot dead and hundreds were wounded by gunfire. The hospitals are full.

According to another account, more than 15,000 persons had been watching the challenge match between Dublin and Tipperary for a quarter of an hour when the armed forces entered the grounds. Wild confusion ensued, shots flying in all directions. Ten persons were killed and between sixty and seventy wounded.

Dublin Train Service Stopped.

The Central Hotel has been commandeered and guests given two hours to leave.

The murder at 22 Mount Street was reported to a party of seventeen cadets of the auxiliary division of the Royal Irish Constabulary, who were passing a house in a lorry, by a woman, who shouted to them from a window, "An officer has been murdered."

Two were sent to the barracks for reinforcements and the rest entered the house. They learned that three officrs had lived there and that a group of men had entered the house and gone up to a bedroom where two officers were in bed. The men gained access to the room with a bogus story about a letter for one of them. Three or four shots were fired at one of the officers, Lieutenant Mason, an officer in the Tank Corps, and he was killed. The other officer escaped injury.

The third officer was in a bedroom alone. He heard knocking at his door and got up to open it. Apparently he knew what to expect, for he remained behind the door when he pulled it open, falling on his knee. Ten or twenty shots, he says, were fired into the room, and the raiders departed at once, leaving him unhurt.

The auxiliary police who were called in by the woman are said to have arrested one man inside the house and two in the neighborhood, all three with revolvers or pistols in their possession.

The two auxiliaries who had been sent to the barracks for reinforcements were shot dead in the street, evidently by men who had been watching for the arrival of the party.

One of the coolest men in the raid was Captain Crawford, the officer in command of the motor repairing depot of the Army Service Corps. At 9:10 o'clock his house in Fitzwilliam Square was visited by armed men. Mrs. Crawford was in bed at the time and the Captain was in his dressing room, when a knock came at the door. Thinking it came from some of his men, he said, "Come in." They did not come in, so he went to the door and found himself facing three revolvers. He was told to put up his hands. He refused to do so, and asked, "Is this a joke?"

The armed men replied it was no joke. The fourth man poked his gun into his stomach, pushing the officer back into his room. Two men stood over him and he was interrogated by a man who apparently was the leader of the party. The leader said his story was a lie, and declared Crawford was a Secret Service Agent. He demanded to know if the Captain had any papers. Crawford replied he had, and indicated where they were. They found among other things a license, and this appeared to satisfy them. They then ordered Crawford back to bed with his wife, who had been present during the ordeal.

The visitors searched the drawers, cupboards and bags, and finding some photographic plates and pictures taken since the armistice in France, they questioned the officer about them. After which they destroyed them, together with other private papers.

They then ordered Crawford out of bed again and became more threatening. Crawford said: "My wife is not very well, and if you are going to shoot me, please take me downstairs, as it would be unpleasant for my wife to see it."

The leader, with an oath, told him to "shut up."

Mrs. Crawford then said: "What have I done to deserve this? Why should this happen to me?" The men told her also to shut up. The men then seemed to realize the time was getting late. Signs of haste became apparent. They then left, the leader calling out: "You clear out of this country in twenty hours, or we will do for you tomorrow night."

The officer has not left the city.

Two Murders in Hotel.

The murder of two of the officers at the Gresham Hotel was carried out by fifteen men, who walked into the hotel at 9 o'clock and held up the staff with revolvers. After examining the register, they compelled the hall porter, at the point of a revolver, to take ten of them to the bedroom of ex-Captain McCormack and Wilde. Four remained in the hall and covered the staff, who stood with hands up, and another man went into the dining room and stayed there.

The party which went upstairs with the hall porter went first to McCormack's room. He was sitting up in bed reading a newspaper when they entered, and he received four bullets in his body. Wilde apparently got out of bed when he heard their approach and had got halfway to the door when they opened it. He fell dead with bullet wounds. The gang escaped.

Very few people in the other bedrooms seem to have realized the significance of the sound of shots. As the raiders left the hotel, one of them said to the staff: "The less said about this the safer you will be."

Both the men who were killed had the reputation of being Secret Service men, but McCormack is authoritatively said to have been a Veterinary Corps officer.

How Attacks Were Carried Out.

The following details of the attacks were obtained on inquiry at Dublin Castle:

In the attack at 28 Earlsford Terrace, a servant heard knocking at the door at 9 o'clock and a man asked if Mr. Fitzpatrick lived there. The man said Fitzpatrick was a Lieutenant Colonel and the servant said that a Captain Fitzgerald lived there. She was asked to point out his room, which she did. In walking toward it the man pulled out a revolver and called to some men who were standing outside. Three more men entered, two of whom took up positions in the hall and one at the kitchen door.

Fitzgerald's room was entered, and a moment later the servant heard Captain Fitzgerald give a shout, almost a scream. She heard one of the men who had entered the room say,

"Come on." Four shots rang out, and the men ran away.

In the attack at 22 Lower Mount Street a servant at 9 o'clock opened the door, in response to a knock, and was asked by a man whether he could see Mr. Mahon. She said she did not know. At the same time about twenty men rushed into the hall. She pointed out Mahon's room, and a number of men entered. She heard five shots fired. The men then asked for the room of another officer, and she showed them the door opposite to that of Mahon. This door was locked, and the men fired through it. Seventeen bulletholes were afterward found in the door.

An occupant of a neighboring house heard the shots and shouted, drawing the police, who were passing. They fired into the house and the raiders ran out of the back door. They were pursued by officers who wounded and captured one and rescued the other officer in his room who was uninjured.

Dublin Castle's Statement.

An account of the outrages issued by Dublin Castle tonight says:

"It would seem as if the gang which has made the murder of Crown servants its business for some time past had become greatly concerned of late at the pace and pressure with which the machinery of justice has been exercised against them. They have become acutely conscious that the Crown has gained of late intimate knowledge not only of their methods and plans, but also of their names and whereabouts and of their criminal history individually. Murder plans were being frustrated, arrests of members of the murder gang and their associates were being made in far greater numbers and with fuller prospects than ever before of securing that justice should be attained and criminals brought to book.

"It was in these circumstances that the criminals saw fit to launch the attack of assassination, not against the army generally, but against that part of the army especially concerned in bringing them to justice, and in this desperate effort there lay a twofold motive, not only of scotching the machinery of justice and retarding its pace, but also of terrorizing others who were in any way connected with it."

Dublin's Worst Day.

DUBLIN, Nov. 21 (Associated Press).—Dublin became the scene today of far-spread murder and reprisal. Not since the first outbreak of the vicious civil warfare that has been shedding blood in Ireland have the assassinations been so concerted or the retaliation so swift and pronounced.

Not less than fourteen men are dead in the attacks arranged simultaneously all over the city this morning. The method was the same in each case and all the men assassinated were officers or ex-officers, or otherwise in the service of the Government.

Small bodies of men numbering generally from six to eight presented themselves at various houses, called their victims out or entered and shot their victims in bed, while dressing or at breakfast. The districts in which the murders were committed were in some instances close together, others were separated by miles, but all the assassinations took place about the same hour, 9 o'clock in the morning.

In the afternoon, while a football match was in progress at Croke Park, sixteen lorries filled with auxiliary police moved swiftly up and surrounded the place. Accounts differ as to what happened when, after mounting machine guns on heights above, the police broke through the gates. The auxiliaries were hooted, and, according to eyewitnesses, first fired in the air and then into the crowd. It is declared from another source that Sinn Fein pickets first fired on the Government forces when they were seen approaching, and that the fire was returned.

Within the park the great assembly of 15,000 became panic-stricken. How many were killed is not known as yet, but the estimates range from ten to thirty or more. Several are reported to have been trampled to death.

The streets of Dublin on Sunday are deserted in the morning hours. Those who had planned the murder of the officers and Government employes moved systematically to their task. They committed the assassinations without disguise, and all made their escape.

The Gresham Hotel was the scene perhaps of the greatest daring, and the raid was carried out by twenty men with the utmost cruelty. The Gresham is in Sackville Street and is one of the best known hotels in Dublin. In this place two former officers were done to death.

Following fast upon the murders there was great military and police activity, and houses were raided in search of the criminals. All motor traffic was ordered stopped, and all train services in and out of Dublin were suspended.

The city was given over to terrified apprehension as armored cars and lorries filled with Black and Tans raced through the streets.

Official List of the Dead Officers.

The official list of those killed in the murder raid follows: Major Dowling, Captains D. L. MacLean, Newbury, Bagally, Fitzgerald and Price; former Captain P. McCormick and Messrs. Bennett, Aimes, Mahon, T. H. Smith and L. A. Wilde.

Cadets Garnin and Morris of the Royal Irish Constabulary were found dead in a garden after they had failed in an attempt to reach the garrison to spread the alarm of the massacre.

The wounded are Colonels Woodcock and Montgomery, Captain Kinnelly and Messrs. Murray and Caldown and one other. Caldown was first reported killed.

Captain MacLean and Messrs. Smith and Caldown were attacked by a band of twelve men in a house in Northampton Road. They were taken from their bedrooms to the top story of the house, where they were shot.

Most of the civilian victims were former service men who held positions in administrative departments closely connected with the administration of justice, the officers in some cases were marked men because of their prominence in court-martial proceedings.

Government Fears Reprisals.

LONDON, Nov. 21 (Associated Press).—The Government entertains grave apprehension about eventualities in Dublin tonight, and all precautions have been taken to prevent reprisals by the police and military. The police barracks in Dublin have been picketed to prevent the men from leaving their quarters. There are large detached forces near Dublin, however, which are harder to control. Everything has been done, nevertheless, to forestall retaliatory measures.

A dispatch received in London from official sources in Dublin says that when mixed forces of military and constabulary surrounded Croke Park they were fired upon by Sinn Fein pickets when seen approaching and returned the fire, killing and wounding a number. About three thousand persons were then searched and afterward many revolvers were found.

In addition to the casualties due to the firing, this dispatch says, a man and a woman were killed in the crush owing to the crowd stampeding.

A number of women participated in the morning attacks, according to the Dublin correspondent of The London Times. In one case forty raiders arrived at a house on bicycles.

The full story of the Croke Park affair has not yet been told. Such details as have been received appear to have come mostly from official sources. The question how the shooting began has not been established. Some brief reports suggest that it was in reprisal for the morning's killings, while others concur in the official statement that the troops were sent to the game to round up persons suspected of participation in the murders and were fired on by Sinn Feiners and retaliated.

The official statement of the casualties has not been challenged up to the present time, but one report received in London says all the hospitals in Dublin are filled with wounded.

ments. He was then released, his assailants going off in a motor car.

A second detective was kidnapped.

Notices threatening that "unless the kidnapped detective returns within twenty-four hours citizens of Cork will rue the consequences" were circulated tonight. Another notice signed R. I. C. [Royal Irish Constabulary], was delivered at the principal Catholic churches, stating that until the missing constable is returned there will be no peace in Cork.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—A Cork dispatch to the Exchange Telegraph says that auxiliary police in lorries, who were in search of a detective who had been kidnapped, are reported to have fired indiscrimately and thrown bombs. Notices also were circulated threatening the people of Cork if the missing detective was not returned.

CAN'T 'SCRAP' LEAGUE CECIL DECLARES

WANTS TO SATISFY AMERICA

Copyright, 1920, by The Chicago Tribune Co.

GENVEA, Nov. 21.—Lord Robert Cecil, who is credited with being the author of the League of Nations covenant and who is representing South Africa at the Geneva Assembly, gave The Chicago Tribune the following interview regarding the entrance of America into the League of Nations:

"America must abandon the idea that the rest of the world is willing to scrap the present League and to join with her to organize a new one. It never will be possible to get together again these forty-two nations for the formation of another League. Also there is no reason for such action, since the present organization can be modified so that it can embrace all the amendments and reservations which the Untied States demands.

"The biggest stumbling block to the acceptance of the League by the United States, I believe, is the question of six votes for the British Empire, but Great Britain cannot afford to quarrel with the Dominions.

"Regarding the Monroe Doctrine, that question already has been settled. Article XXI. of the covenant mentions it specifically and fully protects this document.

"Article X., which created such an uproar in America, is innocuous. If carefully read it states that the League guarantees the political integrity of its members, which means that the League discountenances aggression. Article X. does not guarantee perpetually the frontiers of every country as they exist today. It provides for changes and alterations by peaceful methods and not by war.

"I do not know if Mr. Harding endorses Mr. Root's conception of an association transforming the League into an international court, but the time for such a plan is not ripe yet. Maybe it will be at some time in the future, but at present no country, and least of all the United States, wishes to abandon its sovereign rights and surrender all to an international court of law.

"We would like to know the Republicans' idea regarding the League. Just what do they want? I am sure that there would be no difficulty in satisfying the American demands, and that by making certain changes the present League would be acceptable to the United States. But it is a waste of time for Americans to think that this League could be scrapped and all nations go to America to form a new League."

LITHUANIANS ASK LEAGUE PEACE MOVE

Fighting with renewed energy is reported in the north between General Zeligouski, commander of the insurgent Polish troops, and the Lithuanians, and at various points beyond the Polish frontier, where the Reds have brought up fresh forces and thrown them against Balakovitch in Polesia and against Permykin, Pavlenko and Petlura in Ukraine.

From Vilna it is reported that the Lithuanians have launched an offensive against Central Lithuania, which has replied with a counter stroke, driving the Lithuanians northwest and taking prisoners, including a Lithuanian General, and the towns of Giebrojoie and Svenslany, northeast of Kovno.

At last accounts the League of Nations Commission of Control, headed by Colonel Chardigny, which is attempting to mediate in the territorial dispute between the Kovno Government and Zellgouski, has been delayed for several days at Rykonly, near where the League representatives were reported to have been fired upon by the Lithuanians owing to a misunderstanding.

The Commissioners are living in railway cars, which have been held up by damaged bridges. The Lithuanians are repairing the bridges, and as soon as this work is finished the comission will continue on to Kovno.

According to advices from various sources, the Bolsheviki centreing upon Balakovitch's White Russian Army have assembled nine divisions in the region of Borysov and Bobruisk, the next Red offensive being designed to destroy Balakovitch or drive him across the Polish frontier, where his forces will be interned.

Further south the Bolsheviki have had additional successes against Petlura, whose scattered forces are in some places still attempting to hold in the face of superior numbers. North of Proskurov the munitionless Ukrainians are striving to reach the Polish frontier. They have repeatedly attacked the Bolsheviki and have lost more than half their numbers on the way. More than ten thousand of Petlura's forces have crossed the border.

LEAGUE FRAMES TESTS FOR NEW MEMBERS

Committee Devising Questions as to Status, Record and Conduct of 14 Applying States.

Frame Tests for New Members.

GENEVA, Nov. 21 (Associated Press).—Responsibilities of the League of Nations and the responsibilities of its individual members under Article X. of the convention form one question which the Committee on Admission of New Members is considering in connection with the applications of fourteen States, including Germany. These applications are now in the hands of sub-committees. They are:

From Finland, Esthonia, Latvia, Lithuania and Luxembourg, referred to the sub-committee presided over by M. Poullet.

Austria, Bulgaria, Albania and Liechtenstein, referred to the sub-committee presided over by Lord Robert Cecil.

Georgia, Armenia, Azerbaijan, Ukraine and Costa Rica, the sub-committee presided over by Dr. Fridtjof Nansen.

Besides responsibilities under Article X., the committees will consider in respect to each applicant the following questions: Is its application in order? Is the Government applying recognized de jure or de facto, and by which States? Is the applicant nation possessed of a stable Government and settled frontiers? What are its size and population? Is it self-governing? What has been its conduct, including both acts and assurances, with regard to its international obligations?

The last-named question is supposed to have been inspired by the French member of the committee, M. Viviani, with a view to any proposition that may be submitted to elect Germany.

The prescriptions of the League as to armaments will also be considered in connection with the military power of each applicant.

Hope To Fix Main Plans.

In the opinion of the delegations, the first week's work of the Assembly has been satisfactorily accomplished, even more so than could have been expected, as the conference has got beyond the chaotic period of organization sooner than usual with freshly organized bodies in spite of the diversified interests, views and languages represented. The Assembly is well up to schedule time on the program and it is expected now that it will finish its labors by the middle of December.

Final concrete solutions are not expected on all questions, because most of the important problems are complicated by the absence of the United States, Russia and the Central European powers. It is hoped, however, that fundamental plans will be laid to control armaments, organize an international court of justice and put in force the blockade against any power breaking the covenant.

Slight amendments to the covenant may be made, though many delegates hold that the entire question should await propositions from the United States which they expect as a result of President-elect Harding's consultations.

The question of mandates, in consequence of Germany's protest to the Assembly against the manner of the selection of mandataries, touches upon the relations between the Council of the League and the Assembly and their respective jurisdictions. The Germans' appeal to the Assembly is on a question which the council regards as within its own province.

Lack Strength to Change Council.

Some of the delegates intend to make an issue on the supremacy of the Assembly over the Council by fighting for the election of all the members of the Council by the Assembly, thus taking the control out of the hands of the big powers, which under present conditions name a majority. This would involve the revision of the covenant in this respect, on which it would be impossible to reach the required unanimity.

It is pointed out that the importance of Germany's protets is lessened by the fact that it has been understood all along that the present occupation of colonies and territories subject to mandate is only provisional, pending the action of the League to sanction the methods of administration.

It is reported on good authority that Premier Lloyd George is only waiting for an improvement in the weather at Geneva and for the Assembly to arrive at a stage where the final result can be forecast with more or less accuracy before coming here to take his place as one of the British delegates during the discussion of some special questions.

The strength shown by the South American delegations in the League Assembly has provoked considerable comment and given rise to rumors of combinations in which the South Americans with neutral countries were declared to be planning to run the Assembly.

A leading South American representative today scoffed at the idea. He pointed out, first, that the South Americans, while naturally finding themselves united on questions touching their common interest, were making no alliances with any one; second, that it was ridiculous to talk of combinations to run the Assembly, which, by the covenant, required unanimity except on the election of officers and new members.

The Spanish language, it is learned after inquiry among the members of the Committee on the Rules of Assembly, will be recommended as the third official language of the League. The proposal has the support of the British and French delegations, H. A. L. Fisher and M. Viviani expressing themselves strongly in its favor.

Anselmo Bareto has been appointed to succeed Dr. Mariano H. Corbejo as head of the Peruvian delegation to the Assembly of the League of Nations.

Says Labor Will Continue Fight on Wages and Hours

BOSTON, Nov. 21.—Organized labor will continue its fight for increased wages and shorter hours, and will not "stand for any reduction in its wages," Daniel Tobin, Treasurer of the American Federation of Labor, asserted in an address today before the Boston Central Labor Union.

"It's about time that labor came down from the clouds and awoke to the realization of the fight that it will be called upon to face during the next twelve months," Mr. Tobin told the delegates. "Don't misunderstand me; there is not a chance in the world of labor failing, but it is high time that we gave up discussions on the various 'isms' and other idealistic dreams, to look to our organizations so that we may prepare ourselves for the fight that is really coming and may hit when you are least prepared."

COMPARES COST OF WAR AND LEAGUE OF NATIONS

League to Enforce Peace Shows Great Reduction From Expense of Armaments.

The League to Enforce Peace yesterday pointed out that one of the items under discussion by the Assembly at Geneva was the budget for the League of Nations, and that this would be about $4,200,000 for the coming year. The organization here pointed out that the tentative budget for the League now made "it possible to form a pretty correct idea what the world will have to pay for the new form of insurance represented by the League."

"The first budget provided for an estimated income of $1,200,000," according to a statement sent out by the League to Enforce Peace, "but the States invited to join the League declared their accession so much more quickly than had been expected that the actual income of the period up to March 31, this year, amounted to $1,396,372. Of this sum only $544,142 was spent, leaving a balance of $852,230 for the second budget period from April 1 to Dec. 31, this year.

"The total expenditure estimated for the latter period and approved by the August meeting of the Council was $2,000,000. This included $345,000 for the establishment of a well needed reserve fund and $650,000 for the International Labor Office which, under the covenant, must be financed by the League.

"Because of the rapid development of the League's activities during the Summer and Autumn, and particularly because of unforeseen expenses connected with the winding up of various tangles left behind by the great war—such as the repatriation of prisoners to and from Russia, for instance—the Secretariat has found every penny of the estimated appropriation needed and has even had to use up the intended reserve fund. This expenditure, however, includes the first payment on the property acquired by the League for its permanent seat at Geneva.

"The third budget, covering the entire year of 1921, provides for a total expenditure of $4,200,000—or, to be very accurate, 21,000,000 gold francs. A dollar represents really about 5.2 gold francs, but for our present purposes it will be sufficient to reckon it at an even five. The appropriations provided by this budget fall under five heads:

"Cost of permanent headquarters and equipment	$400,000
"Cost of Council, Assembly and Secretariat	1,230,000
"Cost of various permanent organizations	700,000
"Reserve fund	470,000
"Cost of Labor Office	1,400,000
"Total	$4,200,000

"An international commission has been at work on a system providing for an absolutely just apportionment of the total cost of the League among the nation members, and its report will come before the Assembly for action. In the meantime the system used by the Postal Union has been applied. It divides the total cost into a certain number of units, then all the nations are divided into seven classes that have to pay from one to twenty-five units each.

"The year before the great war broke out Congress appropriated a total sum of $219,211,155 to cover the expenses for one year, during a state of absolute peace, of the army, the navy, the fortification system and the military academy. In 1918, when we had been at war for a year, the Sixty-fourth Congress had to appropriate the enormous sum of $10,221,231,435 for the same purposes.

"If the United States had belonged to the Leage from the start, it would have been placed in the first class, paying twenty-five units. This means that it would have had to pay $104,760 for expenses incurred up to the end of this year, and that for next year it would have been assessed a total amount of $220,296.

"Such a comparison shows that belonging to the League next year would cost us exactly one-tenth of 1 per cent. of what we spent on armaments during a single year before the war, while it would amount to something like two-thousandth of 1 per cent. of what the direct cost of our belligerency reached in 1918. What the war cost us indirectly during the same year is, of course, past reckoning, but the sum was undoubtedly so great that the mere bookkeeping expenses exceeded the entire cost of running the League of Nations."

SEMENOFF ARMY IN TRAP.

Fall of Siberian Anti-Red Leader Is Expected in Tokio.

TOKIO, Nov. 21 (Assocated Press).—General Semenoff, leader of anti-Bolshevist forces in the territory east of Lake Baikal, faces a critical situation, and his fall is imminent, says one of his headquarters officers now in this city.

He charges the Japanese High Command with breaking faith with General Semenoff, and says the policy of General Oi, commander of Japanese troops in Siberia, is to keep that region stirred up and prevent the formation of a buffer State between Soviet Russia and the Far Eastern Republic.

General Semenoff is now at Manchuli station, southeast of Chita, and is being hemmed in by Bolsheviki and Mongols. Negotiations are constantly going on between the Japanese, Chinese, Russian Bolsheviki, Mongols and officers loyal to General Semenoff, it is said.

WINS STREETER CUP.

Miss Kellogg of Buffalo Takes Prize for Physical Fitness.

SOUTH HADLEY, Mass., Nov. 21.—Miss Dorothy E. Kellogg of Buffalo is the winner of the Sarah Streeter Cup at Mount Holyoke College, which is awarded each year to the senior who at the time of her final physical examination is found to be in the best physical condition. This cup was first given in 1914 by Sarah Streeter of the Class of 1911 to stimulate interest in gymnastic work and athletics.

Miss Kellogg is an all-round athlete and prominent in many college activities. She is proficient in basketball, baseball, tennis and hockey, and is fond of hiking and camping. Since her freshman year she has been song leader of her class and this year is college song leader. She is senior House Chairman of one of the largest off-campus residence halls and a member of the advisory council of the Students' League. She is also prominent in Y. W. C. A. work, being leader of one of the Bible classes for freshmen. For four years she has sung in the college choir.

Her academic interests are centred in economics and biology, and to gain practical experience she worked last Summer in a textile factory in Buffalo.

Honorable mention for the cup was given to Miss Virginia M. Bliss of Tarrytown, N. Y., and Miss Enid K. Rutledge of Dorchester, Mass.

TRAIN ROBBERY LOOT INCREASED BY $500,000

Special to The New York Times.

OMAHA, Nov. 21.—Five thousand dollars in Liberty bonds, which have not heretofore figured in the robbery of the treasure car on the transcontinental fast mail a week ago, it was announced today, were included, in addition to the $800,000 in bonds which the robbers have confessed burning, in the loot. The half million shipment was in one of the mail bags which has not been recovered and which the robbers under arrest say were taken away by Keith Collins, former army aviator. The $500,000 in bonds were shipped by the Anglo-London-Paris National Bank of San Francisco to the Continental and Commercial National Bank of Chicago. The bonds were fifty in number, $10,000 each, of the fourth temporary Liberty loan series.

A $50,000 cash shipment from the same San Francisco bank to the same Chicago bank is believed to be the $50,000 which the robbers divided and $20,000 of which was recovered in the T. A. Daly chicken house.

A representative of the San Francisco bank will reach Omaha today or tomorrow to identify the cash recovered as part of that shipped from San Francisco. He will depend on producing identical wrapping paper and rubber stamps, together with serial numbers of much of the money.

The shipments of both bonds and cash were fully insured and the loss will fall on a San Francisco insurance company and not on the banks. Government insurance is limited to $50 a package.

COUNCIL BLUFFS, Iowa, Nov. 21.—Following the arrest today of two more men thought to have been implicated in the looting of the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy treasure car last week, Federal authorities tonight announced the recovery of $8,000, said to be part of the amount taken. Eight persons, one of them the wife of one of the accused, have been detained.

Admissions alleged to have been made late last night by Fred E. Poffenberger, resulted in the arrest today of Poffenberger's father, Fred A. Poffenberger, and his brother, Clyde, and the discovery of the money, Federal officers said. Seven thousand dollars in currency which Clyde is alleged to have admitted he had received from his brother Fred was found in an outhouse, the officials declared. Another thousand was found buried in a corn field near the home of the elder Poffenberger. The latter confessed, the officials said, that the money had been given him by his son Fred.

Of the ten sacks of mail stolen, all but four, it was reported, have been recovered.

COLLEGE PLAYERS BEATEN.

Holy Name Quintet Takes Basketball Game from Kent Five, 34 to 29.

A team of former college basketball stars, all members of the Columbia Law School and playing under the name of the Kent Five, lost a well-played game yesterday afternoon at the Manhattan Casino to the Holy Name quintet by a score of 34 to 29. The college men led at the end of the first period, when the score in their favor stood 15 to 11, but Holy Name's play grew faster and more accurate the longer the game progressed. McDermott scored seven baskets and Driscoll five for Holy Name, while Taliaferro played stellar basketball for the losers.

Brighton Club to Hold Bout.

Suretyship

BROADLY, Suretyship may be divided into Personal Suretyship and Corporate Suretyship.

The first class includes all instances where an individual signs the bond of a friend. Personal Suretyship often entails unlooked-for hardships. It impairs the bondsman's own credit—many banks ask a customer if he has any such obligations.

The Fidelity and Deposit Company is such a corporation. It applies modern, impersonal, business-like methods to suretyship. It eliminates the element of speculation. It fulfills all obligations. Losses paid by the F & D impose no hardships on any individual.

Suretyship, as practised by the Fidelity and Deposit Company, guarantees the faithful performance of an obligation on the part of an individual or a corporation. It also insures the Prompt Payment of Claims without refuge behind technicalities.

KNIFE IS NEW CLUE IN PALMER ROBBERY

DETECTIVES SEEK OWNER

Many Letters Offering Aid Are Received by Victim — War Veteran Proposes Marriage.

A pearl-handled knife, with strands of bluish-green silken thread hanging to its open blade, was found yesterday in the home of Mrs. Charlotte King Palmer at 59 East Ninetieth Street, and may prove to be the clue that will pry open the mystery in the theft six days ago of jewels and furs now valued by Mrs. Palmer at $767,000.

The color of the strands resembled both the portiere cord used by the robbers to bind the Filipino butler, and the silk-covered picture cord used to truss up the maid, and friends of Mrs. Palmer's, who saw the wisps of silk, think the knife was used to cut cords to tie up both the servants. Both knife and threads were taken away yesterday afternoon by detectives from the East Eighty-eighth Street Police Station, who were summoned immediately after the new discovery.

Detectives at first ridiculed the idea that a new clue had been found in a house they were supposed to have turned upside down five days ago. One asserted that the knife was the property of Thomas J. Corrigan, Jr., head of the detective agency of that name, and that he had seen Corrigan sharpen his pencil with it on Tuesday morning.

"I never carry a knife. It isn't mine," said Corrigan last night. "It might belong to some detective who was in the house investigating, but it might also belong to one of the robbers. I'd rather think it belonged to one of the robbers."

Where the Knife Was Found.

It was in the room where the knife was found that the leader of the robbers, believed to have been an ex-convict with a good education and long criminal experience, set up his headquarters for the direction of the theft and for the springing of the trap upon Mrs. Palmer when she returned late at night. It was in this room he found the electric call buttons at the head of Mrs. Palmer's bed and with them summoned the servants from the basement so that he could stow them away in the wardrobes, gagged and bound.

Within four feet of the places where the robbers found the cords to bind their victims, the knife was found—on the mantel near the foot of Mrs. Palmer's bed. Alongside the mantel, in a drawer of a dressing table the robbers obtained the picture cord used to tie the maid. The cords to bind the butler were cut from the window portieres at the side of the dressing table.

The knife was discovered first by Alfredo Sazone, the Filipino butler, but for a time it was supposed to belong to Mrs. Palmer. Later, when it was called to her attention, Mrs. Palmer said it was not hers. If it is found that the knife does not belong to any of the detectives who have been in the house an attempt to trace the ownership through the Connecticut manufacturer and middlemen to the last owner will be made.

Many Letters Received.

An anonymous letter, believed to have been from a crank, also took the attention of the detectives yesterday after they had learned of it from Mrs. Palmer. It advanced the theory that the robbery was "an inside job," aided by some one who had gained information about Mrs. Palmer's household. When the letter was opened on Friday Mrs. Palmer and her mother laughed at it as a "crank" letter, but yesterday the police asked for it and attached importance to it. But the note had been mislaid.

Scores of other letters have been received by Mrs. Palmer, some offering sympathy, others assistance, with many from amateur detectives with bright ideas. One was from a foreign war veteran who offered marriage and wrote that he had enough for two to live on. He mentioned in passing that he was "handsome and affectionate," nd enclosed his photograph "to prove it."

Mrs. Palmer yesterday again declared she was convinced that her servants had nothing to do with the robbery. She thinks it was planned in a near-by garage where she had kept her automobiles for a short period. Tracing records yesterday the police questioned one suspect about a robbery in a Park Avenue apartment house three years ago in which a servant of his nationality was suspected, but escaped arrest.

Mrs. Palmer requested the removal of the detectives' headquarters from the basement of her house on the ground that they had had sufficient opportunity in four days to gather all the facts they needed there. She said that their harassmentof her maid, Margaret Creevan, had caused the servant to have a nervous breakdown.

ROBS DRIVE APARTMENT.

Thief Breaks In Under Arc Lights—Gets $1,200 in Clothing.

A thief, apparently undisturbed by the stream of automobiles in Riverside Drive last night, pried open a window of an apartment on the ground floor of the Hendrick Hudson apartment house, Cathedral Parkway and the Drive, and escaped with $1,200 worth of wearing apparel.

At 7 o'clock last night John A. Williams, Vice President and General Manager of Crouch & Fitzgerald, leather manufacturers and luggage dealers, left Apartment 1-C, bound for a theatre with his wife. The servants had been given the day off, and the apartment was empty when Mr. Williams turned the key and left.

Shortly after 10 o'clock he returned and found the apartment suite turned topsy-turvy. Bureau drawers had been pulled out and their contents piled on the floors, and beds, wardrobes and closets had been ransacked. Mr. Willians found that $1,200 worth of clothing, principally his, had disappeared.

He notified the police and detectives who came around found that the robber had gained entrance by "jimmying" a window facing into 111th Street, a few feet from the Drive corner. In his climb over the two-foot iron railing around one of the city's largest apartment houses and in his subsequent employment on the window the thief was in full view under the lights of the traffic of Riverside Drive. The detectives established that it would have been impossible for a man to have gained entrance to the apartment through the hallways, for attendants were on guard there.

ASSAILS CHURCH NIGGARDS.

Special to The New York Times.

BALTIMORE, Nov. 21.—Women who pay $1,500 for clothes and less than $1 a week for religion and men who spend $7 to $10 a week for cigars and put less than that amount in the collection plate were told today by the Rev. Dr. H. P. Almon Abbott, at Grace and St. Peter's Episcopal Church, that they were insulting God.

Dr. Abbott spoke on the financial aspect of the nation-wide campaign from the text: "Jesus sat over against the treasury and beheld how the people cast money into the treasury." He discussed the campaign in its relation to the parish, the diocese and the general work of the church. In the course of his remarks to a congregation which packed the church, he said:

"With all my heart, my dear people, I praise you, for you are worthy of commendation. You are the most generous people with whom I have been associated as parish priest. This church stands second only to one in America in per capita giving to the nation-wide campaign. The revenue in 1918-1919 was $17,800, while for 1919-1920 it was $59,500, of which $25,500 was for work outside our own parish."

This was introductory, to show that he was not scolding his congregation as a congregation. He then spoke of the wonderful generosity revealed by the American people in the course of the war for relief work in all parts of the world.

"The last few years will live forever in the memory of the human race," Dr. Abbott continued, "not alone as years of bloody war, but as years characterized by open hearted giving to all good and worthy causes. Over hearts that were cold and prosaic, over hearts unimaginative and narrow in their embrace the great magician's wand was waved, and lo, these hearts were transformed and the desire to help was spilled out of them in lavish generosity.

"We have made the great discovery—the finding of our treasure by giving our treasure away—and may this blessed law of liberty stimulate and govern our motives and our action in all our future associations with our fellow-men."

300 SIGHTSEERS SEE CHINATOWN MURDER

Visitors Crowd Into Pell Street Poolroom Where Assassin Shoots Victim.

TONG WAR MAY BE REVIVED

A herd of mammoth sight-seeing cars lumbered into Chinatown at 8 o'clock last night and disembarked 300 men and women for a ten-minute glimpse of the Far East. They hardly had time to take a note, when a young Chinese dodged among them and entered a poolroom at 12 Pell Street, another young Chinaman after him.

Two shots were fired in the poolroom. About forty billiard cues clashed on the floor, as the young Chinese, who had been gathered around ten tables, dashed in a panic for the doors. In about a second the place was empty of pool-shooters and employes. In another second it was filled up w[illegible] curiosity-seekers, mostly Americans and Italians, and policemen.

There was a swarm of policemen on the scene before the smoke had cleared away, because about twenty had been posted by Inspector Bolan at former gambling houses in Chinatown which he had closed up in recent weeks. A third set of thrill-seekers came from the Doyers Street Mission, where services had been held in celebration of five years of inter-tong amity in Chinatown and ten years of comparative peace since the big massacre in the very building where they were celebrating.

Told Wife He Was Marked for Death.

Few Chinese were there, because there had been some nervousness recently over the prospect of the outbreak of a tong war because of reported bad relations between the Hip Sing Tong and the On Leong Tong, in consequence of suspicions that individuals on the two sides had betrayed one another's violations of the law and gambling secrets to the police.

The crowd gathered around a dying man on the floor who was recognized by Detective McDonough as one Leong Yung. His wife, a white woman named Josie, broke through the crowd and exclaimed:

"He said they would get him. They have been after him for a week."

She said that Yung had made up his mind that he was going to be killed and troubled himself no further about the matter. When he went forth from their rooms on the top floor of a four-story building at 12 Pell Street he doubted if he would come back, she said, but he calmly left the matter to be settled by chance and his enemies. She said she watched from the fourth story window until he turned out of sight into Doyers Street, and before she could close the window she heard the shots. As far as the police could learn, he did not tell her why he suspected that a sudden end had been arranged for him.

"I think he talked too much," was the explanation several Chinese gave the detectives, but they insisted that they did not know what he had talked about.

Victim an Expelled Tong Member.

Two things have occurred in Chinatown recently which are important enough to bring out the old tong warriors, according to the police—first, the repeated raids on gambling houses, and, secondly, the interference, which is regarded as entirely unnecessary, with the traffic in gin and other hard liquors.

Leong Yung had been in trouble before for telling too much. He used to be a member of the Hip Sing Tong. He was accused of trafficking with the police in the secrets of that organization. They held a formal trial in a Mott Street sub-cellar, convicted him, expelled him and cut out several square inches from the Hop Sing records on which his name had been fretted.

Yung left town and lived in Jersey for a time after that. He took a chance and came back to New York several weeks ago. Almost immediately the troubles of the gamblers and gin-dealers began. Whether Yung's return was connected with the anti-gambling raids and the gin confiscations or merely a contemporary event, the detectives had no doubt last night that he was shot as a retaliation by those interests.

Ordinarily, the police would not fear a tong outbreak from such an incident as the assassination last night, since the Hip Sings are not expected to resent the death of an expelled man, but the raids have caused so much anger in Chinatown that more killings would not be surprising.

Tong wars are usually caused, according to experts on Chinatown, by the suspicion of one tong that its troubles with the police are due to spying and treachery by the other tong, or by the fact or suspicion of one tong that the other tong's gambling men have become too good friends with the police. Members of both tongs are said to have suffered from Inspector Bolan's raids.

The leaders of the Chinese Boy Scouts, a powerful organization in Chinatown, met last night and resolved that they would use all their power to prevent any clashing of tongs. There has not been a real tong outbreak since five years ago, when after repeated murders and revolver battles Mock Duck and Tom Lee, the rival tong leaders, were brought together and a peace treaty signed and celebrated at a big inter-tong banquet.

Leong Yung was one of the Chinese drafted into the army. He got some prominence at the time because he was a victim of the opium habit when he entered Camp Upton, and was cured there and built up into a first-class soldier. The armistice came a day or two before his unit was to be shipped to France.

HONOR DR. EMANUEL BARUCH

His Relief Work for Germany and Austria Praised at Dinner.

Dr. Emanuel Baruch, organizer of relief work for Germany and Austria, was praised at a testimonial dinner last night at the Liederkranz Club, 111-119 West Fifty-eighth Street. It was the largest social gathering of German and Austro-Americans since the German Bazaar in 1916. Many city officials also attended the dinner, among them Borough President Henry H. Curran and Dr. Royal S. Copeland.

The affair was under the auspices of members of the New York Committee for the Relief of Suffering Germany and Austria, of which Dr. Baruch is Chairman.

From French Lick Springs, Ind., Governor Smith wrote regretting his inability to attend the dinner. He would like to congratulate Dr. Baruch, the Governor wrote, for his great work for the relief of the sick and distressed. Mayor Hylan, in his letter of regret, wrote:

"Victory having come to our arms, America has much to be thankful for. We cannot close our eyes to the cries of little children and the thousands who, innocent of any wrong, now face hunger and distress amid the ruins of their civilization. To the open heart of America the gaunt fingers of millions of the world's oppressed extend for charity and justice."

A book of testimonials was presented to Dr. Baruch by the members of the committee, and he was lauded in many speeches, not alone for his work of relief, but for his attainments as a physician, and his prominence in science and the field of music.

In his reply to the addresses Dr. Baruch told of the work still to be done for the starving children of Germany and Austria.

Dr. Emanuel de Marnay Baruch was born in San Francisco Feb. 22, 1870, the son of Myron De M. and Elizabeth Fourman Baruch. He was graduated from the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Columbia, in 1889, and from the University of Tubingen, Germany, in 1891. He studied at the Universities of Munich, Berlin and Paris. He is a member of many medical organizations and has written articles on medical subjects.

ADMITS STRIKING RIVAL.

Lehigh Man Aggressor in Dressing Room Fight, Says Official.

Special to The New York Times.

BETHLEHEM, Pa., Nov. 21.—The Lafayette College authorities today requested H. R. Reiter, head of the Physical Education Department of Lehigh, for a statement to clear up the distorted rumors and determine the actual facts in connection with the clash between Tackle Williams of the Lafayette team and Tackle Maginnes of the Lehigh team in which Williams suffered a cut on the lip. The clash took place in the Lafayette gymnasium after the game yesterday.

The statement by Reiter is as follows:

"I have been requested by a representative of the Lafayette team to make a statement relative to the regrettable incident that took place after the Lafayette-Lehigh game between Maginnes, right tackle on the Lehigh eleven, and Williams, left tackle on the Lafayette team. After the game I was in the gymnasium in the dressing room of the Lehigh team helping to look after the injuries of our boys. Besides the players there were a number of Lehigh students in the room. I was opposite the main entrance when I saw a commotion in the opposite side of the room. Hurrying to the spot, I saw Williams bleeding with a cut over the lip. His statement, which upon inquiry was verified by those standing around, was that he was struck by Maginnes. Maginnes who was dressing, was then twenty-five feet away from Williams. I asked him why he struck Williams.

"He replied in substance, 'I had sustained dirty treatment from Williams in the game and what I did is the result of how I feel.' Mr. Keady, Mr. Pazzetti and myself after some endeavor persuaded Maginnes to meet Williams, who was still in the room, and shake hands. This act took place in my presence and apparently the breach was healed, at least on the surface."

2 ARE KILLED, 5 HURT IN AUTO ACCIDENTS

Young Woman Suffers Fractured Skull When Thrown From Skidding Car.

TRAIN KILLS TRUCK DRIVER

He Is Crushed Beneath Overturned Machine—Unidentified Man Is Run Down.

Miss Margaret Johnson, 20 years old, of 236 East Eighty-sixth Street, died yesterday in Fordham Hospital of a fractured skull, following an automobile accident in City Road near Shore Road, the Bronx, early in the morning. Miss Johnson suffered her fatal injuries when she was thrown from an automobile which skidded and struck a telegraph pole. Salvatore Guglielenni, driver and owner of the automobile, was slightly injured.

Jeremiah Sachman, 28 years old, of 340 East Eighty-sixth Street, Manhattan, was killed when an automobile truck he was driving was struck by a Lehigh and Hudson freight train at Great Meadows, N. J. Sachman, who was on his way from Pennsylvania to New York with a load of non-alcoholic beer, jumped as the locomotive hit the truck, and was pinned underneath the overturned machine. His helper escaped uninjured.

Leon Friedman, 12 years old, of 525 East 145th Street, the Bronx, was thrown from the running board of an automobile driven by Edward Atwell of 322 East 153d Street at East 146th Street and St. Ann's Avenue. He was taken to Lebanon Hospital with a laceration of the scalp and internal injuries, and was reported to be in a serious condition.

Susan Schalkhan of 510 Jackson Avenue, the Bronx, was bruised and cut about the face when the side car of a motorcycle, in which she was riding, was struck by an automobile at Canal and Lafayette Streets.

Harry Katz, 10 years old, of 603 Sixth Street, was hit by an automobile while roller skating at Seventh Street and Avenue B. He escaped with minor cuts and bruises.

An unidentified man about 50 years old was knocked down by an automobile at Second Avenue and East Twenty-third Street and was removed unconscious to St. Mark's Hospital with a possible fracture of the skull. The man is about 5 feet 5 inches in height and weighs about 150 pounds. He has a gray mustache and hair. He wore a brown suit, dark blue overcoat, brown hosiery and tan shoes.

John Weber, 7 years old, of 53 East 102d Street, was hit by an automobile driven by Charles Galets of 225 West 115th Street at Madison Avenue and East 103d Street. He was taken to Mount Sinai Hospital with a fractured

SOFT COAL OUTPUT BIG.

12,000,000 Tons in Week of Nov. 13—More Anthracite Mined.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—More than 12,000,000 tons of bituminous coal were produced in the United States during the week ended Nov. 13, the Geological Survey estimated today in its weekly report. Had it not been that many miners were idle on Armistice Day, a production record for the year probably would have been made.

The soft coal output thus far this year is placed at 476,000,000,000 tons, which is less than the production during the same period in 1918 by 38,000,000 year is placed at 476,000,000 tons, ahead of the total for the first 270 working days of 1919.

Comparison of this year's output with that of the last two years does not signify much because of dissimilar conditions, the survey stated. It was more significant to note, the report said, that the requirements were large and production about equaled consumption.

Anthracite production during the week ended Nov. 13, the survey estimated, was 1,753,000 tons, compared with 1,415,000 tons for the preceding week.

PLANS LAID TO BLOCK LOCKWOOD INQUIRY

Hylan's Good Faith Suspected.

Counsel to the committee were surprised at the announcement of Mayor Hylan that instead of the plan suggested by Mr. Untermyer the city would have an independent investigation to start at once. There was no objection by the committee to a city investigation, but it was thought desirable to postpone it until the Lockwood Committee had completed its inquiry. In the meantime the plan, as outlined to the Board of Estimate, called for the city's submission of the names of contractors and sub-contractors to the Lockwood Committee and when building combines were unearthed by the committee, the evidence along this line implicating the individual contractors would be turned over to the city, according to the plan.

Mr. Untermyer also put forward a plan designed to protect contractors and their employes and to permit the city's work under contract to go on pending the inquiry. The contractor, he suggested, instead of permitting 15 per cent. of his contract price to be retained by the city to await the final approval of his work would permit the retention of 25 per cent. This concession would not affect him materially, as arrangements would be made with his bank to tide him over until the money was returned. At the same time it was Mr. Untermyer's idea that the contractor should be asked to sign a stipulation that the payments being made to him by the city in no way endangered the city's right to bring action for a rebate in the event that it was found that the contractor had acted in collusion with others in making his bid.

Mr. Untermyer's suggestions were received with favor by the Board of Aldermen, and at the suggestion of Borough President Edward Riegelman of Brooklyn it was decided to have Corporation Counsel O'Brien confer with Mr. Untermyer on the matter and to bring the matter in more perfect form to the attention of the committee.

No sooner did Mr. Untermyer leave the meeting of the Board of Estimate than a resolution was adopted for a separate city investigation, which Mr. Untermyer subsequently referred to as "farcical."

School Contracts Come First.

The first contracts to be examined by the Board of Estimate will be the city's school contracts. Controller Charles L. Craig has furnished to Mr. Untermyer a list of the contractors and sub-contractors at work on the city schools. In going over the list Mr. Untermyer discovered that a large number of the limestone, heating and ventilating contractors, plumbing contractors and other material men were members of John T. Hettrick's "Code of Practice," by means of which bids were regulated. This information the lawyer turned over to the committee, and it will be used as a basis for the city's investigation. Contracts for $12,000,000 of supplies are under suspicion.

Corporation Counsel O'Brien says that in spite of Mr. Untermyer's desires the city's investigation will go on and witnesses will be examined without fear or favor in an endeavor to run down fraud and collusion among contractors on city work.

It was reported yesterday that papers were in preparation for civil suits to aggregate hundreds of thousands of dollars which will soon be brought in the Supreme Court on behalf of members of William Zaranko's union of house wreckers. The suits will be directed at certain house-wrecker bosses said to have been favored by Robert P. Brindell, indicted head of the Building Trades Council. Testimony before the Lockwood Committee has disclosed that half a dozen wrecker bosses were friendly to Brindell, who used his great power with builders to swing contracts their way.

One source of Brindell's power, it was said, was his hold on builders because he could order a strike of all the men at any time on a building in the course of erection. Using his power, Brindell organized an "outlaw" union of house wreckers and forced builders to give contracts to house wreckers employing his men, who were not experienced wreckers, but who were recruited from the ranks of waiters, prizefighters, marine and dock workers and other trades.

Since Brindell tightened his grip on the building industry last Spring the old house wreckers have been unable to obtain employment and many, according to Zaranko, have gone to work on farms and have drifted to other occupations while some have been unable to obtain a livelihood for their families unles they paid Brindell's Council $50 each for "initiation" cards in the new house wreckers' organization as well as $10 a week for the "privilege" of working at their trade. It is on behalf of these men that suits will soon be begun. Papers are now in the process of preparation, and the charge against the defendants will be conspiracy to deprive the plaintiffs of their livelihood.

Zaranko's protests to Samuel Gompers and the American Federation of Labor against Brindell's tactics in forming a union, of house wreckers contrary to the rules of the Building Trades Department of the Federation, have been unavailing. No action against Brindell has yet been taken by John Donlin, head of the Building Trades Department, who threatened a month ago to revoke the Building Trades Council's charter if it did not oust an "outlaw" painters' union welcomed by Brindell into his organization.

TENANT WINS 48-HOUR FIGHT.

Mrs. F. R. Rice Gains Possession of Apartment After Controversy.

For forty-eight hours prior to yesterday afternoon Mrs. F. R. Rice of Washington, D. C., and a member of a prominent Virginia family, did not know whether the apartment which she rented at 204 West Eighty-sixth Street would come into her possession or whether she would be homeless. Her furniture, in several dozen crates, was delivered at the Eighty-sixth Street house on Friday, and when the Superintendent, Philip Anderson, refused to permit it to be taken to Mrs. Rice's apartment on the fifth floor it was placed on the sidewalk, and there it remained through Friday and Saturday nights.

On Nov. 12 Mrs. Rice paid a deposit of $10 on the apartment to F. R. Wood of 128 West Seventy-second Street. Wood is agent for the Kemah Corporation, which in turn is agent for Frederick Lewis.

When Mrs. Rice reached the apartment house on Friday she was informed that she could not have the apartment, as the house was about to be transferred by Mr. Lewis to the Century Holding Corporation.

Dr. Charles Gillman, head of the Federation of Professions and Business and one of the tenants, heard of Mrs. Rice's plight, with the result that Jerome Jacobs, a lawyer, advised Mrs. Rice that she had a right to the apartment. At midnight Saturday Mrs. Rice's moving men began to carry her furniture up to her apartment on the fifth floor.

An hour and a half later, according to Dr. Gillman, the Superintendent pulled the switch out of the elevator and put it out of commission. Mrs. Rice threatened to have the police arrest any one who interfered with her, and late yesterday afternoon the last of her household possessions were placed in her apartment.

According to Dr. Gillman, the tenants in the house received notices that they were expected to vacate their apartments on Oct. 1. When the new rent laws were enacted the tenants remained and the owners compromised on a 10 per cent. increase in rent, he said.

SHIPPING GRAFTERS TO BE HUNTED DOWN

"It is a general statement of policy," he said, "relative to the investigation which is being made and the charges that there has been graft, dishonesty, &c., in the Shipping Board, and I indicate clearly what my attitude is now and what it will be as long as I am connected with the Shipping Board.

"Of course, I have not come here to confess my qualification, and I want you gentlemen to please understand that and bear this in mind, as I was telling Mr. Laue, Publicity Director of the Shipping Board, this morning, as he knew somewhat in detail, that for four years I was the State District Attorney in the city and county of Milwaukee, at the time of the graft crusade in the United States, and I was engaged in the prosecution of public officials.

Has Had Varied Experience.

"Of course, you know that Milwaukee has 500,000 people and I have had varied experience during that period in the prosecution of such cases, involving not only legislators and supervisors and police officials and men occupying fiduciary relations, whether it be that of State, county or city.

"After finishing that experience I retired to practice a while, and was appointed by Mr. Taft to be United States Attorney, in which office I served for a period of five years, and the reason that my confirmation was held up by Senator La Follette was that, while we belong to the same political party, we were not friends, and he fought my confirmation and held it up for a period of eleven months and—at the end of that confirmation—four years from and after the confirmation period.

"I then went into that office and served a full term of four years. During this time I was very actively engaged in the prosecution of the violation of Federal statutes and became quite familiar with the Federal law, and after I served out my term, because of my familiarity with that class of prosecution and my acquaintance with the different judicial matters, I was appointed Special Assistant Attorney General. I was telling Mr. Laue this merely as an indicative background; that was the reason I felt like issuing this statement."

Colonel Goff added that, while he considered it his duty to prosecute any one where the facts showed a prima facie case of guilt, he would not under any circumstances attempt a prosecution based upon rumor, suspicion or mere surmise.

BOLLING ASKS TO BE HEARD.

Telegraphs to Walsh That Sands's Charges Are Untrue.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—R. W. Bolling, Treasurer of the United States Shipping Board, tonight sent a telegram to Chairman Walsh of the special committee denying the charges of Mr. Sands, made in testimony in the Shipping Board investigation, and asking to be heard. Mr. Bolling's telegram follows:

"A witness appearing before your committee at New York on Saturday stated that I had a financial interest with him and others in a shipping contract procured through my influence or intervention with the United States Shipping Board. Every part of Mr. Sands's statement is unqualifiedly false and without the slightest foundation in fact.

"My every transaction with Mr. Sands before his indictment and while he was Vice President of the Commercial National Bank, whose affairs he has been charged with unlawfully manipulating, was open and honorable in every way, and in no way connected with any branch of the Government of the United States. The statements made by Mr. Sands before your committee are the attempts of an embittered man to destroy my reputation and standing in the community because I refused to use my personal relationship with the President of the United States to save him from an indictment.

"My every transaction with Mr. Sands was honorable and legitimate in every way and only a dishonest man would seek to twist and distort its purpose.

"In justice to myself I therefore most respectfully ask your committee to make full and thorough inquiry into these charges and to give me the earliest opportunity to make full and complete answer to these base and malicious innuendos."

DOWNEY WANTS TO TESTIFY.

Repeats Denial That Bribe Was Paid to Get Shipping Board Contract

Wallace Downey, President of the Downey Shipbuilding Corporation, yesterday repeated his denial that his company had paid a bribe to obtain a contract from the United States Shipping Board, as Tucker K. Sands, former Washington bank cashier, declared in his testimony before the Congressional Select Committee on United States Shipping Board operations on Saturday. Mr. Downey said he had not as yet received a reply from Congressman Joseph Walsh, Chairman of the committee, to his telegram requesting that he and other officers of the company be subpoenaed. For that reason, he said, he considered it inadvisable to amplify his denial, inasmuch as he hoped to be able to do so in testimony.

Congressman Walsh and the others of the committee had left town yesterday and will not be back until after Thanksgiving, adjournment having been taken until Friday morning at 10 o'clock. Mr. Downey said he considered it unfortunate that a delay must elapse before he could receive an opportunity to testify.

"It is too bad that muck rakers can make such a mess," he said, "but I don't know what can be done except to wait for an official opportunity to tell the truth about the transaction."

DR. WISE LECTURES JEWISH PARENTS

PLEADS FOR A REVIVAL

Refutation of Henry Ford Less Important Than Training Youth in Religion.

"The refutation of Henry Ford and the Dearborn Independent is vastly less important than the revival by the Jews of their own faith," said Dr. Wise last night at the annual dinner of the Temple Israel of Harlem, held at the Hotel Astor.

Dr. Wise added that thousands of Jews in New York were neglecting the education of their children in the faith of their fathers.

"Tens of thousands of them," he said, "are not even Jews in name. They are for the most part a liability to the Jews."

Dr. Wise spoke of the movement by certain Presbyterians to convert Jews to the Christian faith. "We are not to be disturbed," he said, "if some Presbyterians attempt to convert the Jews. I am concerned, however, with 'un-Jewishness' in New York. There were more reform synagogues in New York in my youth than there are today. Our business is not to argue with those who would convert us, but with the thousands, the tens of thousands, who are selling their birthright for a mess of pottage. After we have given our children keys to well-stuffed deposit vaults we cheat and rob them of their spiritual heritage. There are 50,000 Jewish families between Fiftieth Street and 120th Street, and I dare say not 10 per cent. of them are supporters of synagogues."

Dr. Wise told of a letter sent out to Jewish students in American universities by a Hebrew organization to which one-half sent a reply requesting that such communications be not sent to them. "We are in danger," he said, "of becoming a bookless, Godless, Sabbathless people."

Daniel P. Hays, President of the congregation, spoke on the same theme.

"Why do we flock to other places?" he asked, "when we realize that the fundamentals of Judaism present the finest moral and ethical thought? Is it because we grow fat in this world that we knock at the doors for social recognition where we are not wanted?"

"Anti-Semitism was never more broadly expressed than it is today. Last year when the Christians launched a great drive they talked of converting the Jews, and some of our rabbis went to the committee and asked them why they did this, and the answer that they had to listen to was: 'What are you people doing to educate your own children religiously?' The only way to combat anti-Semitism is to convert the Jews back to Judaism."

Part of the evening was devoted to discussion of plans for a new synagogue.

ART MUSEUM GETS $5,000.

Jacques Seligman Sends Check When He Hears Institution's Need.

The recent announcement that the Metropolitan Museum of Art needed funds has brought a gift of $5,000 from Jacques Seligman of Paris and New York, Robert W. De Forest, President of the Museum announced yesterday. Mr. Seligman's check was accompanied by a letter in which he said that on his arrival from Paris after a visit in France he learned of the Museum's need and wanted to come to its aid.

"I believe I am justified in saying that your great museum is not only of local but of national importance," Mr. Seligman wrote. "I will even go further and say that the Metropolitan Museum, having become one of the important museums of the world, it is hoped that foreigners who are constant visitors in this country and especially my countrymen who during the war have learned to appreciate and love their American brothers in arms will not hesitate to give the Metropolitan Museum their hearty and financial support."

NEW COUNTERFEIT $10 NOTE

Treasury Department In Warning Calls It Work of Amateur.

The Secret Service Division of the Treasury has issued a warning regarding a new counterfeit $10 Federal Reserve note, described as follows:

"On the Federal Reserve Bank of Kansas City, Missouri; check letter 'B'; W. G. McAdoo, Secretary of the Treasury; John Burke, Treasurer of the United States; portrait of Jackson.

"This counterfeit is printed from photographic plates, and is clearly the work of an amateur. The bill is about a half inch shorter than the genuine, and the face is brown instead of black, and the back blue instead of green. The number of the specimen at hand is J7509902A. It is a poor counterfeit."

FIND GOODS NOT MOVING.

Senate Investigators Report Falling Markets for Agricultural Surplus.

NEW ORLEANS, Nov. 21.—Senator Calder of New York, Chairman, and other members of the Senate Committee on Reconstruction left New Orleans tonight for Birmingham, where they will conclude their investigations of the building industry and general housing conditions. During the last two weeks the committee has visited Cleveland, Chicago, Des Moines, Omaha, Denver, Kansas City, St. Louis, Memphis and New Orleans.

"The committee has found a failing market for surplus animal and agricultural products," said Senator Calder in a statement issued here, "but the recent falling prices do not seem to be moving the goods. Among the hundreds of business men whom I have interviewed during the last two weeks there are few indeed who do not realize the necessity of deflation and lower prices; but all realize that stagnation of business will have a most unfavorable effect upon housing and unemployment."

SHIP PASSENGER'S FUR COAT SEIZED

Cleveland Manufacturer Failed to Declare It, Thinking He Had Right to Do So.

HIS BAGGAGE IS DETAINED

When the Customs officials on duty yesterday morning at the Cunard Pier were examining the baggage of the cabin passengers who arrived on the Caronia from Cherbourg and London, they noticed that G. C. Bardons, a manufacturer of Cleveland, had on a handsome fur coat which looked quite new and was not mentioned in his declaration. A diamond ring was found in the pocket of the overcoat and a quantity of lace was found among his baggage, also undeclared.

Both Mr. Bardons and his brother, C. A. Bardons, of Hartford, Conn., were permitted to take their hand baggage with them after it had been examined, but the remainder was held by the appraisers' warehouse for further examination today.

C. A. Bardons said later at the hotel that his brother was indisposed, but that the matter of his baggage being seized was not serious. He had merely brought over some personal effects which he had purchased for his own use, without declaring them, believing that he had a perfect right to bring them. The brother added that the matter would be taken up with the customs today.

Among those in the first cabin was Colonel H. E. S. Cordeaux, C. B., C. M. G., the newly appointed Governor General of the Bahamas on his way to his post at Nassau, accompanied by his wife and stepdaughter, Miss Iva Dundas, Lady Ada Fitzwilliam, Captain J. Baring and Captain Arthur Lowther, son of the Speaker of the House of Commons in London. The party will sail for the Bahamas on the Ward Line steamship Esperanza on Dec. 2.

Another passenger on the Caronia was Mrs. A. G. Kaplan, wife of the State Senator of the Fifteenth Senatorial District, who has been abroad all Summer. She went to investigate conditions in Europe which had to do with the Jewish question, and spent her time mostly in Great Britain and Italy.

The Right Hon. Viscount Exmouth was also a passenger, coming to visit friends in this country.

New Company Expects to Operate Denver and Rio Grande Soon.

Special to The New York Times.

DENVER, Nov. 21.—"The first consideration of the new owners of the Denver & Rio Grande," said John F. Bowie of New York today concerning the sale of the road and its future plans, "will be the expenditure of approximately $12,000,000 for putting the property in first class shape, and in the purchase of new equipment, including power.

"This will include new machine shops at a cost of upward of $3,000,000, and the ballasting of tracks.

"Under the reorganization plan the Rio Grande and the operating company will have another name. Both the holding and operating companies will be independent of the Western Pacific holding and operating companies.

"It is the purpose to adhere strictly to the policy of the open door to the lines east of Denver. We will contract no alliances with Eastern lines and the Rio Grande will be free to accept and deliver traffic equally to all other lines, except, of course, there will be a tendency to favor the Western Pacific on through business to and from the Pacific Coast.

"We expect to have the new company in active operation within less than sixty days."

STRIKE IN NEWFOUNDLAND.

Dock Workers, Demanding More Pay, Refuse to Unload Coal.

ST. JOHN'S, N. F., Nov. 21.—The unloading of coal for the use of the Newfoundland Railway has been delayed by strikes of dock workers in support of demands for higher wages. The steamer Lingan started unloading her cargo of coal at Clarenville, on Trinity Bay, on Friday, but only a small amount had been taken off before the men engaged in the work went on strike.

According to the authorities the strikers prevented other workmen from taking their places. Police officers were sent to the port from this city to prevent disorders. Yesterday the steamer proceeded to Heart's Content, but when an attempt was made to unload the coal the dock workers there also struck.

Huge Hardshells From Costa Rica Will Furnish Thanksgiving Soup.

The United Fruit steamship Toloa arrived yesterday from Port Limon, Costa Rica, with forty large turtles, weighing from 200 to 300 pounds each, which are intended for Thanksgiving Day soup. The hardshelled fish, as they are termed in the trade, were taken great care of on the voyage up the coast and kept in wooden troughs filled with salt water on the forward deck.

After three days on their backs the turtles were turned over and arrived at Pier 15, East River, yesterday in the best of health.

PRIEST SAYS CHURCH IS BEHIND LABOR

Father Cronin, at Paulist Meeting, Calls "Open Shop" a Violation of Americanism.

UNIONS NECESSARY, HE SAYS

Declares "Capitalists" Steal the Fruits of Workers — Many Protestants Present.

A congregation that included many Protestants at the vespers service at the Paulist Fathers Church, Sixtieth Street and Columbus Avenue, last night heard a sermon by the Rev. Father James Cronin on the "closed or open shop."

"The supreme being on earth," he said, "is the human being. That is a statement that neither capitalist nor working man will contradict. I say that because of this fact—men, judged simply as human beings, are on the same plane. Therefore, we can start on the closed or open shop problem with some sort of basis—that of the equality of all men as men.

"Now, I ask you, especially those of you who are not Catholics, how can one man fairly order the lives of 30,000 men, women and children without those families having a say in the matter? He cannot. Very well. How are the working people to assert themselves? They must argue this way: In order to keep the home safe, a living wage must be obtained; to obtain the living wage, unionism is absolutely necessary; and to safeguard unionism, you must have the closed shop. There is nothing else for it."

"It comes to this. It is a case of unions or no unions. In Russia capitalistic autocracy has been killed; in England today naval autocracy is supreme; and here in the United States industrial autocracy still holds the working man in the grip of graft and poverty and all that poverty brings with it. (The labor unions have a right to insist on the closed shop; without it, the unions might as well not exist. They do exist to see that every man gets a fair wage, and the chance to live and keep his family decently, and the Catholic Church stands firmly behind them in their endeavor. I believe that if the employers refuse to grant what is right and fair labor can and must use force to bring them to their senses.)

"It may be that labor has taken what does not belong to it at some time or other; but how much more has capitalism stolen the results of labor and the fruits of the factory which only the sweat of the brow can produce? Where labor has stolen a dollar, capitalism has robbed to the extent of thousands of dollars. The open shop is a violation of Americanism; the closed shop will help to bring about the Americanism which belongs to a truly free nation."

GARY DENIES ART DISPUTE.

Asserts Genuineness of His Fragonards Was Never Questioned.

Judge Elbert H. Gary, Chairman of the Board of Directors of the United States Steel Corporation, denied last night that any question had been raised as to the genuineness of any of the Fragonard paintings in his collection, as was reported in a Paris journal and afterward widely discussed in art circles here. The report that two of the Fragonards had been returned by Judge Gary was also denied.

Le Cousin Pons, a sprightly journal of Paris, stated in a recent issue: "It is said that Judge Gary, President of the Steel Association, profited by his last voyage to France by preventing the sale of the last Fragonards he had purchased of M. Wildenstein.'

In art circles here it was reported that the matter of the Fragonards in dispute had been settled out of court. When he was told of this report Judge Gary said that there was nothing to it.

The report from Paris recalls the announcement made about three years ago that Judge Gary had acquired for his collection from four to six panels of Fragonard, the French master, for $500,000, although the first report mentioned $300,000 as the price paid for the pictures. The Fragonard panels include piquant figures in pastoral setting and are of unusual beauty.

Police Lieut. W. B. Gilhooly Dies.

Police Lieutenant William B. Gilhooly of the staff of Deputy Commissioner John J. Cray, was found unconscious yesterday morning in the corridor of the apartment house at 477 West 143d Street, by his nephew, A. C. Cuneen, who lives with Gilhooly and his sister. An examination at Columbia Hospital disclosed that the police officer had a compound fracture of the skull. He died there last night. It is thought that he fell down stairs during an attack of vertigo.

Housing Emergency?

LET the official records of the U. S. Census and of the Tenement House and Building Departments of the City of New York answer the question:

From 1910 to 1920 the population of Greater New York increased 853,165 persons.

From 1910 to 1920 there was a NET INCREASE of 171,540 flats and apartments completed in Greater New York, accommodating approximately 857,500 persons.

From 1910 to 1920 there was a NET INCREASE of 20,000 one- and two-family houses in the City of New York (Brooklyn and Queens estimated), accommodating more than 100,000 persons.

None of the new hotel, apartment hotel or "non-housekeeping" apartments, accommodating many additional thousands, is included in the foregoing figures.

Where was the "Emergency" that necessitated the recent Rent Laws?

NEW YORK CENTRAL LINES

In the Dining-Car

THE dining-cars of the New York Central Lines are not run for profit. They exist solely for the convenience and comfort of travelers. The greatest care is exercised in the selection of the food. No big hotel could be more particular in this regard.

As you take your seat and order your meal, have you ever stopped to consider that you are but one of 10,726 persons served every day on these Lines? That twenty years of thought and effort and planning stand behind the serving of this single luncheon or dinner?

This dining-car service, concentrated under one roof would, in itself, constitute a problem; but, scattered over a territory embracing twelve thousand miles or more, it represents a responsibility of even greater magnitude.

DID you know that the New York Central Lines purchase 2,015,000 pounds of meat a year for consumption in their diners? That there are 154 dining-cars like that in which you are riding, and that this number is being rapidly increased? Twelve new dining-cars will soon be completed and in use. These cars cost approximately $46,000 each—an investment which would make possible quite a commodious night-and-day city restaurant.

The number of waiters who serve the traveling public on these Lines is 884, and in the course of a year 42,993 bushels of potatoes are bought; 235,392 pounds of butter; 720,000 loaves of bread; 365,475 pounds of chicken; 371,193 pounds of sugar; and 324,060 dozen eggs.

In the compact kitchens are 651 busy cooks. And the unbelievable sum of 14,076,108 pieces of linen are laundered every year.

EVERY employee in our dining-cars is physically examined at the time of his engagement and at stated intervals thereafter, and must pass exacting tests.

CHICAGO HOLDS 742 IN RAIDS ON CRIME

Police Assert They Have Rounded Up 400 With Records in Drive to Clean City.

GET 2 WANTED FOR MURDER

Dragnet Brings In Escaped Convicts, Pickpockets, Bandits and Many Gamblers.

Special to The New York Times.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—One of the greatest drives on crime in the history of Chicago has been in progress for the last twenty-four hours, and is continuing with vigor. At 6 o'clock tonight there were 742 persons under arrest. Of these Michael Hughes, Chief of Detectives, declared there were over 400 with criminal records.

Extra men were detailed to the Identification Bureau this morning to aid in the work of checking up. Of the first 171 so checked up, 37 had criminal records. Two of these are wanted for murder. Several of the others are escaped convicts, pickpockets and highwaymen wanted by the police.

As a result of the police drive, crime reports for the last twenty-four hours were meagre. There were but three hold-ups, compared with twenty during the same period a week ago.

The zero hour for the drive was at 11 o'clock Saturday night. Then Chief Fitzmorris and Chief of Detectives Hughes assembled nearly 100 detectives. They were given their instructions. The city was divided into districts and each place to be raided was marked out. Each squad of detectives received a definite assignment.

At midnight the prisoners began to come in. One of the first places raided was the smoke shop at Erie and Clark Street. There eighty-five men were arrested and several card and dice tables, gambling paraphernalia and considerable sums of money seized. The gambling house of Izzy Lazarus was the next to report. Three roulette wheels and layouts, valued at $10,000, were taken, together with many patrons of the place.

By daylight the mopping-up process had begun. There were 420 prisoners at the detective bureau alone, and 300 additional at police stations all over the city. As soon as the news of the drive got about the city the parade of "political fixers" to the detective bureau and Chief Fitzmorris's office began.

"I'll just say this," remarked the Chief, "we're doing just what the Mayor wants to do—clean up this town. As to the release of these men, you'll have to talk to Chief of Detectives Hughes. What business have I got butting in when I've got men like Hughes to handle this affair?"

Hughes, who was present, blushed.

"As far as I am concerned," he said a moment later, "I've been ordered to check up on all of the men I've got. I'm going to do it. We've got a force of men over at the Identification Bureau working on the cases.

"Those who have no crime records will be booked tonight or early tomorrow morning and will come up in court tomorrow. Those who have criminal records won't be booked. I'm going to hang onto them until hell freezes over, that's all."

CHICAGO, Nov. 21 (Associated Press).—Scores of gambling houses, many in the sections populated by Chicago's society, were raided, and Chief of Detectives Hughes tonight said that more than $1,000,000 was being wagered in the places visited.

One person taken was "Nick the Greek" Dandos, an alleged gambler. He had nearly $350,000 inside his shirt, police said. Dandos is known as the most reckless gambler in Chicago, the police declared. He was mentioned in connection with the investigation into the 1919 world series baseball scandal, it being reported he borrowed $4,000 from a New York gambler and won nearly $100,000.

HEAD OF COMPANY HELD.

J. Filmore Cox Rearrested on Embezzlement Charge.

J. Filmore Cox of 36 Edwards Court, Bayonne, President of the Cox Automatic Pipe Bending Company, a Bayonne corporation now in the hands of a receiver, was arrested yesterday on two charges, alleging embezzlement. The warrants were issued on application of Matthew T. Cronin, Treasurer of the Cox company, and former Mayor of Bayonne.

According to the complaint, Cox is accused of having twice diverted payments to the company to his own use. The first charge against him dealt with a check for $1,269 from the American Shipbuilding Company of Philadelphia, and the second count concerned a check from the same corporation drawn in the sum of $4,039. Three months ago Cox was arrested on similar charges, and when rearrested was out on $2,500 bail. He has been indicted by the Grand Jury.

Last night he was locked up in Bayonne Police Headquarters, where he was endeavoring to obtain $10,000 bail. Announcement was made that a public sale of the plant's machinery would be held on Nov. 29.

SAYS HE SHOT YOUTH.

Police Arrest Clerk After His Fight With Gang.

Louis Merlino, 20 years old, a clerk, living at 135 West 108th Street, was locked up in the West 100th Street Station last night, following a fight on the roof of his home, in which John O'Brien, 17, of 69 West 100th Street received a fractured skull and a bullet wound in his right temple.

Merlino told the police that the fight had been started by O'Brien and four companions, who came up on the roof, where Merlino was looking at some pigeons. According to Merlino's story, the five youths assaulted him and chased him down to his apartment. While he was fixing a cut over his left eye, he said, his sister, Louise, went up on the roof. "I heard her scream," he told the police, "and then I went up with a 22-calibre Winchester rifle and fired blindly."

The police are searching for O'Brien's companions.

These Mid-November Days

are working great changes upon the face of Nature.

The blessed trees, all so dearly loved, have exchanged their garments of green for flimsy scarfs that hang loosely on their shoulders and are easily thrust aside when the Wintry winds start a frolic or a concert of colors.

The only staid and sober fellows of the forests are the brotherhood of pines, the cedars, spruce and hemlock.

They remain the same all through the Winter and Summer with their girdles of emerald to gladden hungry.

But these Autumn days bring much that dear mothers and sisters love to do to swell the home rejoicings of families all together again by the making of happy Thanksgiving time and preparing surprises for Christmas coming so soon.

AU QUATRIEME

ANTIQUES AT HALF THE PRICE

It is not surprising, and newspaper reports attest the fact, that where comparisons can be made the antiques in the collection Au Quatrieme are generally selling at lower prices than at the auctions of last week. For example:

Small Italian peasant chairs are quoted as selling for $60 and $65. They can be bought here in this sale for $30.

A large oak arm chair of the Elizabethan period with panelled back and scrolled arms is quoted as selling for $330. Half a dozen of these chairs, as nearly as possible like this one in design, are here on the Floor of Antiques at the regular price of $250.

An inlaid walnut double chest of the William and Mary period is quoted as selling for $420. A fine one just arrived from England with oak sides and walnut front, original handles is selling here for $350.

Walnut Queen Anne side tables, commonly called "lowboys," are quoted as selling for $340 and $260. Good examples may be found here at $112.50 and $125.

It is a fact that very few individual purchasers know the market value of antiques. They must depend largely upon the counsel of the dealer who sells to them or upon their own trained knowledge.

It is not to be expected that antiques will be lower in price. They are not like the ordinary commodities of the day, and the number of genuine pieces will never increase. But the necessity for space sometimes forces us to release things that we would prefer to keep.

We are making room now for the 2,000 pieces coming from a Venetian Palace the first of the year.

Some of the particularly fine and inexpensive pieces:

French Regence walnut canape with eight legs; the curved ends and the seat have the original cane. 325.00, was 650.00.

Set of Directoire walnut settee, four fauteuils and one bergere made and signed by Jacob, the great furniture maker in the time of Louis XVI and the Directoire period. These pieces are very simple in line, and are covered with striped material which is a reproduction of an old Directoire stuff. 800.00 set six, were 1600.00.

YALE DEDICATES WAR MEMORIAL

ADDRESS BY H. L. STIMSON

Exhorts College Men to Keep Faith in Mission of America to Shattered World.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 21.—Yale's war memorial tablets in Woolsey Hall were today dedicated with impressive ceremonies, chief among which were an address by Henry L. Stimson, Yale, '88, formerly Secretary of War, and a poem written by William Rose Benet, class of '07, Sheffield Scientific School.

"We are not here today to mourn the dead," said Mr. Stimson. "Nothing would so shock the devoted and exultant spirit of their service. We are here to set aside a memorial by which it is our hope that future generations of Yale may be aroused to an emulation of their spirit and their endeavor.

"Keep ye the faith with them: faith in our country; faith in our country's men; faith in the mission of America to a shattered world."

The last stanza of Mr. Benet's poem read:

In a far earthquake land and ruinous
Their bodies fell, their minds through us made sure
Of sacrifice as a new world's foundation.
They have fulfilled their bond. It lies with us
Through deeds—not words—to show if they endure
A living light, the spirit of a nation.

The ceremony in honor of the 225 Yale men who died in the World War and whose names have been inscribed in marble on the eight tablets was simple. In addition to the address by Mr. Stimson and the poem by Mr. Benet, the university choir sang a special anthem and President Hadley offered prayer. At the close of the service a color guard of four carried wreaths to Memorial Hall and placed them upon the memorial tablets, at the same time placing two on the Civil War memorial in the same corridor. Taps were sounded while the audience remained in the hall.

"We have met to do honor to those men of Yale who in their own persons have fulfilled the supreme duty of their university," said Mr. Stimson. "In a higher sense the war furnished to the college the goal of its existence, and the final and searching test by which its work during the past years should be judged. So long as it is the function of a university to produce leaders for service in the Commonwealth, so long as the endurance of free institutions requires sacrifice from those who would uphold them, just so long will men look to the test of war—the test of willingness to die for a cause—to see whether the university is truly fulfilling its duty to the State.

"Eighteen months before our Government declared war on Germany Yale University had organized her first artillery units. Foreseeing the need of preparation, and realizing that preparation to be effective must be intelligent, she had selected the artillery arm of the service as the one in which the present war would make the greatest demands upon educated men. Long in advance of most of the other colleges she had begun to prepare.

"After our entry into the war, and the wise adoption by the Government of the principle of universal service, Yale gradually became both a military training camp and a completely militarized university. Her faculties and laboratories turned their resources entirely over to the arts of war, and nearly all of her remaining scholars became student members of the organized military forces of the United States. Yale maintained one of the foremost artillery schools in America; she carried on a large naval training unit to commission officers for the navy; she trained officers for the Signal Corps; her chemists conducted researches for the Chemical Warfare Service; doctors and assistants were prepared here for the army hospitals and a complete hospital unit was maintained by the university in France. Practically the entire momentum of this great institution of learning was thus thrown effectively into the scales of war.

"Our recent war lasted only nineteen months; the American Government employed about the same number of men as were engaged on both sides during the Civil War. Yet during that brief time 8,000 Yale men went to the colors, of whom very nearly 5,000 became commissioned officers. This takes no account of 3,000 more who rendered war service either through the civil Government, the Red Cross or other relief agencies.

"Yale was in the First and Second Divisions, those gallant pioneers who set the standard for us all. The Yankee Division was crowded with Yale men. Yale men from Plattsburg officered the fine National Army Divisions which followed. Yale left her dead in the Marne salient, on the battlefield at St. Mihiel and in the Argonne Forest. The Yale spirit pervaded and was typical of that immense national effort, which, gathering its sources from every hamlet in our country, finally hurled an irresistible force of determined Americans against the Hindenburg line.

"Today we meet to dedicate these memorials to the 225 of these men to whom it was granted to seal their effort with their lives. Over 80 of these were chosen for that highest gift—death in action. Almost an equal number made their sacrifice by the more sad and lonely path of disease, while to the remainder death came in those inevitable accidents which constitute the road of a great nation's preparation for battle. Their crosses, dotting the battlefields of the Old World and the training camps of the New, each and all of them, mark the crestline of that American effort by which the tide of Prussian conquest was stopped and driven back. They mark the line where the liberalism of the Golden Rule was saved from the mightiest armed force that materialism has ever thrown against it. Truly the ground on which they fell is holy ground."

YOUNG BRIDE DIES BY GAS.

Police Say Family Quarrel Preceded Richmond Hill Woman's Death.

Mrs. Marjorie Moss, 21 years old, a bride of two months, was found dead from gas in the bedroom of her home in Richmond Hill, Queens, late yesterday afternoon by her father-in-law. The police, after an investigation, reported that Mrs. Moss had quarreled with her husband before going to her room.

When she failed to appear for dinner her father-in-law went to her room, which he found filled with gas and Mrs. Moss lying dead across the bed.

Take the Guess Out of Advertising

$7,000 a Page–

Will You Guess or Will You Know?

$7,000 for less than one square foot of white space? Or $7,000 for an audience of two million people?

How are you going to make that white space carry a dynamic message of your business, a message which will bring in business to keep your factory wheels turning?

It costs as much to publish the wrong message as to publish the right one. It is expensive to guess.

Street & Finney take the guess out of advertising, by methods which insure success. Pulling power is measured before the campaign is run—not afterwards.

The advertising factors that have built big business for such well-known products as Talc Jonteel, The Fleisher Yarns, and Gorton's Ready-to-Fry Cod Fish Cakes, have been reduced to a series of scientific tests, by which the pulling power of the copy is predetermined.

The manufacturer who measures his purchases by the yardstick of common-sense, and weighs them in the scales of good judgment, is the man to whom our methods will appeal.

Upon request a representative of Street & Finney will gladly furnish you with facts regarding a scientific method by which this organization takes the guess out of advertising.

FINDS ELLIS ISLAND IS POORLY EQUIPPED

Merchants' Committee Would Transfer Naturalization Process From Courts to Officials.

WANTS DISTRIBUTION BODY

Also Recommends That Language and History Knowledge Be Required of Aliens.

Transfer of the naturalization procedure from the courts to administrative officials, the inclusion of the English language and a reasonable familiarity with the history and government of the country as to naturalization requirements, and the appointment of a national commission to take up the question of distribution of immigrants, are among the recommendations made by the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization of the Merchants Association.

The committee's report, made public yesterday, says that the laws passed to safeguard our social and political welfare are sound, and recommends that emphasis, at this time, be placed not on the addition of further restrictive measures, but rather on the efficient administration of those already on the statute books.

Facilities on Ellis Island for examining and accommodating incoming foreigners are woefully inadequate, the committee finds. Sleeping quarters intended for 1,500 frequently are made to accommodate twice that number, and the staff, much too small, is constantly overworked, with a consequent impairment of efficiency, the report says.

On the question of education, the committee reports in part:

"There are in New York City alone 260,000 adult aliens who are either wholly illiterate or unable to speak the English language, and a total of probably 500,000 who can neither read nor write the English language."

While the educational work is primarily a duty of the State, in the opinion of the committee, it believes such organizations as the Merchants' Association could and should actively participate in an effort to make the State's program more effective. As the most practical method of participation, the committee suggests the organization of factory classes. The report emphasizes the importance of home, kindergarten and evening courses as ways of reaching the immigrant.

Turning to the subject of naturalization, the committee finds:

"There are in New York City today more than 700,000 unnaturalized immigrants, and throughout the country probably 12,000,000 unnaturalized immigrants. The residence here of such a vast number of people who take no direct part in the Government is distinctly unwholesome. Your committee believes that aliens should become naturalized as rapidly as they show an inclination to become citizens and are capable of appreciating the privileges and meeting the obligations of citizenship.

"Although your committee does not think it necessary to outline the entire administrative machinery requisite to carry out its recommendations, it wishes to suggest that decision in doubtful cases might well be left to boards of administrative officials, similar to the boards of special inquiry set up for this purpose in the Bureau of Immigration; or if it seemed more desirable, appeal in doubtful cases might still be taken to the courts."

Terming the distribution of immigrants a movement without guidance, the committee believes much valuable work could be done by our consuls abroad and by officials of the immigration stations here.

The members of the Committee on Immigration and Naturalization are: H. D. Warbridge, Chairman; George A. Cullen, Leopold Demuth, Gano Dunn, Louis Horowitz, William Loeb Jr., A. F. McArthur, Frank Presbrey, Felix M. Warburg, William H. Woodin and C. H. Zehnder.

A new margin of profit by packing them right

How one large textile manufacturer increased production and cut labor costs

IN the packing department of a big New England textile mill production had reached a point which meant either making a big increase in their packing-room force, or else restricting output.

And the labor cost of "setting up" the old-style solid cartons, even with unsatisfactory results, was excessive.

The manufacturer appealed to us. We made an unusual suggestion — a style of carton never attempted before for packing blankets. We recommended a folding box.

In place of the expensive packing-room staff, packaging machines were installed which required only one girl to feed, and which increased the output by 50% more than the number formerly turned out by four skilled men.

The new way, by displacing a costly hand-labor operation, secured a net saving — after allowing for all fixed charges on the machines—of 66⅔% in packaging costs.

But the biggest improvement of all was in the package itself. The old box had stayed corners, and a printed label —sometimes two — pasted on its face.

The new folding box is a complete package in itself—attractively printed in colors—carrying the message of the product direct to the consumer — a tremendous merchandising advantage.

This is but an illustration of the ingenuity and mechanical skill which the Robert Gair Company applies to the manufacture of Folding boxes, Labels, Shipping cases, Window display advertising.

Solving package problems for the leaders in every industry

We have designed packages and shipping cases for all kinds of products — toilet articles, food products, confectionery, medical dressings, inks, safety razors, vacuum cleaners, inner tubes.

Each had its packaging problem which we solved — by an ingenious device to lock the contents in its carton, a new design of a character suited to the high quality of the merchandise, a special ink to insure uniformity of color, or a guarantee of adequate resources to keep pace with large-scale production.

Because the greatest merchandisers of the country recognize this ability, more than a billion dollars' worth of merchandise was carried last year in Gair folding boxes, in Gair shipping cases, under labels made by the Robert Gair Company.

The Gair Unit Service

We control the whole process of manufacture, from wood-pulp to finished product. We operate our own paper-mills, make our own inks and glues, maintain our own art, engraving, printing, lithographing departments. Our chemistry department regulates and improves our processes and tests finished products.

Our plant is the largest of its kind in the world. With its facilities we are prepared to offer a complete service for packaging and displaying your goods — Labels, Folding boxes, Shipping cases, Window display advertising — giving unity to your product from factory to consumer.

2 CONVICTS ESCAPE AND WRECK A TRAIN

12 TO GO BACK TO ISLAND

Warden Reports Unsettled Feeling in Institution as Result of Recent Investigation.

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAMPTON, N. Y., Nov. 21.—Following a thrilling, double escape with a train-wrecking episode, officials of the New York City Reformatory at New Hampton farms announced today that twelve unruly prisoners are to be ousted from the honor institution forthwith and returned to the penitentiary.

Max Brown and J. H. O'Neil are the prisoners who escaped and are suspected by reformatory attendants of having wrecked an Erie Railroad freight train alongside the reformatory. The two convicts escaped some time Saturday night. They were last seen in a line of prisoners marching through the darkness from the school building to a bunk house to be locked in for the night.

Major Sidney Brewster, the warden, admitted that he had keepers out looking for the two fugitives, and also that he has evidence that they plotted to derail the freight train. The crew reported that a stone was placed upon the track. Brewster says that he has established that the two convicts, after slipping out of line, went to the coke pile alongside of which the freight train was derailed. Only the locomotive and one car left the rail.

"We have had complaints before," said Major Brewster, "that signals and other equipment of the railroad have been tampered with along the reformatory grounds by our inmates. The recent investigation has left our inmates in an unsettled condition," added the warden, "but everything is quiet here this afternoon."

Warden Brewster said that he is planning to return a dozen troublesome prisoners, who are incapable of education or of being reformed, to the Blackwells Island penitentiary where they can be more readily disciplined. "I'm going through the lists of inmates now," he said, "and will weed this type out."

Leon C. Weinstock, State Prison Commissioner who investigated punishments, including bread and water diet for prisoners in isolation, recommended to Warden Brewster that he return unruly culprits to the island.

LOCK 3 IN ICE BOX; ROB THEM OF $105

OVERLOOK $900 IN 2 ROLLS

Robbers Fire Two Shots Into Refrigerator to Terrify Their Victims.

Frank Ruoff, William Hempel and W. L. Van Wart of Queens, a village in the borough of that name, four miles from Jamaica, were imprisoned in the refrigerator of Ruoff's butcher shop late Saturday night by four hold-up men, who escaped after robbing Ruoff and Hempel of $105.

Ruoff's market adjoins Hempel's grocery, and Hempel was talking with Van Wart, who had just closed his dry goods store nearby, when the four men entered and drew revolvers. Ruoff came from the back of the store and was ordered to hold up his hands.

Emphasizing his command with his revolver, the leader of the thieves ordered the three merchants to enter the refrigerating room, and set one of his companions on rguard. The bandits then opened the two cash registers and took $100 from Hempel's and $5 from Ruoff's.

The robbers fired two shots through the refrigerating room, frightening the three victims so that they remained inside nearly half an hour longer. The robbers overlooked $300 which Ruoff a few minutes before had placed in an envelope and left in the cash register, and neglected to search Van Wart, who had $600 in his pocketbook.

Ruoff notified the Jamaica police, but because of the distance it was after midnight before detectives arrived to take up the trail. Ruoff, Hempel and Van Wart were unable to give a description of the four men, except that they were young and fairly well dressed.

New State Legion Treasurer.

Announcement was made yesterday by Charles G. Blakeslee, commander of the Department of New York, American Legion, of the election of H. Allister Morriss of New York City as State Treasurer of the organization. Mr. Morriss is a member of the 105th Machine Gun Battalion Post. Prior to the war he was a member of Squadron A, New York Cavalry. He was finally commissioned First Lieutenant in the infantry and served in France with the Twenty-seventh Division. He succeeds Joseph L. Seligman of 54 Wall Street.

SPANISH LABOR REVOLT.

Metal Workers Denounce Leaders' Tyranny; Will Return to Work.

SARAGOSSA, Spain, Nov. 21.—A large section of the metal workers, who have been on strike for several weeks, has decided to disobey the Syndicate leaders and return to work. These workers have issued a manifesto addressed to the other strikers, with the authorization of Governor Count Coello, declaring:

"We struck because we declined to submit to the tyranny of our employers; we are returning to work because we decline to submit to the tyranny of the Syndicalist leaders. We will not continue being playthings of a few leaders who collected enormous funds for our support, but have not distributed any of these funds among us.

"We have had enough of deceit and tyranny. The only thing we can be accused of is the abandoning of a just, sincere collaboration without being used as tools by others."

The manifesto has caused a sensation among the Syndicalist leaders.

Alleged Gamblers Go to Saratoga.

Rachel Brown, Jules Formel and George Remo, who were arrested Saturday at Forty-fifth Street and Broadway, in connection with the anti-gambling crusade in Saratoga, left New York City yesterday for Saratoga in custody of special Deputy Attorney General Wyman S. "The Duo-Art stands supreme among reproducing pianos and I do not hesitate to identify myself with it and to entrust it with my reputation."

(Signed) Harold Bauer

The Duo-Art Reproducing Piano

THE Duo-Art Piano reproduces the actual playing of the great pianists. Let your imagination have rein for a moment and realize what this means.

Suppose you owned a piano on which Paderewski had played the great masterpieces of music; compositions of Liszt, Chopin, Beethoven and all the other immortal composers. And suppose that right in your own home, whenever you desired, this miraculous instrument would repeat these performances as the master himself played them!

This is precisely what the Duo-Art Piano does. It reproduces the playing of Paderewski, Hofmann, Busoni, Bauer, Gabrilowitsch, Ganz, Grainger, Novaes, Cortot, practically all the great pianists, and does it with absolute fidelity. Every element of tone, technique and expression is preserved, giving you a perfect reproduction of the artist's original performance. Excellent dance-music, also it plays—and accompaniments played by masters in their field.

Price Guarantee

THE prices of the Duo-Art Pianos are guaranteed until July 1, 1921. Should they be reduced by us before that date, we will refund the full amount of such reduction.

The Duo-Art Piano is also a Pianola; and as such it endows you with the ability to play yourself and express your own ideas of interpretation.

And finally it is a perfect piano, the most popular and enjoyable of all home instruments. There are five different pianos made as Duo-Arts: The Steinway, the Steck, the Wheelock, the Stroud and the famous Weber. Each of these is a leading instrument in its class.

MUSIC

By Richard Aldrich

Emilio de Gogorza's Recital.

Such singing as Emilio de Gogorza gave at his recital in Aeolian Hall yesterday afternoon was not only a great and keenly felt enjoyment to the discriminating listeners, with whom the hall was well filled. It was also a salutary lesson for any who would accept it as such, an inspiration in its showing of what finished art, a comprehensive understanding of style, fine technical acquirements and understanding persistence in the pursuit of high artistic ideals can accomplish. There is unfortunately only too much opportunity to compare it with what a lack of these qualities produces. Such a lesson and such an inspiration are needed in this day and generation.

Mr. de Gogorza's recital was an unceasing delight from the beginning to the end, not only on account of the interest and variety of the songs on his program, but as well on account of the beauty, the perfection of his performance. When the recital was about three-quarters finished, Mr. de Gogorza excused himself from giving an encore that the audience was asking for, saying that he was just recovering from a severe cold. There was very little or no trace of it in his singing; there was scarcely a cloud upon his tones; and the consummate skill of his vocalism was enough to get the better of any disorder in the state of his vocal organs.

Mr. de Gogorza always recurs with affection to the songs of Spain, folk-songs and those of artistic creation; and there were several of both kinds on his program. He began with six Basque folk-songs, five of which were sung in the Basque language, songs of idiomatic quality, flavored from the soil. They were of contrasting character; and there was no more delightful feature of Mr. de Gogorza's singing than his complete identification of each song, its spirit and significance.

He was on very different ground in two of César Franck's songs, "La Procession" and the "Mariage des Roses," into the first of which, especially, he put a profound impressiveness. Paladilhe's song, "Suzanne," is not unknown to this public; and it is perhaps not a very valuable piece of music in itself, but it almost seemed so from the extraordinary point and expressiveness, the delicate shades of declamation with which it was delivered, as if it were a little drama in itself. To this he added Debussy's song "Voici que le Printemps," in a beautiful mezzo voice, in which he quite recaptured the poetic suggestion of the song.

There was noble eloquence and pathos in his delivery of "The Wounded Birch," by Gretchaninoff; an amusing ironic touch, an uncomfortable realism, in Moussorgsky's "The Goat," and something of the harsh note of bitterness in Koeneman's "When the King Went Forth to War," also a Russian song. Appropriately Mr. de Gogorza added Rachmaninoff's poetically felt "Silent Night."

There were more Spanish songs, comprising F. M. Alvarez's powerful "Canto del Presidario," filled with a sense of horror; a brilliantly amusing folk-song of Murcia, "El Paño," and the singularly beautiful "En la Huerta de Murcia," a folk-song with a gleaming touch of orientalism suggested by the recurrent little melisma, and then a Spanish song as an encore.

The program closed with Cyril Scott's "Song of the Night" and Sidney Homer's "Requiem," nobly sung, and "The Fiddler of Dooney," to which Mr. de Gogorza's versatility extended, with a plausibly Celtic note. And then to the listeners lingering after the close of the program he added a song by Cyril Scott and a couple more Spanish songs.

The impeccable vocal production, the skillful use of diverse tonal qualities and colors, the beauty of phrasing and the finished enunciation that marked Mr. de Gogorza's singing were a delight to his listeners. They and the intensely musical quality of his singing are such as only a great artist, a great master, can offer.

THREE ORCHESTRAS PLAY.

Kubelik Reappears With National, Nyredghazi With Symphony.

Three orchestras in popular programs were among eight largely attended concerts yesterday, the Philharmonic's first Sunday matinee filling Carnegie Hall to the limit of standing space for two hours of Wagner. Mr. Stransky conducted overtures to "Rienzi" and "Flying Dutchman," the "Tannhäuser" bacchanale, prelude and "Love's Death" from "Tristan," the "Siegfried Idyl" and several episodes from "The Ring."

Ervin Nyredghazi, the youthful Hungarian pianist, made a first appearance with orchestra at the Symphony Society's popular-price matinee at the Lexington, conducted by Rene Pollain. Beethoven's fifth symphony, Bizet's charming suite from "L'Arlesienne" and Lalo's overture to "Le Roi d'Ys" were the orchestral numbers, and there were seven recalls for Nyredghazi after his performance of the B-flat concerto of Tschaikovsky.

Jan Kubelik and the National Symphony Orchestra under Artur Bodanzky appeared at the Hippodrome last night in aid of the building fund of St. Jean Baptiste Church, the subscriptions netting $15,000, it was said. Kubelik played Mendelssohn's concerto and pieces by Paganini. Bodanzky added Wagner's overtures to "Rienzi" and "Master Singers" and Charpentier's "Impressions of Italy."

Claudia Muzio sang airs from "Aïda," "Trovatore" and "Pagliacci" at a Hippodrome matinee benefit for Beth David Hospital. Moissaye Boguslawski was heard in piano groups from Chopin and Liszt, while the Letz Quartet opened with a recent work by Fritz Kreisler and closed with a new "Folk Dance" dedicated to the players by Alfred Pochon, of the Flonzaleys.

Ida Keller, soprano, assisted by Charles Baker, and presented as an example of plucky, self-supporting study "with very little voice," surprised a small matinee audience at the Princess by her singing of Weber's "Ocean" air from "Oberon" and others widely varied, from Monteverde to Rachmaninoff, Forsyth, Hageman and Hadley.

Joseph Winogradoff, a Russian baritone, made his second appearance last evening at the Lexington, singing airs in Italian from "Rigoletto," in Yiddish from one of Rubinstein's biblical operas, and his own arrangements of Russian folk songs. Assisting in Saint-Saens's 'cello concerto was Bernard Nadelle.

THEATRICAL NOTES.

John E. Kellerd, the Shakespearean actor, will begin an engagement at the Manhattan Opera House on Thursday night, Dec. 2. His repertoire will include "The Merchant of Venice," "Hamlet," "Richard III.," "Twelfth Night," "Much Ado About Nothing," "Julius Caesar" and "Romeo and Juliet." Mr. Kellerd has not been seen in New York for six years.

Two new plays will be produced here tonight. "When We Are Young," with Henry Hull, Alma Tell and George Marion, will come to the Broadhurst Theatre, and "Daddy Dumplins," with Maclyn Arbuckle in the leading role, will open at the Republic.

Fred Stone will go to Boston on Sunday, Dec. 12, to appear at a performance in aid of the Children's Hospital and Convalescent Home. The comedian was asked to appear by Governor Coolidge and Mayor Peters of Boston.

The cast of "The Broken Wing," which will open at the Forty-eighth Street Theatre a week from tonight, will include Alphonz Ethier, Myrtle Tannehill, Inez Plummer, Charles Trobridge and Henry Duggan.

The cast which will be seen with George Arliss in "The Green Goddess" will include Cyril Keightley, Olive Wyndham, Herbert Waring and Ivan Simpson.

Somerset Maugham has written a play of Chinese life, to be produced by A. H. Woods in January.

The Jewish Art Theatre has announced for production on Friday and Saturday evenings of this week a new satiric comedy, "Married—Not Married," by M. Osherwich and A. Gotesfeld. Rudolph Schildkraut will play the leading role.

LIGHT PAPER TORCHES, TO AID BULL FIGHT

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 21.—Thirty thousand men, women and children crowded the bull ring this afternoon to witness the return of Rodolfo Gaona, Mexico's king of bullfighters. The immense crowd gathered from early morning, and the police force, armed with rifles, were compelled to fire over the heads of the people, who tried to break down the doors hours before the fight. One of the greatest crowds ever seen at the bull ring gathered upon the roof of the building.

Gaona gave a wonderful exhibition and received four ears and one tail of the bulls killed by him. After the fight Gaona was carried through the streets on the shoulders of his admirers, thousands parading, shouting and cheering the fighter, who started life as a bootblack in the city of Leon.

Gaona is reputed to be worth 3,000,000 pesos, earned through bullfighting.

MEXICO CITY, Nov. 21 (Associated Press).—The killing of the last bull at today's fights at the Plaza del Toro, witnessed by the largest crowd in the history of the Mexican bull ring, was spectacular. Threatening clouds made the arena so dark as Juan de la Rosa was performing in the final event that thousands of spectators lighted newspaper torches to guide the matador.

De la Rosa found his bull hard to kill, and the crowd, becoming impatient, ran out over the arena. Gendarmes were called out to clear the field and allow the matador to proceed.

BOLD THIEVES STEAL SECTION OF RAILROAD

VIENNA, Nov. 20.—A railway line and stock are difficult things to steal, but according to a story reaching here even this theft has been accomplished in the Rumanian Province of Transylvania.

Last week four men appeared at a little station called Gyula and informed the officials that that section of the line was to be disused and they had been sent by the State Railway Department to dismantle the track. Their uniforms and bearing quite overawed the local officials, and the work was proceeded with and the lines taken up and transported. The four uniformed men departed with the transport and the Gyula railway officials were left without any line to control.

Suspicious because of the continued non-arrival of any orders from headquarters they telephoned to Bucharest and discovered they had been victims of a trick equal to that of the Captain of Koepenick. The bogus Government representatives had no official connection of any sort but simply made off with their rich booty and the stationmaster had to confess ruefully to his superiors that his railway had gone.

MENOCAL TO DECREE AN EMBARGO ON SUGAR

Expected to Prohibit Exportation of Stocks Held From Last Year's Crop.

HAVANA, Nov. 21.—President Menocal has virtually decided to issue a decree placing an embargo on the exportation of all sugar held over from last year's crop, according to information from a reliable source.

This step, it is said, is due to the demoralized condition of the world's sugar market and the claim of Cuban sugar producers that they cannot produce sugar at present prices, and is intended as a temporary measure taken pending action by Congress to authorize the Government to contract loans for handling of the 1920-21 crop.

Action by the Government will not cease there, it is declared, but will take further shape in the formation of a national board to act as a sales medium for the disposal of the crop.

Many planters and mill men assert that there will be no sugar from the new crop during December, as grinding will not begin before January, owing to present low prices.

4,000 AT OPERA CONCERT.

Ten Stars in Puccini-Verdi Program at the Metropolitan.

For the seventh time in seven days, the Metropolitan had a sold-out house last night, when 4,000 persons out of yesterday's many concert-goers, estimated around 24,000 here and elsewhere, crowded the opera house at the first popular concert of Mr. Gatti-Casazza's thirteenth season, and were regaled with a Puccini-Verdi program of thirteen numbers, to which a printed note said there would be "no encores." There was novelty in double measure in the revival of two old works of Verdi, an overture to "The Battle of Legnano," possibly for the "first time in America," as stated in the bill, and a prelude and trio from his opera, "I Lombardi."

Gino Nastrucci played a much applauded violin obbligato and Ponselle, Harrold and Mardones sang the sorrows of the melodious Lombards under Mr. Bamboschek's direction. After this roaring ensemble of other days, even the final "Rigoletto" quartet, with Garrison, Jeanne Gordon, Diaz and De Luca, seemed almost an anti-climax. Morgan Kingston, the Misses Sundelius and Tiffany completed a roster of ten stars in selections from "Manon Lescaut," "Bohème" and "Butterfly," "Ernani," "Trovatore," "Sicilian Vespers" and "The Masked Ball."

WOMAN CAPTURES THIEF.

Seizes Him in Her Apartment and Refuses His Plea for Mercy.

Entering her apartment at 654 Alabama Avenue, Brooklyn, yesterday Mrs. Julia Londinsky, 26, found a man collecting her valuables. She called to her sister, Miss Eva Bolansky, 20, who was coming up the stairway behind her, and ran into the apartment and seized the man, telling her sister to send for the police.

While the police were on the way Mrs. Londinsky's prisoner pleaded to be released. "I just got out of jail on parole," he said, "and this will go hard with me." But the woman remained firm, and the prisoner was taken before Magistrate Brown in the New Jersey Avenue Court. There he described himself as Elias Busch, 28, of 101 Thatford Avenue. He was held without bail for the Grand Jury on a charge of burglary.

Equestrians Marry.

The marriage of Miss Elizabeth Hanneford of the Hanneford equestrian family, now appearing at the Hippodrome, and Ernest John Clarke, a member of the Clarke family of riders and aerialists, for eighteen years with the Ringling Brothers' Circus, took place at 9:45 yesterday morning in the Church of the Transfiguration. Miss Virginia Futrelle, a singer at the Hippodrome, and daughter of the late Jacques Futrelle, novelist, who went down with the Titanic, was maid of honor, and George Hanneford, a brother of the bride, was the best man. Edwin Hanneford Jr., known to the circus world as "Poodles" Hanneford, gave the bride in marriage.

THE SCREEN

There is irresistible fun in Marshall Neilan's "Dinty" at the Strand this week. How much of it there is for any spectator depends somewhat upon his powers of resistance, for the comedy itself is not funny, and yet makes such heavy efforts to be funny, sad, sentimental and melodramatic that it simply invites resistance to any and all of its efforts. If a man stands up and announces with assurance, "I'm going to make you laugh," or "I'm going to make you cry," or "I'm going to give you a thrill," any more or less human being just naturally feels, "I'll be durned if you will," and does his best not to laugh or cry or be thrilled. And he's likely to win more rounds than his opponent, because the latter not only places obstacles in his own way, but weakens his effort by revealing the coldness of his calculation and its utter lack of spontaneity.

And so it is with "Dinty." It is one of those deliberately funny, sad and thrilling motion pictures that does not conceal its deliberateness. So it often fails to achieve the effect sought after. And most noticeably it does this when it tries to be sad and thrilling. Genuineness is then almost entirely lacking, and there's nothing to take its place. It does score, however, in quite a number of its efforts to be funny, for it so happens that Marshall Neilan has a knack of putting broad humor into motion pictures, especially when dealing with boys, and some of the youngsters in the cast are naturally amusing. First of all, there's little Wesley Barry, who, when his manner is not too sophisticated and cock-sure, is a real rough-and-tumble boy, and in his present picture he is companioned by that constitutionally comic little Ethiop, who, for some time, has been an anonymous source of merriment in Harold Lloyd farces, and is now programmed as Aaron Mitchell, which, assuredly, is only a modest part of his full name. And there are other boys in the cast, dozens of them, who have been well selected and, living, give life to the scenes they are in. There is in particular one Chinese child, whose name is either absent from the program, or not identifiable among others there, but who deserves a place with any of them.

The best part of the story of "Dinty" is about a newsboy who struggles to keep his sick mother alive, fights freely with his street friends, gangs it with his own crowd and is always up to something. There is also an accompanying plot that brings Chinatown villains, an honest Judge, his lovely daughter, a horrific den, subterranean passages, seaplanes, submarines, wireless telautography, opium smuggling, abduction, murder, torture and about everything else conceivable into the pictures. There are also numerous subtitles which do a wholesale business in heroics, and there is one which quotes an American naval officer as calling a submarine of his own fleet, "U-Boat Number Seven."

Those who attempt to carry the scenes placarded "sad" and "thrilling" include Colleen Moore, J. Barry Sherry, Marjorie Daw and Noah Beery, who do the best they can.

This is "All Comedy Week" at the Rivoli, and the program is nearly all comedy. The featured picture is "The Life of the Party," an adaptation of a story by Irvin S. Cobb, with Roscoe Arbuckle in the leading rôle. It was directed by Joseph Henaberry, and the cast includes Viora Daniel, Winifred Greenwood, Roscoe Karns, Julia Faye and Frank Campeau. Though too long to hold its own all the way, it furnishes many laughs, because "Fatty" Arbuckle is often funny and always pleasant, and enough of Mr. Cobb's story has been used to give the photoplay the proper swing and spirit. It is probably broader and more given to slap-stick than the story was, but enough of Mr. Cobb's manner of jesting with his own hero, making him not at all heroic, but the favored child of eccentric fortune, has been caught by Scenarist Walter Woods, Director Henaberry and Comedian Arbuckle to keep the motion picture consistently free from dullness.

The unimportant story is about the adventure into which a large and lounging lawyer is catapulted when a pretty girl inspires him to go trust busting and office hunting.

The Rivoli Pictorial includes an exceedingly well-done work in kinetic clay figures entitled "Dreams" and issued by the Special Pictures Corporations. There is also another of the unfailingly amusing Chester animal comedies, directed by William Campbell and called "A Tray Full of Trouble."

William D. Taylor's screen version of "The Furnace" is the photoplay at the Rialto this week, and "The Great Lover," directed by Frank Lloyd, with John Sainpolis in the rôle Leo Ditrichstein played on the stage, is at the Capitol, where there is also a scenic, "The Quaint Isle of Marken."

NEWMAN GIVES TRAVELTALK

Illustrates With Motion Pictures "Jerusalem and the Holy Land."

E. M. Newman's first Traveltalk of the season was delivered last night to a large audience in Carnegie Hall. Its subject was "Jerusalem and the Holy Land," and the association of so many things in Palestine with Jewish and Christian history and legend gave it special interest to many. Mr. Newman, apparently, sought out the mountains, roads, tombs, temples and cities made familiar, if far away, places by the Bible, and by showing them as they are today brought them nearer, probably, than they had ever been to most of those who heard him.

The talk was illustrated by motion pictures and colored lantern slides, which followed each other on the screen without interruption. Some of them had scenic beauty, others were humorous and all were interesting.

The lecture began with Port Said and followed the traveler's path over the Sinai Peninsula by the new military railroad. Pictures of Jaffa were shown, of the plain of Sharon, of Haifa, and of flowers, like the Lilies of the Field and the Rose of Sharon, which grow in the imagination of all who have heard Bible stories. The beginnings of Zionist enterprises were pictured, and the tombs of Abraham, Isaac and Jacob connected the ancient with the modern. The work of the Near East Relief was illustrated, there were pictorial sketches of the valley of the Jordan, and then Jerusalem, with its many sided life.

Mr. Newman's subject next Sunday evening, at Carnegie Hall, will be "Damascus and Syria."

OPERA STARS TO MARRY.

Miss Anna Fitziu and Andreas de Segurola Announce Engagement.

Miss Anna Fitziu, grand opera star, and Andreas de Segurola, for many years one of the leading artists of the Metropolitan Opera Company, announced their engagement yesterday. The wedding will take place in the Spring, probably in Havana, where Mr. de Segurola has assumed management of a large amusement enterprise now under formation. Miss Fitziu, who is now touring the West in concert, will not retire from the operatic stage, although Mr. de Segurola has already done so.

Miss Fitziu is a descendant of the noted Fitz Hugh family of Virginia. She is also descended from Francis Scott Key who wrote "The Star-Spangled Banner." Mr. de Segurola is a member of a noble Spanish family, and was an intimate friend of the former King Emanuel of Portugal. Miss Fitziu lives at 246 West Seventieth Street, while Mr. de Segurola is staying at the Waldorf-Astoria.

FOR RECIPROCAL ADVANTAGE.

How far Mr. LLOYD GEORGE's negotiations with the Russians fall short of recognition of the Soviet Government may be a nice question. The picture presented by the British note of June 30 is one of a negotiation tending rapidly toward a treaty of peace and firm friendship. Mr. LLOYD GEORGE then told Mr. LENIN's representatives that if a satisfactory reply to the note was received from the Russian Government by July 9 a declaration would be made "to the effect that England would resume trade relations with Soviet Russia irrespective of the position taken by other allies, and particularly by France." He further declared that a favorable reply "would create conditions equivalent to a truce and that the British Government would be ready to enter immediately into political negotiations leading to the conclusion of a general peace."

A "general peace" and the resumption of trade relations would necessarily imply the appointment of diplomatic representatives, the issue of exequaturs to Consuls and other usual evidences of full recognition. The conditions set forth in the note of June 30 upon which Mr. LLOYD GEORGE was willing to assent to cessation of hostilities and the reopening of trade are of profound interest to other nations. The first condition was that "the Soviet Government would refrain from hostile actions and propaganda directed against British institutions." The Moscow Government will be left entirely free to continue its propaganda for the overthrow of "capitalistic" Governments other than that of Great Britain.

The second condition requires the Soviet Government to refrain "from any attempt by military action or propaganda to encourage the peoples of Asia in any form of action hostile to British interests or the British Empire." This, we may well suppose, is the paramount consideration for Great Britain, the chief motive that prompted the negotiations. Bolshevist Russia and restless India are not far apart; the way of communication is dangerously open and has been used. England insures that obvious risk, paying as the premium on the policy what is equivalent to recognition and the opening of trade with Russia. England is strengthened, undoubtedly, but the Soviet Government is strengthened to an incalculable degree, and that is the serious matter for the Russian people who have suffered from its crimes and oppressions, who must continue to suffer until the day of its overthrow. It is a serious matter for other nations not beneficiaries of these agreements, whose apprehensions of danger to peace and civilization from a continuance of Soviet rule will not be calmed by measures that confirm its power.

Another condition imposed by Great Britain relates to Russia's recognition of the "principle of liability to pay compensation to private citizens who have supplied goods or services to Russia." How is payment to be made? Our Assay Office declines to accept imports of Russian gold bearing the stamp of the Imperial Government, holding that it is a part of the security underlying the Russian debt. Russia has in her possession other gold, but a great deal belongs to Rumania. How shall pledged gold and stolen gold be distinguished from free gold? Moreover, Great Britain, in agreement with France, has recognized the principle that the present Government of Russia cannot be allowed to repudiate the debts of former Governments. A change of Government does not free a nation from responsibility. Any other principle, says the joint declaration of France and Great Britain, "would entail the ruin of the credit of States, political as well as financial." Our Government advanced to Russia $187,000,000. It appears that under this agreement, which Mr. LLOYD GEORGE gave notice in the House of Commons the other day would be drafted "to carry out the July arrangements," we become a deferred creditor; so does France, to whose people Russia owes hundreds of millions.

In matters of trade it is proverbially an advantage to be first on the ground. But, as The New Europe points out, there are many countries morally and politically far more deserving than Russia which would welcome overtures for an expansion of trade with Great Britain. And this is by no means exclusively or chiefly a matter of trade—the conditions laid down in the note of June 30 make that clear. The uppermost consideration is protection of British interests in the Near East and in India; also Mr. LENIN and Mr. TROTZKY are to desist from their propagandist efforts with British labor against the British Government. The gain for the Soviet Government is immeasurable. The Governments and the peoples of France, of the United States, of Germany, of many other countries, will await with interest any disclosure of possible benefits accruing to them from this dual arrangement which protects British India and gives a new lease of life, new vigor and authority to the terrorist Government at Moscow.

When VILLIERS, British Minister at Madrid, in 1835, signed, without authority, a treaty giving favored treatment to British imports into Spain, the Quadruple Alliance of Great Britain, France, Spain and Portugal against the Pretenders, DON CARLOS and DOM MIGUEL, being then in force, PALMERSTON refused to sanction the treaty and wrote VILLIERS: "Great Britain would expose herself to the charge of having severed herself from her allies in order to grasp at an object conducive to her own particular interests."

EVEN GRAFT MUST BE PROVED.

It will not do for Americans to say in their haste that all men are grafters. The stories that have come out in the building investigation are, indeed, sordid and sickening enough, with their revelations of bribery and blackmail. And now in the Congressional inquiry into the Shipping Board we are coming, after the clear proof of blundering and of waste, upon tales of crookedness.

Before jumping to conclusions, however, it is well to remind ourselves of two facts. One is that the cases of sinister dealing are exceptional. The great mass of the officials in question are honest, even if a bit more indolent and slow-minded than necessary. The second consideration is that the very existence of large amounts of Government money, laid out under contract, always attracts a lot of shady characters to the neighborhood. They pretend to have secret "influence," which they proceed to capitalize and sell, if they can. For steps that would have been taken without any activity at all on their part they mysteriously claim the credit. If they ascertain that a given contract is to be let, they go and try to induce somebody to buy their alleged power to control official decisions. In this they are like a certain order of Washington lobbyists who "sell" the vote of a Senator or Representative, the latter being all the while completely unaware of the transaction.

No sane man doubts that there has been a lot of petty grafting. This is one thing that war always means as truly as it means waste. But it is unfair to judge all by one. And even a grafter must be presumed innocent until he is proved guilty.

REAL FRIENDS OF IRELAND.

In the past year Sinn Fein has gained the support of much of the moderate and respected element in Ireland, which had previously been inclined to hold off, and it has won a great deal of sympathy from foreigners who are willing to overlook the organization's war record in view of present conditions in Ireland. But that sympathy is not strong enough to drive any of England's present or recent allies into a war to "free" Ireland, and this is what the most active and noisy "friends of Ireland" in this country seem to want.

They will not get it; and failing to get it, they cannot do much good to Sinn Fein or much harm to England, though they may do great harm to Anglo-American relations. The real friends of Ireland in this country would perhaps go about the matter in a different way. They might, for example, make it clear to the Sinn Fein leaders—if these would listen—that there are certain things which England will not and cannot give up. This irreducible minimum is less, it may be asserted, than the position England retains in the present Home Rule bill to which Mr. LLOYD GEORGE is sticking with such unaccustomed steadfastness. A very large number of Englishmen would not exert themselves to retain the powers reserved to the Westminster Parliament in this bill, and still fewer would support the extreme program of Sir EDWARD CARSON. But the great majority of Englishmen will never support a program which means the setting up on England's flank of an independent and hostile Government which would be free to form alliances directed against the safety of England. No nation would put itself in that position; and no foreign Power or combination of Powers could force England to yield so much as that without a fight.

Consider Cuba. Cuba has one-thirtieth the population of the United States and one seventy-fifth the area. Ireland is more than a third as large as Great Britain and has one-tenth the population. A hostile Ireland with hostile foreign connections would be a much greater danger to Great Britain than a hostile Cuba with hostile foreign connections to the United States. People who talk about making England grant complete independence to Ireland might as well realize that they will have to fight for it.

We did not give complete independence to Cuba. The first, second and seventh clauses of the Platt amendment, incorporated in the Cuban Constitution, provide that the Cuban Government shall never impair its independence by foreign treaty, or grant to foreign Powers rights of colonization or military or naval bases in the island; that it shall contract no debts which cannot be paid for out of ordinary revenue; and that it will sell or lease to the United States land for naval stations at certain specified points. With reservations such as these, Britain might consider a grant of independence to Ireland. Present conditions in Ireland, however, make it probable that something similar to the third section of the Platt amendment would have to be applied to Ireland. That section authorizes the United States to intervene if necessary for the protection of Cuban independence or for "the maintenance of a Government adequate for the protection of life, property and individual liberty." Without that, Ulster and the South of Ireland would be constantly at each other's throats.

Last February Professor DE VALERA suggested some such solution; but though he is the voice of Sinn Fein, he does not seem to be either its brains or its mailed fist. The proposal met with little approval on either side at the time. We are not sure that it is the best possible solution of the Irish question, but it is certainly the most that the Irish can ever get. To hold out for full and uncontrolled independence is merely to strengthen the hands of their enemies in England. At any rate, it does no harm to remember that the Platt amendment status is the maximum concession that England can ever make; whether she makes that must depend in part, at least, on the Irish.

MEDICO-HISTORIC DETERMINISM.

Again the word of power is uttered in Kansas and the medicine of history takes the place of the philosophy of history—such as it is. Dr. E. J. KULP, President of the Kansas Public Health Association, tells the Kansas Conference of Social Workers the true causes of the civil war. "The Southern people were made to think in a certain way because they were molested by mosquitos and hookworms." Hence certain Southern ideals, whose opposition to Northern ideals had to be settled by war.

But the war didn't "subdue the hookworm ideals." Men of science slew the hookworms and thereby "changed the Southerners' way of thinking." The change is growing greater:

> Control of hookworms and mosquitos will break up the solid South in time. Recent progress of medical science made several States go Republican in the November election.

This interpretation of history must give us a new veneration, if more is possible, for the omnilateral Sunflower genius. Only one little cloud of doubt specks the radiance of the Kulpian hypothesis or dogma: How in Kansas in 1916 were mosquitos and hookworms allowed by the Public Health Association so to use their hooks on the people's thoughts that Judge HUGHES got some 37,000 fewer votes than Mr. WILSON?

THE POT AND THE KETTLE.

The Lockwood committee has already rendered a great public service. No longer is union labor in the building trades under the thumb of corrupt bosses, and the rascals are running to cover. No longer are builders and contractors compelled to pay extortionate prices for material to combinations which, by ironclad compacts between them, eliminated competition. It may not be said that even now materials can be bought in open market, nor that union labor has thrown off all the shackles fastened upon it by its own false friends who victimize it to enrich themselves, but the atmosphere is clearer and the light is breaking. In the last analysis it was the consumer, every man or woman who wanted to build a factory, shop or home, who had to pay.

BRINDELL, usurper and dictator of the all-powerful Building Trades Council, who decided what man should be put on a job and who should not work but stand and wait, has been indicted for extortion, and organized labor suffers in reputation. But this is not entirely fair, for thousands of workers have suffered in the war forced upon them by the intrigues and greed of men like BRINDELL in collusion with schemers and politicians. The victims, many of whom are illiterate and others of whom do not speak English, have but dimly known what was going on, and in any event would have been helpless. All of them have been in the hands of their false friends, who cared nothing about the good character of union labor if they could fill their own pockets. The amazing and indefensible thing is that manufacturers and dealers, who consider themselves on a plane above the workingman and cannot plead lack of education and moral training, are just as wolfish in preying upon the community as any unprincipled labor leader.

Prices have been inflated by secret combination, which decreed not only the sale figure, but that customers must buy of local dealers. There was no going outside the charmed circle. If that was attempted, the way was found to be barred. Competition did not exist in any part of the country. BRINDELL may have had power "to stop any trade that he had jurisdiction over," as a witness testified; but the confederated manufacturers and dealers had the power to say that a contractor should pay an excessive price for materials to a designated dealer in a zone or district. In principle what was the difference? Was it not a hold-up in both cases? BRINDELL has been indicted for extortion and will be tried. Are there to be no indictments for restraint of trade for those who have strangled competition in the sale of building materials?

GERMAN DISSERTATIONS.

Reports from Geneva show the Germans at their pretty ways again. They are not in the League, but they are filing with it big volumes filled with protests, objections, criticisms, complaints and lamentations. They allege that the Versailles Treaty is not being executed as it should be. In the matter of the colonies and the mandates, they declare that Germany is suffering wrong. But she ought to be content to wait a bit. She delayed sixty years in carrying out her treaty agreement to give Schleswig a plebiscite. For that, no doubt, the German diplomatic doctors could produce theses as learned as those they are now depositing at Geneva. Besides, it hardly lies in German mouths to cry out that the Treaty is not being executed properly. How about Germany's own part in that execution?

Until her purpose and good faith in that matter are made clear, it is idle for her to file an application for membership in the League of Nations. The very terms of the Covenant, providing for admission by a two-thirds vote of the Assembly, stipulate that it shall be granted only to a country that "shall give effective guarantees of its sincere intention to observe its international obligations." Failing such effective guarantees, all the German dissertations are merely so much good paper wasted. They may please their authors, but won't do the least harm to the League.

INTERSTATE AND INTRASTATE RATES.

Upon the question of the regulation of intrastate rates by the Interstate Commerce Commission the Esch-Cummins act is practically the enactment of the principle of the commission's decision in the Shreveport case in 1912. That decision was that State commissions ought to conform their rates to those found just by the Interstate Commerce Commission, but that the commission had no power to order them to conform. When the case was taken to the Supreme Court Justice HUGHES said that whenever Congress chose to legislate on interstate commerce its power was plenary and exclusive. Congress has acted and thirty-one States have accepted the Interstate Commerce Commission's order accordingly. Eight States have resisted and New York is chief among them. New York's regulating authorities, both State and local, make a virtue of their intention to go to the Supreme Court again on a forlorn hope. It may be desirable that there should be one more decision from the highest judicial authority to meet allegations that the State commissions were not alert in their duties and allowed judgment by default, but nothing should prevent the new interstate rates from going into force in forty-eight States without awaiting the Supreme Court's action. Provision might be made for refunds if necessary, but the collections should be made when the service is rendered.

It is said that State regulation of railways should not be annulled, respecting local matters, by Federal authority, and that rates fixed by charter ought not to be disturbed. That is little different from saying that the States should control national policy and that the Federal Constitution should conform to corporate charters. The reason why the Constitution should prevail over the State commissions and charters is found in the practice of the State commissions, and in the resultant chaos if charters were allowed to regulate rates. On the record it is impossible to contend that the State commissions use the power they assert for the national good. They have no motive for acting other than discrimination in favor of local trade, and to the undue prejudice of the interests of the nation and of neighbor States. No trader outside a State could compete within a State if the State commission made a rate designed to exclude him, as in the Shreveport case. If charter rates are unalterable, then rates cannot be made to conform to alterations in economic conditions and railways would cut one another's throats by reducing rates under cover of official and legislative orders.

This is a statement of a practical and historical fact, not a theory of rate-making. Several roads run between New York City and Buffalo. If one road makes a lower rate than the interstate rate, it will take all but the local business, and the other roads will starve. The Interstate Commerce Commission has found that the New York roads need the $11,000,000 to $12,000,000 which they would lose if the New York Commission is allowed to annul the Interstate Commerce Commission's order to raise the local rates to the national standard. Besides, if the New York Commission, or a company's charter, is allowed to reduce the earnings of the railways below the Congressional standard, then the interstate rates must be raised again, and so on indefinitely.

The appeal to the State rights issue is inferior to the appeal to the national rights issue. Rightly speaking, there is no State rights issue in a matter which is contrary to the Constitution, to the enactment of Congress and the decisions of the Supreme Court. That cry is the assertion of officialism and a demand for license to exercise a power which has been abused hundreds of times.

TOPICS OF THE TIMES.

An Obvious Failure of Justice.

In sentencing to life imprisonment PASQUALE, who confessed to the stealing and the killing, though not to the murder, of the Coughlin baby, the Judge before whom the man was tried expressed his deep regret that he could not, under the law, send him to the electric chair. This regret will be shared by everybody wherever the story of the abduction is known, for never was capital punishment better deserved than in this case, and PASQUALE escaped it only because there was no possibility of disproving his statements as to how the child died and as to the disposition made of its body.

Under the Pennsylvania law there can be conviction of murder in the first degree only when there is what the lawyers call a "corpus delicti," and though the iron bar with which the little victim had been weighted was found in the river where he was thrown, everything else, flesh and bones, had disappeared. According to the man's story, moreover, the death of the baby was accidental, and probably the intention to kill, usually necessary to constitute murder, really was absent, as the child alive was likely to be worth more to a blackmailer than the child dead.

By these technicalities PASQUALE escaped the doom that no man ever better earned, for a more ruthless and sordid wretch than he is hardly imaginable. He seems to be quite destitute of the feelings that differentiate men from beasts of prey. To get money he was willing to break the hearts of a father and a mother, and in callous exploitation of parental fears and agonies he demanded and took blackmail when he no longer could make the promised return of the stolen child. Now he expresses no repentance or regret—he even intimates that his penalty is excessive, and, in a tone of grievance, says that death would have been preferable to life imprisonment!

Murderers Shine by Contrast.

That PASQUALE ever will be pardoned is a possibility so remote as hardly to be worth considering, and yet it is a possibility. Governors, however, sometimes do strange things in the exercise of their discretionary powers. But even though the man does remain behind bars until he dies, his punishment is obviously inadequate—it makes unjust the putting to death by the State of men who, though murderers, in practically every instance could give a better explanation, if not a better excuse, for their crime than he can offer. He was not starving, he had suffered no wrong, real or imaginary, he did not strike in the heat and blindness of a sudden rage, he was not illiterate or insane. The psychologists probably would call him a "moron" or a moral idiot, but neither name is a denial of responsibility to society.

To have sent him to the electric chair or the gallows might or might not have had a deterrent effect on other men of like mind. Opinions differ on that point, with a seeming tendency for more and more of them to swing away from capital punishment as something worse than useless except as preventive of further crimes by the particular individual. But while the law exacts its utmost penalty from anybody, the kidnappers of children, when their purpose is blackmail, should not escape. To put them to death when caught may be—it is—a poor defense against their kind, but there is no other, and it should be used for what it is worth, even though its worth be little.

Not Ready as Yet to Forget.

According to the dispatches from Geneva, GEORGE NICHOLL BARNES, the labor leader who sits as one of Great Britain's representatives in the great Assembly, was rewarded with but slight applause when he made his formal speech advocating the immediate admission of Germany to the League of Nations. That is not surprising, but there were parts of the speech that deserved at least consideration, and there was one part that the delegates, including those from France, should have found reassuring.

For Mr. BARNES took pains to tell them, that, though British labor thought it time to let Germany back into the family of nations, it was not because British workers had forgotten that in 1914 "the Central Powers wantonly plunged the world into war." Nor, said he, had they forgotten the consequences of that war, "being reminded of them daily by personal bereavements, by dislocated trade and diminished comfort."

That was moderate language—perhaps too moderate—but showed at least that British labor, as represented by Mr. BARNES, is wiser than certain British professors and does not indulge in sloppy sentimental talk about covering with oblivion the animosities created by past interchanges of harsh accusations. For the world's present anxieties and dangers Germany is alone to blame, and while lenience may be in order, forgetfulness is not.

Voyaging Over Summer Seas.

Whoever has sailed the Caribbean knows how judiciously Senator HARDING chose where to pass the few days before he must plunge again into the whirl of politics and again meet the army of officeseekers. Except for the very worst of sailors, those blue waters and soft airs constitute an environment full of restful joys, quite unknown to travelers whose ocean going has been limited to the North Atlantic, that harsh gray expanse of always restless and often cold and cruel waters.

The Gulf of Mexico, too, can be unkind at times, but the times are not many, and its best is incomparably better than the best encountered on the great liners weaving east and west like the overgrown ferryboats they are. The ships running to the south are different. On them life is simpler, but it is entirely comfortable for those who can get along without needless and expensive luxuries, and this is just the season when that part of the world is on its very nearly perfect behavior, at least as far as its weather goes.

Coming back into a northern Winter will not be an enviable experience, and it is one that has its dangers, but presumably the President-designate will be on his guard against the perils of the sudden change in temperature.

ADRIATIC INJUSTICE.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

There is but one irrefutable argument which, when he is frank, the Italian can make to the statements of Professor Seymour, whose capabilities as a historian are so well known to Yale men. It is the argument which only the racial historian can make.

It is necessary to remember that any division of territories and allotment of economic privileges relating to Fiume and the islands and territories surrounding the Adriatic would work injustice of one kind or another. On the one hand, you have the appeal of a faithful ally like Italy who has mortgaged her future for years to come in order that the Entente cause might not be defeated; on the other, the claims of the Jugoslavs, an Alpine race closely allied and intimately related in blood, destiny of nation and economy with the Central Powers. In other words, the conflict is one of races!

The Italian is of the so-called Mediterranean race; while the Jugoslav and most Central Europeans, as well as most Russians, are of the so-called Alpine races. Besides certain fundamental physical differences between these two, there are temperamental and psychological differences. The Slav is silent, cold, melancholy; the Italian is jovial, buoyant and optimistic. The conflict extends to the very nature of the organisms that each inherits. Of late the Alpine strain has been pressing the Mediterranean and Nordic stocks for supremacy in Europe. It is in essence a struggle by one civilization to supplant another.

The Adriatic coast of Italy is the furthest easternmost outpost which any non-Alpine people present to this unrelentless tide of Alpinism. For the moment this Alpinism has assumed a friendly aspect. It is Slavicism in the garb of a struggling Jugoslavic nationalism. It is these Southern Slavs, masked by the Jugoslavic nationality, who are pressing the Mediterranean Italians for vantage points in the centuries' long struggle to wrest Western Europe, economically and strategically, from the grip of the Nordics and Mediterraneans. Similarly, the Slav's big brother, the White Russian, is pressing the Nordics in the Baltic provinces, to the threatened Russification of the entire original homeland of the Nordic people, from which the English-speaking stocks are sprung. That this is not chimerical is evidenced by the statements of Slavs themselves. Leon Dominian in his work, "Frontiers of Language and Nationality of Europe," said: "For at the bottom of it all the fight is between the Slav and Teuton. It is a grim and unrelenting struggle for existence that is shaping itself into one of the world's fiercest contests. The Slavic peoples are steadily pressing in from the East. It is the turn of the Russians, Poles, Bohemians, Slovenes, Serbians and Croats slowly to crowd on the descendants of the blue-eyed, flaxen-haired barbarians representing the Germanic peoples."

It was Dr. Felice Ferrero, brother to the gifted historian, who, speaking frankly, put forth the opposite side, namely, "the possibility of Russia (an Alpine people) reaching the Adriatic shore through the lands of the Southern Slav, acting either as her allies or as her vassals, was exactly one of the reasons that prompted the claims of Italy at the time of the Treaty of London. The danger is still impending. Why should Italy change her policy, then, if such is the condition?"

These statements point out the underlying canker beneath the Adriatic controversy. It goes deeper than dollars or ships or trade. It relates to race. While the ordinary historian might miss this, the racial historian does not.

Italy fears the continued encroachment of the Southern Slavs just as America fears any further encroachment of European powers on American soil. Therefore its Monroe Doctrine to the effect that it will hold any such act emanating from any European power as unfriendly.

The same story has been told many times over. This is the story that race has to tell. It is a story that only the racial historian may tell. It is a story centuries old; of one civilization supplanted by another; of one ethnic group pressed upon by another and in turn pushing on itself and ousting whatever peoples it finds in its path while facing the alternative of conquering or of being conquered.

JOHN H. MARIANO.
New York, Nov. 19, 1920.

Nothing Done for Russia.

To the Editor of The New York Times:

Mr. Duranty, in his article of Nov. 15 on Russia, makes almost the same explanation, in a certain degree, as was made when that splendid man, Admiral Kolchak, was killed; that fine soldier and man, Korniloff, and the other anti-Bolshevist leaders. It is always the failure, because of the Russian character and the bad conditions they accepted of help, &c. But there is never any suggestion that we Americans by our complete help in every way could have saved loyal, patriotic Russia, and so diverted them from what poor assistance they have had to depend upon. It seems incredible that, with the exception of some Red Cross work, Americans could go about their own affairs with no idea of responsibility toward saving those unfortunate, loyal Russian people, starving and completely unarmed and helpless, who have been for three long years enduring tortures.

AN AMERICAN SUBSCRIBER.
New York, Nov. 20, 1920.

ROAD SONG.

"Good morning," I said to the woman,
And her weary voice replied,
"Good morning," as if to the flowers
In the basket at her side.
I said to her, "Sell me some flowers."
She said, "They're for one who died."
And I met a small boy, followed
By a dog that seemed content
To wag his tail like a banner
Wherever the small boy went.
"Sell me the dog?" I questioned.
Said the boy, "He's not worth a cent."
And far on the road this morning,
If any one may try
To buy my dreams I will answer,
"These were things I could not buy."
There's a call and a faint reply!
And out on the road that's only
A road because men went Over a path so often,
If any one come intent
To buy my dreams, I will answer,
"To you they're not worth a cent."

URGES ECONOMIC COUNCIL.

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

VIENNA, Nov. 20.—Colonel Smith, the American delegate to the Reparations Commission, returned to Vienna today from Paris. He intends to do his utmost to realize his plan of an economic conference between the States which formerly made up the Austrian Empire. This he considers of paramount importance in fighting Bolshevism. Colonel Smith's plan, however, is viewed unfavorably by the Czechoslovaks, who appear unwilling to facilitate commercial exchange with their neighbors.

Alois Haueis will succeed himself as Minister of Agriculture, while Dr. Reusch, former Minister of Finance, will become Minister of Social Affairs.

PRAISES WOMAN RULERS.

Italian Deputy Cites Them in Supporting Suffrage Measure.

ROME, Nov. 21.—Speaking in support of the bill granting the vote to Italian women and making them eligible for election under the same conditions as men, before its adoption by the Chamber of Deputies Friday, Deputy Salvanini declared experience had shown that women who happened to rule countries through fortuitous circumstances always were highly successful. Two hundred and forty votes were cast in favor of the bill and ten against it.

The woman suffrage measure passed the Chamber last year, but did not become a law because it lacked the approval of the Senate, as that body could not discuss it because of a closure and the subsequent dissolution of the Chamber.

FIND FLOUR CONCENTRATION

Federal Trade Commission Lays Blame to Demand for Certain Brands

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—A strong tendency toward concentration of the wheat flour milling industry in a number of large concerns was noted by the Federal Trade Commission in a report to Congress on its investigation of the industry made public today.

The trend toward concentration in the industry was attributed to the industrial development of the country and the demand for standardized brands of flour from the large centres of population. This condition has largely eliminated the small-capacity mill in the last decade, it was said, as the large concerns are better able to supply a uniform product. Ten of the larger milling companies, the report said, now have a productive capacity of more than half the flour consumed in this country.

Basing its figures on sales of thirty-seven companies, the commission's report shows that in the five years from 1913 to 1918 the average price of flour increased from $4.15 to $10.22 per barrel, or 146 per cent., while retail prices increased only 118 per cent. and the farmer received an increase of 160 per cent. for his wheat.

URGES CREDIT EXTENSION.

Owen Asks Houston to Use War Finance Corporation Machinery.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21. — Senator Owen of Oklahoma tonight sent a telegram to Secretary Houston of the Treasury urging him to use the War Finance Corporation machinery to extend foreign credits. The telegram reads:

"I join with Senator Calder of New York, Chairman of the Senate Reconstruction Committee, in urging upon you the employment of the machinery of the War Finance Corporation in promoting the financing of our foreign exports of foodstuffs, cotton and raw materials. The need is extremely urgent. Many export houses are being ruined by lack of credit and much of our excess commodities are denied a profitable European export market because of inadequate credit machinery."

Dr. Carl Wallsee Petty, Grand Chaplain of the Grand Lodge of the State of New York.

In his remarks Dr. Petty traced the evolution of Masonry and expressed the belief that the organization had reached the crest of its popularity. He said that the prejudice and false notions held in the past about the order had passed and declared that the ideals of Masonry were the ideals of democracy.

PILGRIM COMPACT CELEBRATED HERE

TERCENTENNIAL OF SIGNING

Pastor of All Souls' Unitarian Church Urges Freedom in Religious Thought.

Services in commemoration of the three hundredth anniversary of the signing of the Pilgrim Fathers' compact on the Mayflower were held yesterday in the Cathedral of St. John the Divine under the auspices of the Society of Mayflower Descendants in the State of New York. Similar services were also held in All Souls' Unitarian Church, Fourth Avenue and Twentieth Street.

Although the ceremonies in the cathedral were under the Mayflower Society's direction, representatives of other patriotic organizations, representatives of Great Britain and the Netherlands and clergymen of other denominations were present and participated.

The Very Rev. Howard C. Robbins, Dean of St. John's, welcomed the members of the various societies and the delegates of the foreign powers. The sermon was preached by Bishop Chauncey B. Brewster of Connecticut.

"Now has come," he said, "the period of transition and readjustment. Today, in celebrating the tercentennial of the Mayflower compact, it is well to look backward and see what should be kept of this compact and what should give way to the new order just dawning. One thing the Pilgrims held was a high idealism, a great consciousness of conviction in truth and God.

Bishop Brewster read from the compact the principles therein recorded which have been made part of the national life. On the Mayflower, he said, a definite constitution was drawn up which became the foundation of the nation, which has grown to such tremendous dimensions in the succeeding 300 years. He dwelt upon the sterling characteristics of the Pilgrims, of their sense of the dignity of the human personality, and of their conviction of the superiority of the individual over the State.

"The outlook today," he said, "has shadows upon it. The people should regain the sense of the dignity of human personality, irrespective of purse or power. Industrial systems are not ends in themselves. It might be that it is industrialism rather than capitalism that must be remade. Democracy demands a return to the ethical, spiritual value of human life."

The services closed with the singing of "The Star-Spangled Banner."

The lesson of the Pilgrims with reference to its effects upon a faith for free man was the topic of the Rev. William L. Sullivan, minister of All Souls'. He said that it was well to dwell upon the influence of this event in history and the example of the Pilgrims themselves in morals.

Dr. Sullivan concluded by saying there was always danger of reactions, and he feared that freedom of religious belief might be endangered in these times when men were uncertain, unsettled, and when the world was all awry. He urged those of his church to strive for the absolute freedom in religious thought that is the outstanding feature of Unitarianism.

Continuing the observances, the Mayflower Society, which held the service in the Cathedral yesterday, will hold a commemorative dinner in the Waldorf tonight. Vice President-elect Calvin Coolidge will be present. Speakers will include Sir William Mulock, Chief Justice of the Exchequer Division of Toronto, and United States Senator Charles S. Thomas of Colorado, George H. Moses of New Hampshire and Bert M. Fernald of Maine. One of the features will be the presentation to each diner of a large illuminated copy of the Pilgrims' compact.

America's debt to the Pilgrims will be the theme of the mass meeting in Carnegie Hall on Friday night. The guests of honor will be General Robert Georges Neville, Colonel Paul Azan and the Rev. André Monod, as representing France; the Rev. R. C. Gillie, De Alexander Ramsey, the Rev. Canon E. A. Burroughs and E. Harold Spender, representing England, and Dr. J. Barnouw and Consul General Pierre Mali, representing, respectively, the Netherlands and Belgium.

PLANS NEW FEDERAL OFFICE

Treasury Suggests a Controller General of the United States.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Recommendations to Congress for the creation of an additional office in the Federal Government—a Controller General of the United States—to supervise the annual balance sheet of the nation, are under consideration by officials of the Treasury.

Discussing the budget system in his annual report to Secretary Houston, Controller Warwick of the Treasury declared that the best results would be obtained by centralizing the activities of a general accounting office under a Controller General by means of a legal and administrative staff control over the heads of the various accounting departments as designed in the Budget bill passed by Congress at its last session, but vetoed by President Wilson.

"It is the relation of a budgetary system to the practical administration of affairs in the hands of the executive branch of Government," Controller Warwick said, "and its character as a coordinating influence between actual administration and the exercise by the Legislature of its authority to appropriate the public funds for administrative purposes, that leads to the consideration of an independent accounting system which, in the present opinion, is of greater practical value in the purpose of attaining efficiency in government than any mere budget form of statement in itself."

ARMY NEEDS 400 ENGINEERS

Wanted to Fill Up Unit Which Won Great Distinction in the War.

Special to The New York Times.

Harris, the Adjutant General of the army, announced today that 400 engineers and technical specialists are needed immediately by the Second Engineers at Camp Travis, San Antonio, as part of the War Department's recent order for raising the Second Division to full strength.

The Second Engineers is the engineer outfit which helped stop the Germans at Château-Thierry. Its members won 100 Croix de Guerre, twenty-five Distinguished Service Crosses, two Legion of Honor and one Distinguished Service Medal, which constitutes a record for engineer regiments.

PASSIONISTS MARK THEIR BI-CENTENARY

110 PRIESTS IN PROCESSION

Hymn to St. Gabriel, Composed by Nun and Priest, Is Sung at Service.

To commemorate the bi-centennial of the Passionist Order a triduum began in St. Michael's Monastery Church, West Hoboken, N. J., yesterday with a pontifical mass at which the celebrant was Archbishop Giovanni Bonzano of Washington, D. C., apostolic delegate. The church was crowded. The service was followed by a dinner in the Monastery to the visiting priests, at which the hosts were the priests of St. Paul of the Cross, who are in charge of the church.

The preacher was the Right Rev. Edmund F. Gibbons. The archpriest was Mgr. Joseph F. Mooney, Vicar General of the Archdiocese of New York. Other priests from this city in the chancel were Mgr. Michael J. Lavelle of St. Patrick's Cathedral; the Rev. John J. Wynne, editor of the Catholic Encyclopaedia, and the Rev. Joseph P. Dineen, private secretary to Archbishop Hayes.

The deacons of honor to Archbishop Bonzano were Mgr. P. E. Smyth, pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Jersey City, N. J., and Mgr. James F. Mooney, President of Seton Hall College, South Orange, N. J. The deacon of the mass was the Rev. P. W. Smith, pastor of the Church of St. John the Baptist, Jersey City, and the sub-deacon of the mass was the Rev. Charles A. Smith, pastor of St. Joseph's Church, Newark, N. J. The Rev. J. Gillen, secretary to Bishop Gibbons, was master of ceremonies.

Mgr. Lavelle and Mgr. John J. Reilly, pastor of St. John's Church, Schenectady, N. Y., were the deacons of honor to Bishop Gibbons. There were 110 priests in the procession from the monastery to the church.

During the consecration of the mass four cornetists played a composition written especially for the anniversary by one of the Passionist Fathers. A hymn to "St. Gabriel," also written for the occasion, was sung. The words were by a Carmelite Nun and the music by a Passionist Father. St. Gabriel was a student of St. Paul of the Cross, founder of the Passionist Order. St. Gabriel of our Lady of Sorrows, as he is called, was canonized by Pope Benedict May 13, last.

Last evening Archbishop Bonzano, who is a guest at the Monastery of the Congregation of the Passion, was the celebrant of vespers. The sermon was preached by the Rev. John Healy, a Dominican.

Pontifical mass will be offered at 10:30 today by Bishop John J. O'Connor of Newark, and this evening pontifical vespers will be sung by Bishop Thomas J. Walsh of Trenton. Bishop Walsh will offer mass at 10:30 tomorrow. The Right Rev. Paul J. Nussbaum, bishop of Corpus Christi, Texas, will be the celebrant of vespers tomorrow.

The West Hoboken church is known nationally because it presents the play "Veronica's Veil" several times a week throughout Lent. The monastery is the headquarters of the Eastern Province of the Passionist Fathers. The Western Province has its headquarters in Chicago. There are about 300 priests of the Congregation of the Passion in the United States.

St. Michael's was established half a century ago. It was remodeled in 1898.

She was married in 1867 to the late Burton Norvell Harrison, a Virginia lawyer who for a time was secretary to Jefferson Davis.

JOSEPH CASSIDY OF QUEENS DIES

Stricken With Apoplexy at Club, Ex-Leader Expires on Reaching His Home.

TWICE BOROUGH PRESIDENT

One of the Last of the City's Old-Time Political "Bosses"—Was Long Under Fire.

Joseph Cassidy, former borough President of Queens, and for many years Democratic "boss" of that borough, died suddenly of apoplexy yesterday afternoon at 5 o'clock at his home in Carlton Avenue, in the Hollywood Park district of Far Rockaway. He was taken ill at the Far Rockaway Club, and was removed to his home, where he died within a few minutes. Dr. Crosby of St. Joseph's Hospital, who was summoned by Mrs. Cassidy, said that death was caused by apoplexy.

Mr. Cassidy, known as "Curley Joe," from the waviness of his hair, was one of the last of the old-time political leaders, the practicality of whose politics brought them continually under fire. He attained the leadership of the Democratic organization in Queens by his defeat of Patrick J. ("Battle Axe") Gleason at the time of the consolidation act creating the present New York City, which took effect Jan. 1, 1898. He was twice elected borough President of Queens and twice defeated.

He was the absolute political power in Queens during the early stages of its development as a borough. He lost this power and then regained it. His political activity was brought to a close by his conviction, with that of William Willett, for conspiracy to sell the Democratic nomination for Supreme Court Justice in the Second Judicial District to the latter. Although he was released on parole after serving part of his sentence and had his citizenship restored by Governor Whitman, he apparently made little or no effort to re-enter politics.

He was indicted recently by the Nassau County Grand Jury for alleged connection with gambling. Friends declared last night that this charge was without foundation, and said his death was caused by disappointment and a broken heart rather than by any actual physical ailment.

Born in Queens.

Cassidy was born in Queens 54 years ago, the son of a florist, who had his place of business just outside Calvary Cemetery. After graduation from grammar school, he worked for his father, and later went into the fur department of Arnold, Constable & Co., of which he eventually became the head. He entered politics in the eighties and obtained his first political job, that of Excise Commissioner of Long Island City at $2,000 a year, in 1893.

While holding this place Cassidy was nominated and elected Alderman He refused to resign as Excise Commissioner but held on to both jobs and won out in a legal fight, which followed his refusal.

In 1895, he supported John P. Madden against Gleason for Mayor of Long Island City, but lost this fight. His opportunity to defeat Gleason came in the election of 1897, immediately preceding consolidation, and with the aid of Madden he elected Frederick Bowley as the first Borough President of Queens. During the period which followed, Cassidy obtained a reputation for independence of Tammany control as a member of the Board of Aldermen, and quarreled with Richard Croker, then the Tammany leader.

Cassidy became popular with the younger element of the Democratic Party in Queens and was elected to succeed Bowley as Borough President, and then re-elected for a second term. His salary was $5,000 a year. During these four years he was the political dictator of the borough and became known as "the King of Queens." A great real estate development of the borough marked this period, and there were many streets opened, many sewers laid and other public improvements. Cassidy was credited with having amassed a fortune during these four years, and records subsequently discovered in the Queens County Clerk's office indicated that he had purchased real estate aggregating $500,000.

Cassidy's expenditures during his two terms as Borough President were regal. He owned a steam yacht and an automobile, a string of fast trotters, a stock farm in California, a house in Long Island City and a country home at Far Rockaway. He was also a chicken fancier, and his game cocks were known from one end of the country to the other.

His Office Investigated.

On one occasion during Mayor Low's administration four taxpayers of Queens made forty-seven charges against him. The Mayor's Commissioner of Accounts made an investigation and sustained twenty-four of them. Complaint was made to the Governor but no action followed. Many of the charges alleged padded payrolls, and testimony was offered that many Cassidy adherents were holding useless jobs.

In 1905, Joseph Bermel, Democratic leader of Newtown, whom Cassidy had appointed Commissioner of Public Works, revolted and ran against him for Borough President. Bermel obtained the Republican nomination, and then the Heart endorsement, and gave Cassidy a rather unexpected defeat. Cassidy ran again for Borough President in 1909, but was defeated by Lawrence Gresser.

The removal of Gresser by Governor Hughes gave Cassidy an opportunity to regain control of the Democratic organization, which he held in part until 1912, when he was indicted on a charge of selling the Democratic nomination for Supreme Court Justice to William Willett. Testimony at the trial, which resulted in the conviction of both Cassidy and Willett, was to the effect that the latter was to pay $30,000 in all, $10,000 before the nomination, with the understanding that if the balance of $20,000 was not paid before election, Cassidy would instruct his followers to cut Willett and so bring about his defeat. The revelation of this bargain before election brought about the defeat of Willett and the other Democratic candidates for Justice.

Cassidy was convicted on Feb. 8, 1914, and sentenced to from one year to eighteen months in Sing Sing. The conviction was affirmed by both the Appellate Division and the Court of Appeals, and Cassidy was sent to Sing Sing and subsequently to Great Meadows Prison. He was released on parole on Jan. 25, 1916, and had his citizenship restored by Governor Whitman a year later. On his release, Cassidy was acclaimed at a dinner given in Long Island City by 700 adherents.

He had lived since that time at Far Rockaway, where he had real estate interests, and had taken no active part in politics. Cassidy is survived by his widow and four sons, Joseph, Frank, Daniel and George Cassidy.

DIES OF APOPLEXY IN HOTEL

Albany Advertising Promoter Expires After Brief Illness.

Joseph M. O'Hara, 52, a newspaper advertising promoter of Albany, N. Y., who had returned from Baltimore on Saturday night and had complained of illness when he registered at the Hotel Commodore, died in his room there yesterday morning under circumstances that led the police of the East Fifty-first Street station to make an investigation. This was based on a report that Mr. O'Hara had made reference to an "overdose of medicine." The police found nothing suspicious concerning his death, which the County Medical Examiner, Dr. Schwager, the house physician, and Dr. E. M. Foote, of 119 East Fortieth Street, agreed had been caused by apoplexy.

Before medical aid reached him O'Hara was unconscious. Cards bearing O'Hara's name, under which were printed the words "Representative of William Barnes, Jr., Albany," gave the impression that he was a political lieutenant of the Republican leader, until it was explained in a statement from Albany that O'Hara had been engaged in preparing several special advertising issues of the Albany Evening Journal, owned by Mr. Barnes. O'Hara formerly lived with his mother at 43 Corinth Street, Providence. His brother, Edward P. O'Hara came here to take charge of the body.

GEORGE GIDDENS, ACTOR, DIES AT 75

SIXTY YEARS ON THE STAGE

Tony Lumpkin, in "She Stoops to Conquer" Among His Many Delightful Characterizations.

George Giddens, long well-known as an actor both in this country and in England, died yesterday at the St. Paul Hotel, Columbus Avenue and Sixty-first Street. He was 75 years of age and had been on the stage for nearly sixty years. At the height of his career he was considered one of the foremost low comedians of the English-speaking stage, and in more recent years, although generally cast for lesser rôles, he never failed to score a personal triumph in any play in which he appeared.

The actor made his last stage appearance at the Booth Theatre recently in "Happy-Go-Lucky," but ill health prevented his going on tour with that play. He had been failing for many months, but his death yesterday followed a comparatively brief illness.

Although he contributed scores of delightful characterizations to the many plays in which he appeared, George Giddens is perhaps best remembered for two rôles—that of Tony Lumpkin in "She Stoops to Conquer," and William, the waiter, in "You Never Can Tell." He played the former rôle here in 1906 and 1907 with William H. Crane and Ellis Jeffreys, and again with Annie Russell in 1912. He last acted in "You Never Can Tell" about six seasons ago at the Garrick Theatre with Arnold Daly.

George Giddens was a store clerk in Middlesex, England, before he went on the stage. He chanced to be seen by Sir Charles Wyndham in an amateur production, and went to Sir Charles's company at the age of 15. He made his first journey to America with Sir Charles in 1871, appearing with him in a long list of plays. He remained here for several seasons, and then went to Australia, coming back here again in 1877 to appear at the Union Square Theatre in "Pink Dominos."

Returning to London, he then remained with Wyndham almost continuously until 1891, and during this time became one of the foremost favorites of the English stage. In 1888 he became joint lessee of the Novelty Theatre, and appeared there for a time under his own management.

He paid another brief visit to America in 1893, and then did not come back here again until 1906. Since then, however, he has spent most of his time in this country. He played Sir Peter Antrobus in "Pomander Walk" (the rôle subsequently acted by Cyril Maude in London) at Wallack's Theatre in 1910, and continued in this part until 1912. In recent seasons he played in "The Melody of Youth," with Frances Starr in "Little Lady in Blue," in "Daddies" and "The Respect for Riches."

He had been married twice. Funeral services will be held tomorrow afternoon at the Campbell Funeral Church.

WOMAN IN AUTO KILLS ST. LOUIS PARK GUARD

Says She Thought He Was Bandit After He with Another Guard Had Chased Her Car.

Special to The New York Times.

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Nov. 21.—Charles J. Backer, aged 48, employed as a guard by the Park Department, was shot and instantly killed in Forest Park at 3:50 o'clock this morning by Mrs. Marie Scott, who, with her husband, Samuel J. Scott, was driving through the park in an automobile, the curtains of which were drawn down. The Scott machine was being pursued by a small park truck, in which Backer and William B. Bittmeyer, another park guard, were riding.

According to Bittmeyer's story their attention was attracted to the car by the fact that the curtains were drawn. Their suspicions being aroused they gave chase. As the park machine passed the other car Bittmeyer called on the driver to halt. The automobile came to a standstill. Backer got out of the park truck and went to the car.

"What's your hurry?" he demanded. He was answered by the barrel of a pistol pushed through the flap of the curtains of the car. Before he could draw his own revolver two shots were fired. Bittmeyer, seeing Barker stagger and fall, drew his own revolver and went to the other side of the car. He called on the occupants to throw up their hands. Mrs. Scott pulled up the flap of the curtain and handed him a .38-calibre revolver.

"I did not mean to shoot him," she said. "I only fired to scare him. I thought he was a robber."

Physicians said Backer's death was instantaneous. One shot had passed through the heart.

Mrs. Scott at the police station said she and her husband saw the truck and thought they were being pursued by bandits. When Backer came to the side of the car, she said, she became frightened and reached for the gun which was carried in a pocket flap in the car. She said she did not fire directly at Backer and did not mean to hit him.

Mr. and Mrs. Scott were released on bonds and were ordered to appear before the Coroner tomorrow. Backer leaves a widow.

New York City hospitals last year cared for more than 75,000 patients too poor to pay for treatment.

The cost was only $3.74 a day for each, but there were 1,402,952 days all told. In terms of dollars, this is a large sum. In terms of health restored and usefulness regained, it does not seem so large.

The hospitals were able to do this vital work because of the generosity of those more fortunate who gave money to help their fellows.

INSISTS INCOME TAX BE PAID ON DEC. 15

Houston Opposes Plan to Defer Payment of Last 1919 Instalment.

NEEDS IT TO PAY DEBTS

EXPECTS $650,000,000

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Secretary Houston of the Treasury, in a statement made public tonight, takes a firm stand against a movement for legislation during the coming session of Congress to extend the time for paying income and excess profits taxes due on Dec. 15. He also opposes the agitation for an extension to the year 1920 of the "net loss" provisions of the Revenue act.

He points out that nearly $700,000,000 in Treasury certificates of indebtedness will mature on Dec. 15, the day the final instalment of income and profits taxes for 1919 are due. Three hundred million dollars of additional certificates of indebtedness will mature early in January. The Treasury will also be called on Dec. 15 to meet interest aggregating $140,000,000 due on the First Liberty and Victory Loans.

Unless the Treasury is able to count on the payment on Dec. 15 of about $650,000,000 in 1919 income and profits taxes, Mr. Houston declares, the Treasury would be forced to offer more certificates of indebtedness in prohibitive amounts. He is also opposed to deferring payment of these taxes on the ground that it would, in effect, amount to the financing of private business by the Government.

"The Treasury," said Mr. Houston, finally, "must of necessity promptly meet the Government's bills. If uncertainty is to be introduced now into the tax payments upon which the Treasury principally relies, it clearly will be impossible for the Government to finance itself."

Secretary Houston's Statement.

The full text of Secretary Houston's statement follows:

"Suggestions have recently come to the Treasury from various sources, first, that the payment of the Dec. 15 instalment of income and profits taxes should be postponed by amendment of the Revenue act of 1918, and, second, that the 'net loss' provisions of the Revenue act be extended to the year 1920, presumably to permit the deduction of inventory losses during the taxable year 1920 from the net income for the taxable year 1920, with redetermination of the 1919 taxes accordingly. The agitation for these changes in the law can only do harm, and, from the point of view of the Treasury, it is important that the situation be made clear.

"The Revenue act provides for the payment of income and profits taxes in four quarterly instalments, due on March 15, June 15, Sept. 15 and Dec. 15. The taxes due on Dec. 15, 1920, represent chiefly the final installment due in respect to income and profits of the taxable year 1919. Taxpayers have already had nearly twelve months' grace as to this final instalment and have had every opportunity to make provision for its payment by setting up the necessary reserves or purchasing Treasury certificates of indebtedness. The Treasury Department, moreover, has adjusted its financial program to the tax payment dates provided by the Revenue act of 1918.

"There are outstanding nearly $700,000,000 of certificates maturing on Dec. 15, 1920, and $300,000,000 additional mature on Jan. 3 and Jan. 15, 1921. On Dec. 15 there will also become payable the semi-annual interest on the first Liberty Loan and the Victory Loan aggregating about $140,000,000. To meet these heavy maturities of principal and interest, and at the same time provide for the current requirements of the Government, enlarged as they are by the extraordinary burdens imposed upon the Treasury in connection with payments to the railroads, the Treasury relies chiefly on the income and profits taxes payable on Dec. 15.

Expects to Get $650,000,000.

"The instalment is not expected to exceed $650,000,000. The Treasury must finance its further requirements, so far as they are not covered by ordinary current receipts, through issues of Treasury certificates of indebtedness. It would be impossible to defer the payment of the December instalment of taxes without forcing the Treasury to offer Treasury certificates in prohibitive amounts.

"Moreover, to extend the time for the payment of the Dec. 15 instalment would simply mean that the Treasury would, in effect, be financing private business, which should provide for itself through ordinary banking channels, if necessary. In this respect the proposal is not different from those insistently made to the Treasury during the last few months, that Government funds be made available in various sections of the country to finance the holding of commodities or the export of goods to Europe.

"The suggestion that the 'net loss' provisions of the Revenue act of 1918 be extended to the year 1920 is equally impossible from the point of view of the Treasury. Under the present revenue law the Treasury receives in the year 1920 taxes based on the income and profits of taxpayers during the year 1919. The whole financial program of the Government requires that the Treasury be able to rely upon the collection of these taxes. No change should be entertained which would render uncertain the bulk of the Government's tax receipts and perhaps result in heavy claims for refunds with consequent increases in the public debt and additional short-term financing. There is, furthermore, no reason in fairness why taxpayers who made profits in 1919 and became liable to pay taxes on the basis of these profits should now be permitted to throw upon the Government the burden of losses incurred in the conduct of their own businesses in the year 1920.

"The Treasury must of necessity promptly meet the Government's bills. If uncertainty is to be introduced not into the tax payments upon which the Treasury principally relies, it clearly will be impossible for the Government to finance itself."

Spain's Civil Employes Demanding More Pay

MADRID, Nov. 21.—Discontent in all the departments of the Civil Service is rapidly increasing in consequence of the refusal of the Government to respond to appeals for increases in salaries in order that employes may meet the high cost of living.

Committees of Government employes in forty-nine centres of administration throughout Spain have called for simultaneous meetings on Dec. 5, at which a resolution demanding increases in pay ranging from 20 per cent. for the higher grades to 70 per cent. for the lower categories will be adopted and forwarded to the Government in Madrid.

If the meetings are prohibited, resolutions will be sent to the Government, which will have one week in which to reply. The organizers of the meeting up to the present have not announced whether or not a refusal by the Government to comply with their demands will mean a strike of the civil servants.

GEORGE J. WHELAN FORESEES BIG GAINS

PREDICTS HIGHER DIVIDENDS

Says Wall Street Attacks on Securities Are Not Warranted by Actual Conditions.

"All the tobacco companies with which my friends and I are identified are in excellent condition. Their earnings are large, and there is no reason why dividends should not be continued or increased. These companies will prosper, regardless of what happens in other industries, for there is special reason."

This statement was made yesterday by George J. Whelan, President of the United Retail Stores and associate of J. B. Duke, Thomas F. Ryan, Joseph Widener and others in world-wide ownership of tobacco companies and chain stores.

"Mr. Duke and my other associates share this opinion with me," said Mr. Whelan. "I feel that we should express this opinion publicly because the disturbance in the stock market has worried our shareholders and caused many anxious inquiries.

"I know that a statement such as this will in these times be construed by Wall Street traders as a sign of weakness. If you say anything helpful they attack your securities in the hope of discrediting any constructive effect of your remarks. They attacked the market when money came down to 6 per cent. That was done in the hope of showing that money was not the reason for the market weakness, but no sane man can deny that inability to get money has been the cause of this breakdown.

"I am willing to talk about the tobacco business because it is just entering a three-year period of greatest prosperity. To preserve the flavors of brands we have to use the merged crops of several years in current production. Because of that we do not get immediate benefit of low prices for the leaf. But we do get the benefit for a period of three years on a falling market. For that reason we did not get as much profit from the war business as did other industries. We have now entered a period in which we shall get our share, and it must last for years to come.

"These large earnings are not the result of increased prices, for we have not really increased prices over the level of 1914. They have advanced only enough to cover the larger wages and the war and revenue taxes. Retail prices can be reduced when taxes are reduced. Our business has grown in volume and our profits come from the larger turnover.

"Raiding and short selling have been responsible for most of the declines in the prices of our securities. It is beyond the power of any group of men to prevent such things at times. Our stocks are worth more intrinsically than they were a year ago. I want the people who own our securities to be reassured. There is not one thing wrong, and they should not be governed by stock market reports and prices.

"The 112,000,000 people in this country will not remain long in a condition of depression. There never was a period of prolonged depression in this country unless it was caused by the dumping here of foreign-made articles. Such a thing is not possible now in any business and particularly not in tobacco."

D'ANNUNZIO SEIZES ADRIATIC ISLANDS

Special Cable to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

MILAN, Nov. 21.—Messages from Zara, transmitted via Trieste, say that at d'Annunzio's orders his legionaries have occupied the islands of Ulbo and Selve, situated to the southeast of Lussin, where they form a sort of bridge between Quarnero and the Dalmatian Archipelago and are well fitted for observation posts and bases for operation against the coast.

According to the same messages, d'Annunzio intends to occupy Obravazzo and the Morlacca Canal.

The Epoca of Rome, commenting on this news, says that the Government is still officially uninformed regarding the matter and only knows that Zara City is still in a state of considerable ferment.

"If the news be true," continues this journal, "we have yet to learn why Admiral Millo, with wireless facilities at his command, has failed to inform Rome regarding the seizure of islands that belong to the Zara district, where his headquarters are."

D'Annunzio sends out a communique denying recent reports that the Council of the Regency and the Fiume municipality have disavowed him or tried to dissuade him from action. On the contrary, he says, they have renewed their protest against the Rapallo Treaty and have again insisted on annexation to Italy.

INTERCHURCH FUNDS SHORT

Bishop Nicholson Reports Only $100,000 for Debts and Expenses.

Bishop Thomas Nicholson of Chicago, chairman of the special committee appointed last July to reorganize the Interchurch World Movement, issued a statement last evening that the treasury contains only about $100,000 to liquidate floating indebtedness and for overhead expenses for the short time necessary for the committee to complete its work and report.

The bishop further stated that not any of this $100 000 can be used to pay underwritings of denominations. He said that if the different denominations and boards paid these in full the Movement will be able to meet all its obligations up to the time the committee reports.

RED BUREAUCRACY FASTENED ON RUSSIA

ONLY 11% ARE WORKMEN

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Wilhelm Dittman, a Radical Independent Socialist, who was one of the small group of German Socialists recently sent into Russia to confer with Lenin over the admission of the German Independents into the Third Internationale at Moscow and returned denouncing the Soviet system, has published an article in which he condemns the shortcomings of the Russian Soviet movement as sharply as he did in the congress of German Socialists.

In this article, entitled "The Truth About Russia," the text of which has just reached Washington, Dittman says:

"When German workmen, full of enthusiasm for the Eldorado of their dreams, come to Russia they are horrified and dismayed over the condition which they find there.

"The new Soviet bureaucracy and the Red Army are controlled by the party that brought them into being and seeks to fill them with its spirit, but the Communist Party itself has not been able to develop organically along democratic lines inasmuch as it sprang up in a minute and consists, for the greater part, of members lately accustomed to Socialism or Communism.

"Only a relatively small circle of the party is educated in these subjects, and, therefore, controls the party intellectually and has established, for the safeguarding of its dictatorship, a severe military organization. Thus the leaders —Trotzky, Zinovieff, Radek, Bucharin and others—have the control in a dictatorial fashion over the Communist Party, through the Communist Party over the proletariat, and through the proletariat over the mass of peasants and therewith the assembled population of Russia.

"The steady fighting has naturally greatly benefited the development of the dictatorship and the establishment of a bureaucratic and military system, and at the same time succeeded in calling out the organized terror which is employed steadily by the 'Extraordinary Commission.' According to the official report of the Revolutionary Tribunal from June 15 to July 15 of this year, that is, within a month, 893 persons were shot on the orders of the 'Extraordinary Commission.' This in addition to the 'administrative' executions.

"Freedom of the press, freedom of clubs and assemblies and personal freedom for all except Communists are as good as done away with. The elections to Soviets take place publicly in meetings and the secret election is forbidden. The elections are for the most part indirect and take place under terroristic pressure, so that opposition is scarcely possible and undesirable elections are annulled.

"General military service has again been introduced. Deserters are shot; in the same fashion economic life has been militarized. Workmen and employes are not permitted to strike; if they do, they are forced as 'deserters from the working front' to work in concentration camps. For women working service is obligatory from 18 to 40 years, for men from the age of 18 to 50.

"In factories controlled by factory councils, the councils were long ago abolished. The factory is run by a management imposed from above. The factory councils occupy themselves only with social welfare, discipline and party agitation, but so far as the management of the works goes they have nothing to say. They are only assistants of the Communist Party and of a state bureaucracy. The same is true of labor unions. All workmen in a factory are obliged to be members of a union and the fees are deducted from their wages.

"As a membership book in the Communist Party is regarded as a sure chance for an office under the Soviet bureaucracy, all sorts of dubious elements crowd into the party. * * * The greater part of the members of the Communist Party are employed somewhere in the Soviet organization. According to the latest official statistics of the Central Committee of the party, of the 604,000 members, which is the total for the whole of Russia, only 70,000, that is, 11 per cent., are occupied as workmen. Of the remaining 89 per cent. of the members 36,000 (6 per cent.), are busy as party officials, 12,000 (2 per cent.), as trade union officials, 162,000 (27 per cent.), are army officers and soldiers, 318,000 (53 per cent.), are State or municipal officials, and 6,000 (1 per cent.), are apprentices in stores. The whole party is, therefore, gradually changing into an army of bureaucrats, whose existence depends upon the maintenance of the dictatorship.

"The new Soviet bourgeoisie is already being spoken of. In Moscow one can count scarcely 100,000 workmen, but there are 230,000 Soviet male and female officials of all grades. * * * The immovability and slowness of official proceedings drive even the most patient inhabitants of Moscow to despair. In vain effort is made to discard incapability, sabotage and corruption from this gigantic bureaucratic machine."

2 BABIES DIE OF BURNS.

Two Mothers Also Are in Serious Condition From Stove Blast.

Shirley Stern, 18 months old, and Leonard Willinsky, 9 months old, of 1,853 Morris Avenue, the Bronx, died yesterday in Fordham Hospital, where they were taken Friday afternoon suffering from burns. Mrs. Augusta Stern and Mrs. Ida Willinsky, sister-in-law and mother of the dead children, were still in a serious condition in Fordham last night.

Last Friday afternoon coal stoves were started in the two-story brick dwelling at the Morris Avenue address. It was the first attempt of the Winter, and one of the ranges in the kitchen failed to work properly. While Mrs. Stern and Mrs. Willinsky with the children were nearby, a back draught caused an explosion of coal gas and the group caught the full force of the blast. Red hot coals set their clothing afire, and when neighbors arrived the mothers and their children were covered with flames.

TO CALL ARNSTEIN TODAY.

Justice Gould's Illness May Delay District of Columbia Case.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—Whether the trial of Julius W. (Nicky) Arnstein on charges of conspiracy relative to the $5,000,000 bond thefts would begin in the District of Columbia Supreme Court tomorrow depended tonight on the health of Justice Gould, who has been absent from the bench for several days. It is believed certain, however, that Arnstein, who was indicted by a Grand Jury here last Spring charged with conspiring to bring stolen securities into the District, would be brought to trial some time this week.

Several alleged go-betweens in the bond robbery who also were named in the indictment, including three Washington men, will be brought to trial with Arnstein.

Harding Reads Prayer Service Aboard Ship Canal Zone Prepares Big Reception for Him

ABOARD STEAMSHIP PARISMINA, Nov. 21 (by Wireless to The Associated Press).—President-elect Harding spent the quietest Sunday in months today resting and reading as his steamer, the Parismina, proceeded toward Panama under a bright tropical sun and over a sea as smooth as a mill pond.

Mrs. Harding, who remained in bed yesterday, was on deck early today and apparently in perfect health. After a walk about the ship the Senator and Mrs. Harding picked adjoining steamer chairs on the shady side of the promenade deck and remained there most of the day.

"The troubles of my heart are enlarged, oh, bring me out of my distresses."

So read Mr. Harding this evening from the twenty-fifth Psalm, as he led the religious services in the women's saloon.

To Mr. Harding's companions gathered about him as he solemnly intoned the words of David, there seemed a peculiar and dramatic significance to the simple lines he had deliberately selected from the appeal of the Psalmist, and the lines seemed to become the personal prayer of Senator Harding himself as he faces tremendous problems.

"Look upon mine affliction and my pain, and forgive all my sins. Consider mine enemies for they are many, and they hate me with cruel hatred. Let integrity and uprightness preserve me, for I wait on Thee."

Senator Harding made it clear that the verses revealed and reflected his attitude toward the assumption of the Presidency, and his further prayer, quoting from the same Psalm, was:

"Remember not the sins of my youth nor my transgressions; according to Thy mercy remember Thou me for Thy goodness' sake, O Lord."

COLON, Canal Zone, Nov. 21.—Preparations for the reception of President-elect Harding on the Atlantic side of the Isthmus of Panama took form today with the decision to erect arches of welcome near the docks and the announcement of Governor Arcia of the Colon Province declaring a half holiday on Tuesday when the President-elect arrives to enable school children to march. The Colon Board of Commerce meets in special session tomorrow to arrange for a banquet and another banquet will be given by Governor Arcia.

The Republican Band of Panama City will greet the visitor and a special guard of honor composed of the finest Panama Police Corps will be detailed for duty at the Hotel Washington, which is on Panama territory.

The Senator's decision to make the Atlantic side his headquarters has aroused some comment. The Pacific side Star and Herald of Panama City published today the following by its society editor:

"Some of the biggest men in the world have been known to make mistakes. In fact, the bigger the man the more apt he is to make them. Senator Harding, for instance, has engaged rooms on the Atlantic side for his entire stay on the Isthmus. Fortunately his mistake can be easily rectified and no doubt will."

SAYS BIG RED PARTY OPERATES SECRETLY

Chicago Federal Agent Asserts Radicals Have United Into One 'Underground' Body.

ITS LEADERS ARE RUSSIANS

He Declares Members Take Unusual Precautions to Prevent Detection by the Authorities.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—The first "underground party" that the United States has ever seen is now believed to be operating, according to Edward J. Brennan, Division Superintendent of the Bureau of Investigation of the Department of Justice here. "It appears," he said, "that the members, or a great majority of them, of the Communist parties have gone over to a United Communist Party that seems to be maintaining a secrecy never before attempted by an American radical organization.

"These people appear to be holding meetings with the utmost secrecy with which they can surround them. Names used appear to be fictitious.

"The Russian element which formed the backbone of the original Communist Party appears to be in control and to have the bulk of the membership of the new secret organization.

"Literature is frequently distributed without any indication as to where it comes from. In order to escape detection, it appears that the party members take unusual precautions. The members are known among themselves and literature is passed around among them, sometimes by messenger. When mailed, we know that it is done in small quantities, three or four letters or packages in a box in one corner of a city and three or four in a box in another section.

"The party has its largest membership in Chicago and New York. In Chicago meetings have been made extra difficult by the Illinois law which forbids renting property to an outlaw organization of this character. Property owners who become suspicious often call us to make sure on this point.

"It is my individual conviction that the United Communist Party, the old Communist Party and kindred associations of this nature are unlawful in that they advocate the overthrow of the Government by force and violence.

"The original Communist Party which was organized here a year ago, took a stand against participation in elections. This it held to be of no use and it urged a Bolshevist program. I have no knowledge myself of literature being recently distributed urging against taking part in the Presidential election, as was reported in press dispatches from the East at the time, but if this was the case, it was in line with what the party appears to stand for.

"It will be recalled that pamphlets, literature and circular letters were sent out broadcast to members of the Communist Party and that lecturers gave instructions at their meetings that if at any time a member was interviewed or attempted to be interviewed by any person, particularly by a Federal or State officer, to answer no questions and tell them nothing, and in the event of a member being arrested, to say nothing, and that as soon as possible he would be provided with a defense.

"Evidence adduced in the trial of John Jassinekas and J. Juodis before Judge Landis here last week disclosed how secretly they were working."

MILWAUKEE'S GIFT GETS THANKS OF FOCH

MARSHAL LAUDS PERSHING

French Government Decorates Delegation Which Tells Alsatians Their City Helped Win War.

STRASBOURG, Alsace-Lorraine, Nov. 21.—A large bronze plaque, commemorating "The Marseillaise," which was written here in 1792 by Captain Claude Joseph Rouget de Lisle, was presented to Strasburg today by a delegation from Milwaukee, Wis. The ceremony of presentation gave to Marshal Foch an opportunity to voice France's good feeling toward the United States and the Marshal's own optimism as to the future.

"When I recall the past and when I see the present," said Marshal Foch, "I do not doubt the future that awaits us."

In addition to Marshal Foch there were present General Weygand, assistant to Foch during the war, and General Gouraud, who commanded the army that entered Strasbourg after the war; G. F. Alapetite, Commissioner General to Alsace; M. Reibel, Under-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, and Colonel T. Bentley Mott, the American military attaché, representing Hugh C. Wallace, the American Ambassador.

After a review of the troops the American delegation, the spokesman of which was Lawrence Fitch, assembled before the statue of Kleber, opposite the City Hall.

Local organizations paraded to the tune of "The Marseillaise," shouting "Long live the United States," "Long live the Americans" and "Long live our brothers of America."

"This plaque, sculptured by Daniel Chester French of New York," said Mr. Fitch in his presentation speech, "will remain here as a permanent symbol of our affection—a symbol not only of Milwaukee, but of all the American people. The bronze of this plaque, taken from the banks of Lake Michigan, will be as enduring throughout the ages as our friendship."

Colonel Mott, on behalf of Mr. Wallace, read a message in which the Ambassador said:

"That which Rouget de Lisle prophesied, France has accomplished, and not for herself alone. Civilization itself was saved at the Marne by the French army to the sound of 'The Marseillaise.'"

"If you wish to go back a little in history," said Marshal Foch, in replying, "we will see that it was from an Alsatian family—from Alsatian stock—that came Pershing, Commander-in-Chief of the American armies, of the great war armies he led to victory. It is because I shared with him the honor of leading those valiant battalions to battle that I praise him, his past and his origin, which Alsace can claim by good title."

Referring to Mr. Fitch's description of part of Milwaukee as having been pro-German, Marshal Foch continued:

"But she took her part by bringing strong sentiment and strong aid in material and men to the Allies. The United States itself responded with generosity and gave all she had to aid France."

"The part of Milwaukee and America I cannot sum up in the brief time I have today, but I, who have seen them, will tell you that the 26th and 32d Divisions fought to the limit in the Argonne. They gave without counting the cost, and in particular they took formidable positions at Montfaucon. And they led us victorious to the Meuse and from the Meuse to Sedan. That is why I ask you not to forget Milwaukee today.

"You bring evidence of the sentiment that unites Milwaukee and Strasbourg. When I recall the past, when I see the present, I do not doubt the future that awaits us. Just as union has been our strength and given us incontestable victory in the past, so the union of our peoples and the bonds of sentiment uniting in their glorious past America and France, which are now one, will bring about the development and prosperity of our two nations."

Under-Secretary Reibel, on behalf of the French Government, presented decorations to the Americans. Mr. Fitch was made a Chevalier of the Legion of Honor. The insignia were conferred by Marshal Foch. Messrs. Karlow, O'Neil, Guerey and Earling were made Officers of Public Instruction. Messrs. Uller, Firthjarnt, Hickok and Thompson were named officers of the Academy. Dr. King, Miss Goodrich and Albert Blum were made Chevaliers of the Legion of Honor.

GREEKS AND TURKS AGAIN AT WAR

Rhallis Cabinet Will Continue Foreign Policy of Venizelos—Orders Army to Advance.

BUT SOME TROOPS REVOLT

France Decides to Keep Army in Syria and Cilicia Because of Events in Greece.

ATHENS, Nov. 21.—The Cabinet of M. Rhallis intends to continue the foreign policy of the Venizelos Ministry. It expects to give the Greek troops in Asia Minor aid in order that they may launch a new offensive against Mustapha Kemal Pasha, leader of the Turkish Nationalists.

LONDON, Nov. 21.—Orders for a general attack against the Turkish Nationalists on the Ushak front, about 130 miles northeast of Smyrna, in Asia Minor, have been issued by the new Greek Government, says a dispatch filed in Athens on Saturday to the Exchange Telegraph Company.

SMYRNA, Nov. 20.—The Greek garrison here is showing agitation and demanding demobilization. Lack of discipline and affrays between partisans of M. Venizelos and former King Constantine are reported.

An official communication issued by Greek headquarters today says:

"The enemy in force, supported by artillery, attacked our sector at Niazil, in the Cuchak region. The attack was repelled with the heaviest of enemy losses.

"Another strong column attacked our sector at Ainhan, north of Cuchak. It was repelled by our counter-attack, and the column retreated in disorder."

PARIS, Nov. 21.—France will not withdraw any of her troops in Syria or Cilicia for the present, according to a decision reached yesterday, when Foreign Minister Leygues, Minister of War Lefevre and General Gourand appeared before the Commissions of Finance and Foreign Affairs for a discussion the Near East situation.

MM. Leygues and Lefevre and both commissions agreed that the withdrawal of troops now would be construed by the Mussulman world as weakness on the part of France and decided to continue occupation despite the heavy financial expenditure.

M. Barthou, President of the Foreign Affairs Commission, and M. Briand, a prominent member, both supported the policy of the Government of Leygues, as well as General Castelnau, President of the Army Commission.

M. Leygues, replying to a query by M. Briand as to whether the new policy in the Near East had been instituted owing to the results of Greek elections, said:

"The political changes in Greece create a new situation which must be met and solved to our best interests. The situation will be discussed when we meet David Lloyd George (the British Prime Minister) and in accord with him examine into the various questions created by recent events."

Members of the commission said the Greek elections had given France a free hand and that France must profit by this and make new agreements to repair certain mistakes which had been made in the Near East during the last year.

The importance of Franco-British action on the Grecian question is heightened, according to the Foreign Office, by the news from Smyrna that shows bad morale among the Greek troops in certain districts and in the Smyrna garrison. The soldiers there are said to be exercising self-demobilization and demanding their return home, and it is feared this spirit finally will spread to the actual fighting front.

M. Leygues, the Foreign Minister, and David Lloyd George, the British Premier, in their conference, which has been set for some time in the latter part of the week, will discuss the situation. It is recognized by the Foreign Office that the developments in Greece and the possible lowered fighting power of the Greeks may make a revision of the Sèvres Treaty necessary, as that treaty was made upon the theory that it would be enforceable only through Greek cooperation.

AUSTRALIANS IN TURKEY.

Three Battalions of Antipodeans Arrive in Constantinople.

CONSTANTINOPLE, Nov. 21.—While telegrams from Athens declare the new Greek Government intends to continue the foreign policies of Venizelos, three Australian battalions arrived here today, indicating that Great Britain is preparing for the eventual weakening of Greek lines in the Ismaid region, where fighting soon is not improbable.

Negotiations between Constantinople and the Angora Government so far have been unsuccessful, owing to the fact that the demands of the latter increase with the growing strength of the Kemalists.

However, if the agreement between England and Soviet Russia prevents the latter from assisting the Nationalists, Mustapha Kemal Pasha will remain a big factor in Turkish politics.

Polish Leader Slain in Silesia.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—According to a dispatch from Beuthen, Prussian Silesia, a Pole named Theophil Kupka, formerly a collaborator of the Polish Reichstag Deputy Korfanti, has been assassinated at the door of his home by three masked men. The Deutsche Allgemeine-Zeitung says Kupka was the leader in a movement against Korfanti, his desire being to eliminate Korfanti from Polish influence in affairs in Upper Silesia.

LABOR UNIONS ASK TRADE WITH SOVIET

But Chairman Hannah Cuts Off Debate and No Vote Is Taken.

Labor unionists representing seventy-five organizations, with an estimated membership of 500,000, voted with salvos of applause yesterday for the adoption of a program calling for the removal of restrictions on trade with Russia and the opening of commercial relations with the Lenin-Trotzky régime. The workmen pledged themselves to use "every legitimate influence" to bring about the resumption of trade, and more specifically adopted resolutions favoring the organization of a nation-wide propaganda, particularly among labor unions.

Proposals for a general strike, made by several of the delegates, started a noisy discussion, which was suppressed by Chairman Edward I. Hannah of the Central Federated Union, who presided and who shut off debate. Others of the leaders opposed the strike plan. Delegates from the different unions pledged a total of $2,000 to start the propaganda movement.

The meeting was held at Beethoven Hall, 210 Fifth Street, under the auspices of the American Humanitarian Labor Alliance.

Mr. Hannah said that the attitude of the American Government was "strangling American industry." "If we are to continue our present policy our Government will find itself in exactly the same position as it has found itself in the League of Nations squabble," he said. "By the time the United States does recognize Russia, England will have five ships to the American one."

Harry Weinperger of the Farmer-Labor Party, declared that all "moral efforts" to lift the blockade had failed and suggested that a general strike be called. Leonard Minz of the Independent Workers' League favored this step also. "What the British workers did," he said, "was to threaten a general down-tool strike. Are we going to permit American workers to be outdone by the British workers?"

There were scattered cries of "No, no," but Chairman Hannah, after a whispered consultation with other leaders on the platform, objected to further discussion of the strike plan, asserting that the unions themselves could decide on any further steps. Circulars passed out by the alliance at the meeting declared that labor "is ready to join hands with the labor movements of England in the formation of the Council of Action and in deciding at once to inaugurate a general strike or to paralyze industry and transportation in order to prevent war against Russia."

An Executive Committee with twenty-five members and with Mr. Hannah as Chairman was appointed to formulate plans for a "nation-wide organization."

RÉJOICE WITH CONSTANTINE.

4,000 Greeks Here Celebrate—Venizelist Disturbs the Services.

The most conspicuous Ministers under Venizelos have fled from Athens, together with leading editors of the pro-Venizelos press, according to cable messages received by local Greeks, who turned out yesterday 4,000 strong, to hold religious services in celebration of of the fall of Venizelos and the probable return of Constantine.

A cablegram received by S. J. Vlasto, editor of Atlantis, which has been a consistent supporter of Constantine, reads:

ATHENS, Nov. 20.—Negrepontis, Repoulis, Jafintaris and Simos last night departed secretly from here, going to Marseilles. At the same time, the Call of Security of Giparis was dissolved, and many of its members have fled. All the political and military leaders imprisoned by Venizelos have been liberated from jail. Athens is continuing to celebrate with the greatest enthusiasm, waiting from moment to moment the news of the return of King Constantine. The Chambers have been called in next session for Thursday.

Negrepontis was the Minister of Finance, and Repoulis, Jafintaris and Simos held other Cabinet portfolios under Venizelos. According to Mr. Vlasto, information from Greece is that the Greek financial system had been reduced to a state of chaos under Negreponte, rumors having it that enormous shortages were discovered.

The Call of Security mentioned in the dispatch was organized and secretly armed as a guard for Venizelos.

Another cablegram made public yesterday was the following:

ATHENS, Nov. 20.—The Kyrou brothers, managers of the newspaper Hestia, have fled to Italy, as well as Kazasakis, editor of The Free Press; Nicopolus, editor of The Nation, each of them going to different places. The Exchange opened in indescribable enthusiasm, all the members singing the national hymn and the royal anthem. The dollar was selling today here at 11 drachmas.

One of the features of the religious celebration was a special service of thanksgiving for the return of the banished Theoclitos, Metropolitan of the Greek Church and President of the Holy Synod. He returned from exile, according to the dispatches, to succeed Meletios, the Metropolitan under Venizelos. Meletios paid a visit to this country two years ago and was received with great honors.

In the course of the service yesterday morning, one man in the church shouted: "Hurrah for Venizelos!" According to some accounts, the cry was taken up by others, creating a big disturbance. Other accounts say that only one adherent of Venizelos made himself heard and was quickly suppressed. According to Mr. Vlasto, who is an Exarch of the Greek Church, as well as editor of Atlantis, the sentiment of Greeks in this country is overwhelmingly against Venizelos, and the prospect of the return of Constantine, the brother-in-law of the Kaiser, has filled them with joy.

"There is an overwhelming sentiment against Venizelos here as well as in Greece, like that shown against President Wilson at the recent election here," Mr. Vlasto said. "The sentiment was caused by harsh and autocratic acts by Venizelos. He banished, imprisoned or killed many of his political opponents, gagged the press and put the country under a rule of terrorism.

"One of the important charges against his Government was that of graft in connection with a loan obtained in America. The Government obtained a loan of $120,000,000, from American banks, to be paid in food, clothing and supplies. The charge is that the country only received value to the extent of $89,000,000, and that $31,000,000 was absorbed in commissions, graft and waste."

WARREN TO RESTORE LOUVAIN UNIVERSITY

TWO CITIES CHOOSE HIM

Paris-Louvain Committees Both Favor Legion of Honor Member—First Notice Lost.

SAYS HE WILL ACCEPT

Is Glad of Chance to Help Belgium—Americans to Be Large Contributors.

Whitney Warren, the architect who designed the Grand Central Terminal and the group of buildings comprised in the Pershing Square district, has been selected to restore, in all its artistic beauty, the ancient University of Louvain, which was destroyed by the German Army that invaded Belgium in 1914.

Mr. Warren was informed of the honor conferred upon him by a cablegram received yesterday at his studio, 16 East Forty-seventh Street. The cablegram was signed by M. Widor, Vice President of the Belgian-French committee for the restoration of the university. The message read as follows:

"You were advised by letter that the Committees of Louvain and Paris had both unanimously nominated you architect for the reconstruction of the University of Louvain. This letter has evidently not been delivered. Today the committees met again, and the President, M. Imbart de la Tour, and the Vice President, M. Boutrouse, have asked me to confirm the nomination and to ask you to assume the task of reconstruction."

Mr. Warren, who has already been honored by the French Government with the Order of the Legion of Honor for his work in behalf of the Allies before the United States entered the war, and more recently honored by Gabriele d'Annunzio by appointment as American representative of the Free State of Fiume, said yesterday:

"This is the first information I have received about my selection to restore Louvain University. It is an unusual honor, and if I can possibly arrange it I shall be only too happy to take up the work. Much of the funds for this work is, I believe, to come from this country, for when Cardinal Mercier was here an American committee, co-operating with the Belgian-French committees, was formed, with Dr. Nicholas Murray Butler as its head, for the purpose of raising funds for the restoration of the library of the University of Louvain. This committee is now busying itself with the raising of a fund of $500,000, of which $150,000 has been pledged to date.

"Aside from the honor, I should be only too happy to do my part in this work, which is but part of the debt we owe to bleeding Belgium—happier still if it were in the ranks."

GREEK PLEBISCITE PUT OFF.

Gounaris Says It will Not Be Held Until Dec. 5.

ATHENS, Nov. 21 (Associated Press).—The plebiscite of the Greek people which is to determine whether Constantine will return to Athens has been delayed to Dec. 5, according to a statement made to The Associated Press today by Demetrios Gounaris, the Minister of Finance. The Patris protests against a plebiscite, declaring that decrees now issued name Constantine de facto King, and for this reason the Venizelists would be afraid to vote against him and probably would abstain from voting.

A conference has been held aboard the battleship Iron Duke at Phalerum between Premier Rhallis, Earl Granville, the British Minister to Greece, and the British Constantinople representatives to discuss the question of the continuance of financial support.

In view of the new national policy the Premier has ordered suspension of the censorship, but surveillance of dispatches to the foreign press continues.

M. Zaimis, who was Premier when Constantine was dethroned, has resigned as Governor of the National Bank of Greece. The financial situation in Greece is considered problematical.

MESSINA, Sicily, Nov. 20.—Ex-Premier Venizelos of Greece and his suite arrived in Messina harbor on board the yacht Narcissus today. Sophocles Venizelos, his son, was the only one to land. He is on his way to Nice, where he will be married. The yacht is still here, and its ultimate destination is not known.

ROME, Nov. 21.—Sophocles Venizelos, on his way to Nice, where he is to be married in a few days, and several of the Venizelos Ministers, passed through Rome today by train, on their way to France. They landed from the yacht Narcissus at Messina last night. M. Venizelos is still aboard the vessel. Among the Ministers were M. Repoulis, M. Negrepontis and General Bouris.

WARNS OF GREEK PERIL.

Paris Temps Says Allies Will Face "Series of Accomplished Facts."

PARIS, Nov. 21.—The Temps in a leading editorial today warns France and Great Britain that, owing to the rapidity with which the new Greek Government is acting, the Allies will find themselves "in the face of a series of accomplished facts."

"To speak frankly," the newspaper adds, "the French public does not understand how the Franco-British negotiations can be delayed by the regrettable indisposition of Earl Curzon of Kedleston (the British Foreign Secretary) and how, at the same time, a British Admiral can be talking with ex-King Constantine at Lucerne."

The Temps reminds the Allies that the "restoration has been accomplished" by the naming of Olga as Regent of Greece, and her issuance of a proclamation and instructions to the Government for the courts to act in the name of Constantine. It points out that the plebiscite in Greece will recall the former King and the new Chamber of Deputies will ratify the Sèvres Treaty, thereby binding the signatories under Article X. of the League of Nations covenant.

The Temps quotes Article X. and remarks that if the Turks or the Bulgarians cross the treaty frontiers "France, Great Britain and Italy will be bound to intervene as members of the League of Nations." It adds:

"Will it be said that in practice this text does not apply? This would mean an escape the Allies have no right to use. To give a guarantee while reserving the right to make it illusive would be to re-edit with premeditation the theory of a scrap of paper. Either one must not bind oneself or one must fulfill what is promised."

FALLER AGAIN WINS THE HARRIER TITLE

Dorchester Veteran First In Senior Cross-Country Run on Slippery Course.

BEATS RITOLA BY 150 YARDS

BOSTON, Nov. 21.—Fred Faller of the Dorchester Club repeated his victory of a year ago this afternoon when he led the pack home in the Senior A. A. U. cross-country championship event over the Franklin Park course. Faller who raced out in front from the very start, covered the course in 29 minutes, 1 second. He led W. Ritola of the Finnish-American Athletic Club of New York, winner of the recent junior titular event, by 150 yards at the finish.

The team trophy was won by the Dorchester Club with 26 points, the Paulist A. C. of New York was second, three points behind, and the Stoughton Catholic Club, new in athletics and the only other team entered, scored 80 points.

The race was held over a route of about five and a half miles covered with snow, and the athletes experienced difficulty in holding their feet on the hilly sections. Jimmy Henigan of the Dorchester Club, Frank Zuna of the Paulist A. C., a member of the American Olympic team at Antwerp, and his clubmate, Edward Walsh, retired from the contest before it was half over because of the poor footing.

Other members of the American Olympic team in the race were Pat Flynn, Max Bohland and Al Hulsebosch of the Paulist A. C., but even this combination of stars could not outrun the wearers of the Dorchester Club emblem, who worked much better as a team. The Stoughton Catholic Club finished well as a team, but it was made up of runners who had never competed against such high-class competitors.

Faller displayed as much speed as he did a year ago, when he romped away from the field over the Van Cortlandt Park course in New York. He was given a good race by Pat Flynn for nearly three miles, but the Paulist representative then fell back, after which Ritola, the Finn, chased after the leader. Faller, whose fame is international, ran on and at about four miles he led the national junior champion by seventy-five yards.

Ritola lost the trail with a mile to go, and this, coupled with the breaking of his shoe, which flopped around on his foot, handicapped him. Faller, however, sprinted the last quarter of a mile, indicating that he was by no means extended. Ritola finished about twenty-five yards ahead of Flynn. Then followed Garvey, less than five yards behind. John Doherty, another Dorchester man, finished fifth, and Al Hulsebosch of the Paulist A. C. was sixth. Runar Ohman, former champion of Sweden, running for Dorchester, was the next to cross the finish line. After him came Cecil Leath, of New Hampshire State College.

Clifton Horne and Victor McAuley of the Dorchester Club had a sprint for the next place, the former winning it by less than a yard. After McAuley, Bohland and Losero followed, the latter running a game race and finishing the last two and a half miles without any shoes.

The summary:

DONNELLEY IS HIGH GUN.

Hits 95 of 100 Targets at the Travers Island Traps.

Shooting conditions were poor at the Travers Island traps of the New York Athletic Club yesterday. The sky was overcast and the wind caused the blue rocks to duck and soar in a way that made it difficult for the nimrods to "kill" the tiny targets. As a result a small field returned low scores. The best work of the day was done by Ben S. Donnelley, the former Chicago shot, who is now living in New York. He was the high scratch gunner with a card of 95 out of a possible 100 targets.

The high handicap prize went to D. W. Gluck, who had a card of 99. It was the second time this season that the prize has been taken by a gunner who has not had a full total of 100 targets. Gluck also was the winner of a handicap special. Only two straights were made during the afternoon. One was returned by T. H. Lawrence in the shoot for the President's Cup and the other was made by D. I. Bradley in the shoot for the Byronel prize.

The scores:

McCahill Is High Scratch Gunner With a Card of 94.

T. J. McCahill was the high scratch gunner at the traps of the Larchmont Yacht Club, yesterday. He took the event with a card of 94 out of a possible 100 targets. The score was excellent, as the conditions were difficult and the nimrods had considerable difficulty in hitting the flying clay birds.

WEISS SHOWS WAY IN YORKVILLE RUN

Mohawk Distancer Leads Big Field Home in Five-Mile Road Race—Bell Second.

Samuel Weiss, young Mohawk A. C. runner, led home a record field yesterday in the Hugh J. McGrane Memorial handicap road race, conducted over a course of about five miles, under the auspices of the Yorkville Catholic Club. The young Bronx runner, making the best use of a handicap of 3 minutes 45 seconds, raced past the judges a winner in the actual time of 29:12. At the finish Weiss was enjoying a lead of about fifty yards on Johnny Bell, Knights of St. Antony, who started a minute later than the victor and finished second in 28:32. A Maack, another Knights of St. Antony runner, finished third, a few strides back of Bell.

A field of 180 runners, the largest entry attracted to a road race during the current season, started in the chase, which led through the streets of Yorkville, over Fifth Avenue and the Transverse Roads in Central Park, down Central Park West and back again on Fifth Avenue and Yorkville streets to finish in front of the Yorkville C. C., in East Fifty-seventh Street. Of the original field a total of 144 sturdy harriers were checked up at the finish as covering the full course. A crowd of several thousand crowded about the finish line, forcing the athletes to race through a lane formed by interested spectators reaching almost two crosstown blocks away from the finishing mark.

Representatives of the Morningside A. C. carried off the team laurels, compiling a low-winning total of 64 points. This gave the Winged M wearers the point trophy over eleven rival teams. The Mohawk A. C. was second and the Young Men's Catholic Lyceum third.

FOOTBALL

Princeton first, Harvard second and Yale third will undoubtedly be the record that history will keep of the football season of 1920 as far as it concerned the Big Three. Princeton assuredly fashioned together this year one of the best teams that has come out of Tigertown. It possessed individual brilliancy in backfield and line, was smart, alert and resourceful, and was ably directed by a quarterback who had a keen eye for his opportunities. Harvard was below the standard of other Cambridge teams, but it contributed to Eastern football a forward pass system that was of high calibre in its polish, deception and execution. And Yale had a great line and little else.

There should be no disposition to judge Tad Jones on the evidence brought forward by this one year. His is a case not to be judged in a single Autumn. He failed to reach the goal toward which all Yale teams strive, but he was beset by a discouraging series of injuries. At the end of the West Virginia game his list of cripples included Malcolm Aldrich, his backfield star; Captain Tim Callahan, Tom Dickens, one of the best tacklers in the East; Thorne Murphy, the quarterback; John Acosta, the veteran guard; Doc Jordan, the fullback, and possibly one or two others that have been overlooked in this offhand retrospection. All of these valued players returned in time for the Harvard and Princeton game, but men fresh from the infirmary are not the sort of material out of which is molded a smooth-working, unified, well-coached eleven.

But with all of this, there is no denying that Yale, in its two biggest games this year, seemed still to be groping in the mazes of ancient football. It was more mental groping than physical. The outward frame of modern football was there, but the spirit of the Yale attack was still that of 1900. The habit of sullen line battering, of monotonous and uninspired methods of attack, was too strong. About the Yale forward passing there was an air of reluctant yielding to modern practices. The aerial attack was merely a concession to the modern spirit, a last desperate use of a new fangled device after old methods had been tried and found wanting.

Yale seems still to need exactly what it needed a year ago—a system that will allow of ready and intelligent adaptation of the best in the new football, which is no longer a wild theory but a hard fact. Yale is slowly falling further and further behind the procession. For the first time in its history, it is now confronted with the unenviable record of having lost games to both Harvard and Princeton in consecutive years. In this fact and in the records of the Big Three games since the modern style of play originated will be found much food for thought at New Haven.

Princeton was without doubt the best of the three teams. The Tiger had all the earmarks of a first-class eleven. In conception and execution the attack and defense were of a high order, characterized by spectacular playing, originality, smartness and the right amount of daring generalship. Its forward passing was on the whole inferior to Harvard's, but in every other important respect the Tiger had his own little niche in the front rank.

BILLIARDS

It has been many years since billiards has been the willing victim of such hectic excitement as now pervades the sport. From a season that promised little out of the ordinary in the way of competition, the campaign on the green cloth has suddenly, and almost by magic, been transformed into a jamboree fraught with promise. And all because Edouard Horemans, the famous Belgian player, was finally prevailed upon to come to this country. Ever since he arrived in this city last week little besides the prospect of a match between Horemans and Willie Hoppe for the world's professional championship in the immediate future has been discussed in cue circles.

In spite of the fact that it has been learned since Horemans's arrival here that he has been accustomed to playing under somewhat different conditions in Belgium, Holland and France from those which obtain in the United States, the fact remains that his performances have been of such merit as to stamp him a player of exceptional ability. It is true that the conditions under which he has played are more conducive to protracted runs and big averages than those which are in vogue in this country, but at the same time his records are so great that he must be accepted at face value until he has been proved otherwise.

Horemans's plans while here are still being held in abeyance. It has not yet been decided whether he will engage in the ten exhibition matches he is reported to have contracted for before playing Hoppe or afterward. This, of course, is the matter in which billiard fans are chiefly interested. They are anxious to see Hoppe and Horemans engage in titular combat without any more delay than is absolutely necessary for the Belgian to become acclimated and to have had sufficient practice to perfect his game to the changed conditions he must meet in matches here. His plans should be definitely arranged within the next few days.

Willie Hoppe has formally challenged Horemans to play for the title before the end of December. In doing so R. B. Benjamin, Hoppe's business representative, explained that they do not wish to embarrass Horemans in the least, but that they believe he will have had ample time before the end of next month to have attained his best form. It seems that the unusual procedure of the champion's challenging a contender was decided upon by Benjamin and Hoppe when some circulation had been given to what has been designated as an "unfounded" report to the effect that Hoppe did not care to engage Horemans until after he (Hoppe) has completed the extensive exhibition tour he has arranged to start immediately after the first of the year. Hoppe emphatically denies that such is the case. He says, however, that he can see no good reason why he should sacrifice any of his lucrative bookings when it is possible for him to plays Horemans before the date set for the beginning of the tour.

Benjamin has requested Horemans's business representatives to meet him this week to arrange details for such a match. When the meeting will be held is problematical at this time, but it is reasonable to expect that something of a definite nature will be announced before the end of the week.

HORSE SHOW

Year after year sees the sphere of the horse more limited, but interest in those types which compete in the tanbark ring apparently is not affected. The thirty-fifth annual show of the National Horse Show Association, held last week at Madison Square Garden, brought back memories of the day when the horse really was king along the lanes of travel, whether for business or pleasure.

This latest of Garden horse shows cannot be classed as the greatest ever held in the historic amphitheatre, but it surely was the most successful held in a decade. The attendance for the week has been estimated by keen observers as close to 60,000, and it is figured that the visitors paid $100,000 to gaze upon the equine in his various efforts on the flat or over the jumps, in harness or under saddle. They were rewarded with some of the finest exhibitions of horsemanship displayed since the horse show began to be an annual fixture here.

There can be no doubt that the horse show of recent years has shown a decline in interest on the part of the public and a resultant deterioration in the class of exhibits. The noble animal has lost much of the prestige that formerly was his, due particularly to the advance of the automobile for pleasure travel, and conditions were reflected in the horse show. Hence the satisfaction that must be felt by the promoters of the show and all lovers of the horse to have a renaissance in interest such as was positively shown last week.

Progressive ideas by those who direct the show have been greatly responsible for the new conditions. The promoters seized upon polo as likely to show the horse in a specialty hitherto neglected by those in charge of the Garden shows, and the sport proved a highly spectacular adjunct to the program. The World War developed a new interest in military chargers and army remount work, two features which received much attention when the program for the 1920 show was drawn up. The exhibitions by the six-horse gun teams and the machine gun carts added a martial touch to the exhibition on each of the six days and did much to make this show stand out above those of recent years.

These novelties did much to make the show a success, but they hardly can be regarded as entitled to all the credit. The regular horse show classes were unusually well filled, the entries were of high type, and the competition in the various classes was decidedly keen. The field of exhibitors seems to be broadening, and new owners are making their presence felt. There is every reason to believe that the Horse Show will grow greater as years roll by.

The local squash tennis season, which has already been under way for two weeks in the Class B division of the Metropolitan League, will gather renewed impetus the present week, when the Class A clubs, which comprise most of the best players of the district, will unlimber their racquets. Like the Class B teams, those of Class A this season will be composed of seven men each, instead of five, as was the case last year, and the change seems calculated not only to extend the scope of the sport, numerically considered, but to heighten the interest in the outcome by adding to the uncertainty of the race. With the increase to seven-man teams, obviously, the tendency will be to equalize the chances of all the participating clubs by spreading the talent through the league.

The same five clubs that competed last year for the Class A championship won by the Harvard Club, which maintained a clean slate through the season, finishing with eight straight victories, will again enter the lists this year. Yale will play against the Harvard Club and the Princeton against the Columbia Club to start the ball rolling next Friday. All the players in this league are veterans of at least one season in team tournament competition, and as most of them have been working off the rough edges of their play in the last two or three weeks, the quality of performances should be of the highest from the start. The players have needed an early start in practice this season to accustom themselves to the new standard ball, which is much faster than the old one, and speeds up the play considerably.

With the beginning, a week from today, of the annual Fall scratch tournament of the National Squash Tennis Association at the Columbia Club, the local exponents of this fascinating and strenuous game will be at their busiest. Although the popular appeal of squash tennis will always be limited because of the comparatively small number of courts available, nevertheless the number of its devotees is increasing annually. It is gratifying to note that not only in the East but through the Middle West especially the number of clubs which have added squash courts to their equipment has grown greatly. Up to the present the game has been confined largely to Eastern clubs, but there is increasing evidence that it will take on the proposition of a truly national sport in the not too distant future.

BASEBALL

What ordinarily has been the dullest part of the year for the baseball fan—the weeks immediately following the world's series—has been marked this year by much action of importance in the two major leagues. The tendency all along the line seems to be that of getting the house in order at the earliest possible time for another championship campaign. Such activity on the part of the club owners gives promise of important deals during the off season, as the desire to make changes appears to be general.

Football has been able to crowd baseball out of the limelight during most of the recent years, but such has not been the case this year. A new leader has been named to direct the game, at the highest annual stipend ever guaranteed anybody connected with the sport. Owners desiring to retain their 1920 managers lost no time in signing them for the future, those of an opposite mind asked for resignations, and two new team leaders already have been named. In three other cases the 1921 managers are known but their appointing have yet to be announced officially.

Selecting training camps, or at least announcing the selection, has been part of the late December or early January program with club owners in other years, but it is possible even at this early date to name the cities where twelve of the sixteen major league clubs will do their training. This is another indication of the attention which club owners are giving to the sport at a time which in the past has seen little action. Officials of several clubs are now arranging their Spring training program despite the fact that the start southward is a matter of more than three months distant.

All this activity is a good omen for the future of the sport. It serves to keep the fan interested during that part of the year when the player necessarily is in the background. From the time the diamond star passes out of the picture with the close of the world's series until he begins to attach his signature to a contract or register a kick about the same there has been anually a dearth of such news as the average fan craves to read. Wrangling by club owners never filled the bill. This year peace is reigning in the majors, club officials are all engaged in getting things ready for next year, the fan is getting his fill of the Winter dope, and baseball in general will gain in prestige and popularity under such conditions.

COLLEGE HOCKEY PLANS DISCUSSED

Delegates to Meeting Here Arrange Tentative Schedules—Favor Six-Man Teams.

Further progress in the organization of an intercollegiate ice hockey league was made yesterday afternoon in a meeting of the representatives of Eastern colleges at the Biltmore Hotel. Following a session in Philadelphia the previous week, a tentative constitution and by-laws had been drawn up and this was submitted at yesterday's session and accepted by the members in attendance.

It was decided to call the league the Intercollegiate Ice Hockey League of America, and to outline its policy as designed "for the advancement and protection of the sport in this country." Tentative schedules of several of the teams were likewise announced. The colleges represented at yesterday's meeting were Dartmouth, University of Pennsylvania, Princeton and Yale. Cornell's representative, M. G. Sullivan, was not present, but Cornell had already signified its approval of the league and its intention of entering.

It is understood that Harvard also approves the idea and will probably join the league, but the Harvard representative, Philip Hoper, was not in attendance yesterday. No definite information has been received as to Harvard's attitude, although a place is being kept open for a team from Cambridge.

The delegates who have attended the meetings thus far have expressed themselves in favor of six-man hockey teams, while Harvard prefers the seven-man combination. This might mean a hitch in the arrangements, so far as the Crimson is concerned, but it is not believed that the obstacle will be insurmountable. Inasmuch as Harvard has not thus far participated in the organization of the league, the present intention of the members is to go ahead with the idea of six-man teams.

Dr. George Orton of Pennsylvania was the temporary chairman of yesterday's meeting and C. L. Parsons of Yale was appointed permanent Chairman. Other delegates present were the managers of the several hockey teams, Penn being represented by George Rynick, Dartmouth by S. W. Plumb, Jr., Princeton by T. M. Bartow, while Chairman Parsons looked out for Yale's interests. Penn's Graduate Manager, Major Maylin J. Pickering, and George F. Pawling of the Philadelphia Ice Palace were also in attendance and helped in the drawing up of the schedules.

It was voted not only to adopt the temporary constitution and by-laws, but to send copies to all the large colleges, giving them the opportunity to enter the league as charter members any time during the fifteen days intervening between yesterday's meeting and Dec. 5, when the next meeting of the league will be held at the Biltmore. It is expected that the league will start active operations with a comparatively few teams in the field, extending its scope as conditions warrant.

Harvard, provided the Crimson enters the league, will make the Boston Arena its home rink, while Yale, Princeton and Penn will utilize the Philadelphia Ice Palace. Cornell will be a traveling organization, though an arrangement may be made whereby the Red and Blue home games will be played in Ithaca. Dartmouth will have its own rink in Hanover but may play some of its home league games in Boston.

In arranging the various schedules only one league date was definitely fixed. That was for the game between Yale and Dartmouth, which will be played on Feb. 12 at Hanover. Arrangements for all the other games are tentative, excepting for two practice games which Yale will play at Philadelphia on Dec. 21 with the Quaker City Club, and Dec. 22 with St. Paul School. Dartmouth's dates follow: Jan. 22, Harvard at Boston; Feb. 12, Yale at Hanover; March 4, Penn at Philadelphia; March 5, Princeton at Philadelphia.

The tentative Princeton schedule follows: Jan. 15, Yale at Philadelphia; Jan. 22, Penn at Philadelphia; Jan. 29, Harvard at Boston; Feb. 5, Yale at a rink to be decided later (there is a possibility that this game may be played in an open-air rink in New York); Feb. 12, Harvard at Philadelphia; March 5, Dartmouth at Philadelphia. On the Penn list, as now arranged, are three games: Jan. 8, Yale at Philadelphia; Jan. 22, Princeton at Philadelphia, and March 4, Dartmouth at Philadelphia.

LEONARD TO MEET WELLING.

Lightweights Will Box Principal Bout of Program at Garden.

A card of forty-one rounds of boxing is scheduled for Madison Square Garden Friday night, according to the program completed by Promoter Tex Rickard. The stellar attraction will be the world's lightweight championship bout between Benny Leonard, title holder, and Joe Welling, Chicago contender. This contest has aroused unusual interest, and a capacity crowd is expected to witness it.

A ten-round semi-final will bring together Panama Joe Gans and George Christian, who will strive for possession of the colored middleweight championship belt offered by Promoter Rickard and now held by Gans. Another ten-round bout will be between Jack McClelland and Jeff Duffy, the Chicago middleweight, who disposed of Terry Miller in forty-five seconds last week, in his first bout here. Jimmy Powers of Jersey City and Harvey Bright, a Brooklyn boxer, will open the show in a six-round encounter.

WOULD PLAY CENTRE FIVE.

Fordham Seeking Basketball Game With Kentucky College.

Negotiations are now being carried on with a view to having the Centre College basketball team meet the Fordham University five in New York this Winter, according to the announcement made by Myles B. Amend, the manager of the Maroon team, last night. Bo McMillan, Armstrong and Roberts, stars of the Colonels' football team, are also on the basketball team, and their first appearance in New York would be a popular attraction here.

STEEPLECHASE FOR HORSES OF ALLIES

United States Army officers will have an opportunity to take part in the Grand Military Steeplechase to be held at Sandown Park, Esher, England, on March 11 and 12, 1921, according to information just received in this country. The competition is open to horses owned by any State, or the property of any officer who served in the allied and associated armies during the great war. British army horses will not compete. The weight specified is 161 pounds.

The race is the Allies Grand Steeplechase of 800 sovereigns, to be divided 500 to the winner, 150 to the second, 100 to the third and 50 to the fourth. The horses are to be ridden by officers on the active list of their own army, and in uniform. The distance is two and one-half miles and the entrance fee is two sovereigns, which will be returned to all starters.

The detailed measurements of the jumps are highly interesting. The open ditch is six feet in width and two feet deep, behind a hedge 4½ feet in height. The plain fence is about 4½ feet in height, and the water jump will call for a leap of more than twenty feet by any horse that can execute it successfully. The hedge in front of the jump is about three feet in height and the water stretches over a width of approximately fifteen feet. This jump will furnish a difficult task for the steeplechaser.

Entries for the race will close on Feb. 15 with Messrs. Weatherby and Sons, 15 Cavendish Square, London, W. I. It is requested that all entries be sent at least a week before the date of closing, to allow for any corrections that may be necessary before the race closes. A certificate stating the name, age, sex, pedigree if known, color and any distinguishing marks, signed by a racing club official or public officer of the country, must accompany each entry. The Sandown Club will give free stabling and forage for horses sent over. Information regarding starting time and probable time of arrival is to be sent to the manager of Sandown Park, Esher.

GOOD BOUTS ON MAT CARD.

Lewis and Zbyszko to Meet Tonight at 71st Regiment Armory.

The first wrestling matches of the season will be decided this evening in the Seventy-first Regiment Armory, where a program of three bouts will be conducted. Strangler Lewis, the Kentuckian, and Wladek Zbyszko, Polish giant, will exchange grips in the stellar bout to a finish. This match will provide a test between Lewis's dread head-lock and Zbyszko's torturing toe hold. Unusual interest is manifest in the match, judged by the reports of heavy demands for seats. As a consequence Promoter Jack Curley has arranged to open the armory doors at 7 o'clock.

Record—Fifty miles and nine-tenths laps.

Promptly at 12:05 this morning, Jack Dempsey, world's heavyweight boxing champion, snapped the hammer on a pistol whose bark sent fifteen teams off on their continuous journey of 142 hours in the international six-day bicycle race at the Twenty-second Regiment Armory. A crowd of about six thousand, jamming the track infield and filling the majority of seats in the armory, let out a cheer which shook the building foundations as the pistol shot echoed through the armory and the riders sped around the track, fresh and full of energy, on the start of their grind.

The riders got away to a flying start, three circuits of the track having been made before Champion Dempsey pressed his finger on the trigger. The cyclists who started for the fifteen teams were Goullet, Magin, Eaton, Hanley, Lang, Drobach, Kopsky, Corry, McBeath, Dupuy, Girardengo, Madonna, Buysse, Aerts and Verrals.

The bark of the gun caught Goullet in front of the field, and with the report he broke away at a dizzy pace. The Newark rider carried the field around for four laps, when Drobach relieved him. At the mile mark Dupuy was in front, and then the pacemaking task was alternated between the riders.

The first pickup was made when Freddie Hill relieved Goullet, after two miles had been covered. Cecil Walker relieved McBeath for the second pickup.

Three teams were deadlocked for the lead in the first of the sprints. Goulet and Freddie Hill, Emil Aerts and Charles Deruyter, Willie Hanley and Willie Keller contended on even terms during the series of five one-mile spurts about the saucer track. These three combinations each accounted for twelve tallies.

Madden and Magin emerged with 11, Buysse and Spiessens had 11. Drobach and Weber 10, Girardengo and Oliveri 9, Dupuy and Godivier 7, Walker and McBeath 5, Eaton and Kaiser 5, Lang and Osterritter 4, Verras and Gaffney 3, Spencer and Corry 2, and Kopsky and Bello 2. The Madden-Piercy combination was the only team which failed to score points.

Alf Goulet scored the closest victory of the series, in the opening brush, when he just managed to get his wheel ahead of Girardengo, the Italian rider, who fought him pedal for pedal over the entire last lap.

First Rider Appears.

Joe Kopsky, partner of Tom Bello, was the first rider to make his appearance awheel. Joe pedaled out on the track at 11:30, and on his first spin around the oval was greeted with ringing cheers. Two minutes later Bello took the track, and at 11:35 Alphonse Verrais was aboard his mount, getting a trial spin over the saucer.

At short intervals thereafter members of other teams appeared on their mounts until there was a line of a dozen riders or more whirling around the saucer.

At 11:50 a pistol in the hands of Announcer Peter Prunty called the crowd to attention to begin the traditional introductions, in which teams made one circuit of the track to the plaudits of the assemblage. Gaffney and Vereals were the first pair, and received a warm ovation. Then followed Spiessen and Buysse, Giaradengo and Oliveri, Giardengo carrying a bouquet in addition to the Italian national colors. De Ruyter and Aerts followed, and then in succession came Madenna and Piercy, Dupuy and Godivier, McBeath and Walker, Spencer and Corry, Kopksy and Beloes, Deboch and Weber, Lang and Osterritter, Hanley and Keller, Eaton and Kaiser, Magin and Madden and Goulet and Hill. As the latter pair rode around the crowd hissed—a characteristic of six-day crowds when the favorite combination makes its first appearance. The band played "The Star-Spangled Banner" and the crowd made an imposing spectacle as it stood with bared heads until the last strains of the anthem died among the steel girders of the huge armory.

The scene attending the race was characteristic. The enticing booths of concessionaires confronted the fans no matter where they turned. The candy and fruit man had the place of honor in the infield. Surrounding the supports of the saucer-shaped track in the front part of the building, were booths reminding one of Coney Island. The miniature race track was there, along with a cupid-doll chance game and other attractions, and of course the "hot dog" man was in evidence. No six-day race would be complete without him.

The size of the crowd which witnessed the opening indicated that the race would be attended with success. From early evening they kept arriving at the Washington Heights armory, and when the start was actually made, every expectation of the promoters as to attendance was fulfilled.

Takes Blanket With Him.

Women were conspicuous in the gathering, and apparently enjoyed the scene, in some cases more than their male companions. One thoughtful fan went to the race with a heavy blanket clasped tightly in his hand, evidently in anticipation of a long siege. Another veteran looker-on spread papers on the infield floor an hour before the race started and proceeded to take a nap, which was not interrupted until the field started its grind of 142 hours.

The Twenty-second Regiment Band enlivened the hours preceding the start with popular airs, and song-boosters contributed their vocal efforts to making everything homelike while awaiting the start.

In the approaches to the armory, ticket speculators besieged prospective spectators with bargains in pasteboards. They were marked down according to location and the appearance of the prospective purchaser. Sweet nothings about fifty-cent reductions were whispered to the fans on their way to the armory, but none seemed to pay much attention to the advice.

Two changes were announced in the race before the start. One of them affected a team scheduled to start and the other had to do with the time of the first sprints. The latter change advanced the initial sprints of the race an hour, the seven speed bursts being held at 1 o'clock instead of 2:30 as planned.

The team change carried the withdrawal of Dario Lacomarsino, who, with Vincent Madonna, had formed the Italian combination. Lacomarsino, while practicing early yesterday afternoon slipped from the bank of the saucer and sustained injuries to his shoulder. After an examination Dr. M. W. Henry, one of the race physicians, refused to let the Italian start. The management thereupon teamed Charles Piercy, Australian, with Madonna, and the combination is riding as the Italian-Australian team. Fifteen teams are entered in the race.

The riders include the pick of the American talent, and a number of new European stars. Alfred Goullet and Freddie Hill are regarded as favorites for the premier prize. Other American combinations include Jake Magin, who with Goullet won the March race at the Garden, and Eddie Madden, winner of the December race; Ray Eaton and Harry Kaiser; Willie Hanley and Willie Keller; Gus Lang and Charles Osterritter, Pete Drobach and Fred Weber, and Joe Kopsky and Tom Bello.

New York Women

Notably well-dressed are New York women, and particularly so as to footwear. Yet there is no more active woman anywhere than our own New Yorker.

Perhaps that's why so many of them are wearing the Dr. Reed Cushion Shoe. Its charming daintiness of line and refinement of construction appeal to her sense of the artistic and harmonious. And its conforming, pliant cushion that so eases the strains of an active day, appeals to her native practicality.

FOOTBALL DRAMA NEARS FINAL ACT

Curtain Will Descend on Current Season With Few Important Games This Week.

YALE MADE VAIN FIGHT

Kept Harvard Away From Goal, but Was Outclassed as a Team—Dartmouth Showed Real Strength.

The gridiron drama of 1920 has now been presented for your approval, ladies and gentlemen, and there remains only the epilogue. Keep your seats, however, for the epilogue is well worthwhile, providing roles as it does for Pittsburgh and Penn State, Cornell and Pennsylvania, the Presidents and the Mountaineers, the Army and the Navy.

Nevertheless, as above stated and hereby confirmed, football returns are about all in for the current Autumn. The curtain, if not yet down, has begun its descent. Saturday saw the season's culminating contests, even though a few games which will have a bearing upon the more or less presumptuous awards by many critics of utterly mythical honors remain to be played on Thursday and Saturday of the current week.

The gala scene of last Saturday's gridiron festivities was staged, of course, in the huge bowl at New Haven, where gathered the most tremendous, if not tumultuous, assemblage that ever palpitated its way through a football game in this country. That Harvard would defeat Yale in the tussle which is anticipated, for some reason, above all others annually, was generally considered almost a foregone conclusion. The surprise lay, then, not in the victory of the Crimson, but in the comparatively small margin by which it was gained, and the notable struggle put up by a Blue machine supposed to be utterly outclassed. As a matter of fact, it was outclassed. Yet it fought so desperately, with all its creaky joints oiled by partisan spirit and storied enmity that no sacreligious Harvard heel was able to trample the sacred Eli territory for a touchdown.

Peculiarly enough, in spite of this fact the Harvard team made a show of the rival organization in practically every department. Yale was outrushed about three to one, but occasionally managed by sheer desperation to avert the threatened points. At other times, after the Cantabrigians had swooped down by sheer driving force to within hailing distance of the intensely coveted touchdown, either blunders or the apparent lack of that final punch averted the expected tally.

Harvard Master of Air Attack.

In the overhead game Harvard was immensely superior, having, indeed, a remarkable forward pass attack, while Yale had none whatever worthy the name. Yet, despite all Yale's disabilities and Harvard's powers, the Crimson proved unable to trample the New Haven team with anything like the ease of Princeton's victory over the same team. There was a finish, a resourcefulness and a smartness about the Tiger eleven of Nov. 13 that Fisher's team has never shown this season.

The three Eastern games of chief importance after the Battle of the Bowl resulted wholly as had been anticipated, and with the scores pretty fairly representing the supposed relative merits of the opposing elevens. Dartmouth and Brown, two of the really formidable teams of the Fall, put up the most stirring of these three tussles on the turf of Braves Field in Boston. The Green was out to avenge that 7 to 6 beating of 1919, and gained its end in a manner satisfactory to the Hanoverians if not to Ned Robinson's squad. The Providence machine, which has been carefully forged and welded of material pretty close to the best ever developed at Brown, got its consolation prize, nevertheless, actually outplaying for a portion of the game the best that Coach Spears could line up. Brown can take to itself considerable flattering unction at the close of a season which includes close struggles with Yale and Dartmouth.

The second of the three games mentioned attracted attention chiefly from undergraduates and alumni of the two institutions engaged, because this season both Pennsylvania and Columbia, for one and another cause, had teams weak and, in the former case particularly, unworthy of the university's traditions. There seems to be very little doubt that Heisman's treatment of Penn's case had been a radical, uprooting and transplanting one. It will take another Autumn at least to demonstrate the wisdom or folly of his course. The upbuilder of Georgia Tech's great machines of recent seasons has been handicapped at Philadelphia, too, by a lack of sterling material in certain departments. His team is likely to give a much better account of itself in the year to come.

As for Columbia, there has been plenty of spirit and lots of good men there ever since football was resuscitated on Morningside Heights, but the schedule arranged for O'Neill's squad proved too pretentious for the team. The local machine was a pretty worthy antagonist for the New England college teams of the second class, but it was not endowed with enough power to justify its pretentious list of opponents. Every supporter of the Blue and White will hope for, and has reason to anticipate, a better status for next year's eleven.

Colgate Makes Plucky Stand.

The Syracuse-Colgate tilt, the third in the list, also suffered somewhat from loss of prestige, owing to the lamentable showing of the latter in earlier contests, as well as a couple of bitter pills swallowed by the former. The Orange surprised the football world this Autumn more by the games it managed to lose than by those it won, although there are creditable victories in its list. As for Colgate, her season was not up and down or in and out. It was simply down and out. The Hamilton eleven emulated Yale, however, in its final engagement by giving a markedly superior opponent a hard, spirited scrap, actually making twice as many first downs as the victorious team.

The real surprise of Saturday was the ease with which Lafayette rent its triumphal way through Lehigh for a decisive victory. That same Lehigh machine, a week earlier, had held the Penn State juggernaut to a 7-to-7 tie and had thereby doubled its prestige at least. It was commonly expected to chastise Lafayette without marked difficulty. The outcome is a huge ostrich plume in the Eastonian cap.

Fordham caught a tartar and beat it, and Williams caught a tartar but didn't beat it. Boston College caught a third of the same species in the Marietta eleven from the Buckeye State, but managed to bring power enough to bear to keep her slate unsmirched. Boston thereby remained listed with the Virginia Military Institute, the only unbeaten and untied elevens of consequence along the Atlantic seaboard.

Other teams which, although undefeated, have been held level in one or more combats, are Harvard, Princeton, Penn State, Pittsburgh and Stevens.

W. VA. IN GOOD CONDITION.

MORGANTOWN, W. Va., Nov. 21.—West Virginia was extremely fortunate in her gruelling game with Bethany College here on Saturday and had none of her 'Varsity stars injured. Martin was taken out because of a supposed injury but it turned out not to be serious, and the mountaineers should be primed physically for the important clash with Washington and Jefferson on Thanksgiving Day at Washington. It is the general belief that after a tempestuous session in which much criticism, constructive and otherwise, has been hurled at the coaching staff the proper combination has been found.

Boynton, Williams Star, May Enter West Point Next Fall

WILLIAMSTOWN, Mass., Nov. 21.—Benny Boynton, Williams football star and all-around athlete, may enter West Point next Fall, although he has not fully made up his mind yet. He has the matter under advisement and his friends seem to think that he will aceept the chance offered him. Boynton completed his gridiron career at Wiliams with Saturday's game at Amherst and is considered one of the greatest players in the country. If he finally decides to go to West Point he will complete his course at Williams first. He will graduate this June. Boynton's home is in Waco, Texas, and he has played 'Varsity baseball and basketball as well as football at Williams.

BUCKEYES' DEFENSE BEST OF BIG TEN

Only Three Teams Crossed Ohio State Goal Line—Was Second in Points Scored.

CHICAGO, Nov. 21.—The superiority of Ohio State's football eleven, Western Conference champions, over the other teams of the "Big Ten" is borne out in an analysis of the offensive and defensive records of the contestants for the title. The Buckeyes finished second in the number of points scored in games between Conference elevens and were first in holding opponents away from their goal.

Only three teams—Wisconsin, Michigan and Chicago—crossed the Ohio goal, and no team crossed it more than once. The team scored 58 points in Conference games against 20 for its opponents.

An unusual feature shown in the analysis of the season's results is that Iowa, which finished fifth, was first in scoring, with 65 points, while Michigan in sixth, and Chicago in eighth place, were close to Ohio's record defensively.

The tightness of many of the games and the closeness of the race are reflected in the fact that the ten elevens all together scored only 420 points, or an average of only about seven for each team in each game.

Team.	W.	L.	T.D.	G.	F.G.	P.	Opponents. T.D.	Opponents. P.
Ohio State	5	0	8	7	1	58	3	20
Wisconsin	4	1	7	6	2	54	3	29
Indiana	3	1	6	6	2	48	5	35
Illinois	4	2	5	5	7	56	5	37
Iowa	3	2	9	8	1	65	5	44
Michigan	2	2	4	3	1	30	3	21
Northwestern	2	3	6	6	1	45	8	57
Chicago	2	4	5	3	1	36	3	27

Ohio State proved itself the greatest finisher developed in the Western Conference in many years. Four of its five victories were won in the final minutes, the victory over Illinois coming on a play which was not completed until the final whistle. In each instance the perfect forward passing of Hoge Workman, sophomore quarterback, brought victory to the Buckeyes, Illinois, Wisconsin, Michigan and Chicago falling before the accuracy of his arm.

Wisconsin produced a powerful eleven, which is shown by the figures, but it lacked consistency. It probably would have won the title, however, had it not fallen before Workman's passes.

Illinois, which nearly won the title, was kept in the race largely by Ralph Fletcher, for his seven field goals accounted for twenty-one of the Indians' fifty-six points, and his goals from touchdowns brought additional markers. The Indians made few touchdowns, and their defensive record was not so good as that of other teams.

Michigan and Chicago, while making great records, lacked offensive power. Indiana made a good showing, but had a weak schedule, while the other teams apparently had no ability either to carry the ball or to stop it.

NAVY AT TOP OF ITS FORM.

Special to The New York Times.

ANNAPOLIS, Md., Nov. 21.—The final campaign to put the Naval Academy team at the zenith of its playing ability for the game against the Military Academy eleven next Saturday will begin tomorrow under Bob Folwell and his assistants. The members of the squad are in fine physical condition, and as well coached as a Navy team has ever been, so the routine will not be severe this week. There is no question that the team will be in shape to play a hard and varied game and that it will be able to furnish some surprises to its opponents.

The contest at the New York Polo Grounds next Saturday will be the twenty-third between the two teams. The Army has won eleven, the Navy ten and the other was a tie, so that the Navy contingent is keenly alive to its opportunity to make the series a tie. However, it is not likely to draw even in total points, as the Army has piled up 236 during the series and the Navy has made but 152.

There is no doubt here that the Army will play a much stronger game next Saturday than is generally thought to be within its power. Its team has been watched carefully and it has been noted that its strength has been increasing steadily. Lieut. Commander W. A. Richardson and Assistant Coach John G. Williams, who have been watching West Point in action this season, believe that it is a strong aggregation.

Still, it is thought here that the Navy will win. It is believed that the Navy line is stronger and its backfield better balanced, though it has no star like French in it. The Navy's wealth of good substitutes is also thought to be important.

Athletic representatives of the two academies have agreed upon the following officials for the big game: Referee, Dr. Al Sharpe, Yale; umpire, Fred Murphy, Brown; field judge, J. A. Evans, Williams, and linesman, Carl Marshall, Harvard.

MINOR INJURIES A WORRY.

Special to The New York Times.

WEST POINT, N. Y., Nov. 21.—With only three days left for practice before stacking up against the Navy, the entire football squad will begin the week tomorrow with a stiff program. Coach Daly will probably call a halt to the practice Wednesday night except for a short signal drill Thursday. The team will go to New York Friday morning. This leaves Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday for heavy work, and the squad will be driven hard for these three days.

Minor injuries are causing a little uneasiness in the Army camp. The team is in fair physical condition, yet hardly a workout goes by without some men giving way because of injuries. French is apparently all right now. Davidson's foot bothers him. White has a sore back, and one or two others of the varsity are suffering from injuries which worry Harry Tuthill, the Army's hard-working trainer.

Mulligan, an Irishman from New York City with a lot of pep and aggressiveness, is being touted as a sure thing for the tackle position, where Lou Storck has been playing all season. Mulligan's work in blocking kicks, his ability to sense opponents' plays, his weight and aggressiveness are factors which seem to favor him in the choice. He is a plebe and weighs 190 pounds.

Who will get in against the Navy at right end is still an uncertainty, with Bennet, White, Pitser and Glasgow in the running. The pace will be hot in the competition for this job during the next three days.

JONES'S RETENTION AT YALE FAVORED

Special to The New York Times.

NEW HAVEN, Conn., Nov. 21.—Yale's football future was today discussed critically by groups of alumni, former gridiron stars and university officials, and while the fact was given full consideration that the Elis had lost three games this season, the conclusion was generally reached that the material was not equal to that possessed by Boston College, Princeton and Harvard, and that therefore the coaches had done about as well as could have been expected with the situation. Princeton is generally regarded at Yale as the strongest Tiger eleven of the present college generation. It inflicted the most crushing defeat, 20 to 0, of any ever administered by Princeton, and the Elis finished the season with the additional adversity of being whitewashed by Harvard and Princeton for the first time in the same year.

While the return as head coach of Tad Jones is opposed by a few on the basis of Yale's three defeats in a single season, his re-engagement was generally warmly advocated today. Most of the former players here urged his return, but expressed the hope that he might be able to spend more time here with the team. He is in the shipbuilding business in Seattle, and coached the gridiron squad this Fall as his vacation. A strong feeling is in evidence that it is desirable that he be present at the Spring training. Jones has been in touch with the football situation all the year, however, and Captain Tim Callahan spent much of the Summer with him in Seattle.

An effort will be made to settle the coaching question within a fortnight. The election of a captain will be the first step. Malcolm Aldrich is the logical candidate on the basis of length of regular service and brilliancy of performance. No player of the squad that will return next Fall has been a regular for two seasons, and Aldrich is the only member who was a first string man this year and a second string player last Fall, getting into a part of the final games.

Captain Tim Callahan today denied for the second time this season the report that Larry Bankart, the former Colgate coach, had been coaching at Yale this Fall or in any way assisting Tad Jones in his program. He said that he was unable to account for the report. He pointed out that George Bankart, Larry's brother, who was a warm personal friend of Tad Jones from the time the two were at Exeter together, had called on Tad twice here this Fall, and that it was possible that some one may have heard that a man named Bankart was here and had jumped at conclusions.

TO PREPARE FOR W. VA.

W. and J. Will Start Practice for Game With Mountaineers.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Pa., Nov. 21.—While the football defeat of W. and J. yesterday at the hands of Carnegie Tech came as a distinct shock both to the team and its supporters, no time is to be taken out for commiseration or expressions of regret. Preparation for the game on Thanksgiving Day with West Virginia is to be started at once, Coach Morrow having called out the entire squad for practice tomorrow.

Just what the program is to be, Coach Morrow refused to divulge, but it is known that there will be at least two days of strenuous field activity before the Mountaineers are met.

W. and J. is still crippled somewhat. Eileson and Brenkert did not play yesterday, and McLaughlin did not even accompany the squad to Pittsburgh, as he is suffering with a broken toe, sustained in the Pitt game. It is thought that Brenkert may be able to get into the game on Thursday, but there is some doubt about McLaughlin playing. Eileson is out until next year.

None of the men who participated in yesterday's contest was hurt, and if Brenkert and McLaughlin are able to get into harness the Presidents will be strengthened considerably.

Noble and Sieger Are Matched.

The second boxing show of the Pioneer Sporting Club in East Twenty-fourth Street will be held Thursday night. The principal bout will bring together Tommy Noble, English featherweight, and Sammy Sieger, east side boxer, who formerly held an amateur title.

HARVARD WILL LOSE NINE VARSITY MEN

Special to The New York Times.

CAMBRIDGE, Mass., Nov. 21.—Harvard's victorious but much battered football players drifted back to Cambridge in small groups today, though a number of them went to New York and will not return until tomorrow. Although the team was pretty much used up, so much so that Coach Fisher said he had had great fears for the men after the intermission, this on account of the signs they showed of the hard play which they had gone through. Nevertheless, Havemeyer, who chipped his collarbone, was the only man injured.

Of the men who played at New Haven Saturday, Harvard will lose Captain Horween, Humphrey, Hamilton, Johnson, Finley, Havemeyer, Woods, Sedgwick and Faxon.

For next year's team the Harvard coaches will have Kane, Crocker, Gaston and Macomber, ends; Hubbard, tackle; Brown, and possibly Brocker and Tolbert, guards; Tierney, centre; Buell and Fitzgerald, quarterbacks, and Owen, Churchill, Gratwick and Fitts in the backfield.

ERIE A. A. ELEVEN WINS.

Making a splendid showing against the team that put Bethlehem out of the U. S. F. A. cup tie competition, the soccer team of the New York Football Club nevertheless suffered defeat to the tune of 2 goals to 1 at the hands of the Erie Athletic Association eleven in the National League championship game played before 4,000 spectators at Harrison Field, Harrison, N. J., yesterday afternoon. At half time New York was leading by 1 to 0, giving the followers of the Eries, who are now favorites for the two big cups, something to think about. New York's goal came ten minutes from the start, when the centre forward, Hardy, took full advantage of an open goal after getting past Post on the left.

The Eries started the second half in whirlwind fashion and there was no withstanding the rush that yielded the equalizing tally after three minutes of play. Archie Stark drove in a shot that hit the upright and then turned into New York's net. Barely six minutes after that Brown crossed from the left to Stark, who headed to Rooney and the latter reached the goal. Derham kicked out, but not until the ball had gone over the line.

The lineup:

ERIE A. A. (2).		NEW YORK (1).
Tintle	G.	Derham
Toman	R. B.	Kelly
Post	L. B.	Gilfillan
Ingram	R. H.	Duffy
Cooper	C. H.	Bustard
Blakeley	L. H.	Meyerdirks
Knowles	O. R.	J. McDonald
Stark	I. R.	S. McDonald
Heminsley	C.	Hardy
Rooney	I. L.	Bleich
Brown	O. L.	McGreevey

Goals—Stark, Rooney, Hardy.

Referee — A. Birchall. Linesmen — Nailson and Thompson. Time of halves—45 minutes.

Replaying their cup tie game in the second round of the American Football Association competition, the Brooklyn and Greenpoint football clubs reached a decision at the Ridgewood Baseball Grounds yesterday, Brooklyn winning by 2 goals to 0. W. Bulcock, former Manchester player, was responsible for the shots that yielded the two goals.

Unable to maintain the pace set in the first period, during which no scoring took place, the Manhattan Football Club gave way before the Tyrconnel Celts in the Metropolitan League game at Woodside, L. I., yesterday, and suffered defeat by 3 goals to 1. Vaughn was first to score for the Celts and Luckback equalized soon after. Woods and Cordner clinched the victory of the Celts.

CHALLENGE FOR ESPERANTO

HALIFAX, N. S., Nov. 21.—A message was sent tonight to the owners of the American schooner Esperanto, which defeated the Nova Scotian Delawana off this harbor in the international fishing vessel races last month, renewing a challenge made last week for another meeting of the vessels.

Captain Thomas Himmelman, the Delawana's pilot, who issued the challenge, said his first message to the Americans had not been answered.

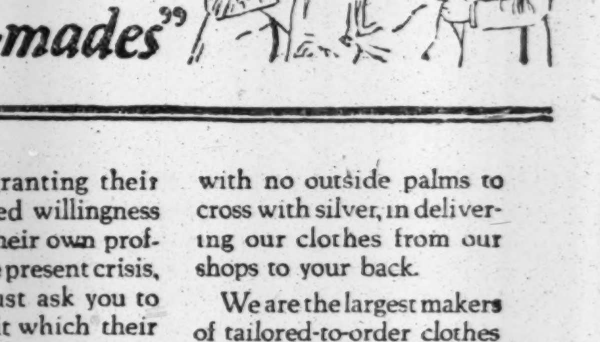
By all means, investigate the bewildering array of "Special Clothing Sales"

Get the facts—see the values—jot down the figures

—and then come here, direct to this great manufacturing house, and have your suit built to your special order at less than the best sale prices for "ready-mades"



LAST WEEK the New York clothes-buying public was greeted with the most dazzling line-up of special clothing clearances in the history of Manhattan merchandising.

Like clamoring hucksters in a crowded street market, the most prominent and dignified stores in New York vied with each other in their claims of superior price-concession.

Let us give these merchants credit for full sincerity. They are entitled to that. Nearly all are merchants of unimpeachable integrity.

But let us not forget that there are limits beyond which they DARE not go.

No matter how zealous they may be to satisfy public pressure for lower prices, they dare not sell their clothes for less than they paid for them.

For always there is the spectre before them of store-overhead to be reckoned with—inexorable upkeep for plate glass frontage and costly store personnel, which must be paid for out of their own cash reserves—if they sell to you at cost prices.

So even granting their whole-hearted willingness to sacrifice their own profits during the present crisis, they still must ask you to pay the profit which their wholesalers charged them, when they did their purchasing several months ago.

They can't give you that profit — because it isn't theirs to give. It is already paid into the pockets of their manufacturers — beyond recall.

T·R·T

Contrast these retailers' sales, the very best of them, with this DIFFERENT kind of a sale which we are now holding direct from our three New York wholesale salesrooms

—straight from the manufacturer's cutting tables and sewing machines to your wardrobe

—with no middleman's bites extracted out of the pie as we pass it on to you.

We are able to concede you ALL profits during this sale in New York, because we control them all.

We are our own manufacturers, our own wholesalers, our own retailers—with no outside palms to cross with silver, in delivering our clothes from our shops to your back.

But in New York, where we sell direct to the public, we deliver the full current of our $4,000,000 buying power direct to you, with no voltage lost to intermediary cut-ins.

T·R·T

And so we say to you.

If you do not realize what "maker-to-wearer" pricing means to your pocketbook, go and see the values offered at the various New York clothing sales.

From the prices quoted, deduct $5 to $10 per suit or overcoat, for retail handling cost, to say nothing of profit. Deduct another $5 to $10 for wholesaler's handling and profit.

Then bring the resulting net figure to us, to match in a suit or overcoat of equal quality, made up to your special order.

That is the comparison we seek. We ask no other. We are willing to hazard all chance of your trade upon the verdict from this investigation.

FINANCIAL MARKETS

The Past Week's Fall in Prices and the Outlook for the Future.

No doubt a good part of the gloom with which last week ended in Wall Street arose from the fact that, while money tension was showing distinct preliminary signs of easier conditions, the stock market, instead of greeting those indications by recovery in prices, was falling into greater weakness and disorder than had prevailed in any previous week. Yet the evidence that money stringency had passed its maximum was quite unmistakable. That was proved not only by the decline in Stock Exchange money rates from 10 per cent. to 6 for the first time in four weeks, but by the Federal Reserve statements, which are now the real barometer of the actual money situation. The reserve ratio of the entire Federal Reserve system, as shown in the figures published yesterday morning, rose last week to the highest percentage since July, while a further reduction in loans and note circulation last week brought the two accounts respectively $177,000,000 and $48,000,000 below the recent high points of the season.

For the violent decline on the Stock Exchange which accompanied this slow relaxation in the money stringency there were two reasons—the fact that such a decline goes on of its own momentum, so to speak, even when the immediate causes are operating less urgently, but also the fact that the fall in prices had of itself created an increasingly difficult situation for merchants, out-of-town banks or stock speculators with over-extended credit, the shrinkage in whose collateral compelled the closing out of the loans at any sacrifice. After so prolonged and rapid a decline in values it was not surprising that on Friday Wall Street should have begun to hear that such a situation had even overtaken certain interests which were remembered as posing as a dominant influence in the wild markets of last March. Incidents of that sort are invariably one part of a great financial readjustment.

No prudent man will undertake predictions regarding the immediate future course of such a market. It is never possible to say exactly when forced liquidation will have reached a halting place. Usually the arrival of such a moment is indicated by a day of excessively violent declines, with much the largest Stock Exchange business of the season. What is well known, however, as a matter of experience is that such a culmination of such an Autumn decline, coming before the year is over, is always apt to be followed by a sudden and complete change in the aspect of the market. When even the "rich men's liquidation" of 1903 and the November panic of 1907 had as their immediate sequel a late December recovery of 5 to 10 per cent. in stocks and a general rise in bond prices, precedent, at any rate, is fairly plain.

One highly important moral from last week's incidents in financial and commercial markets has to do with the policy of the Federal Reserve. A banker could say last week to a convention of manufacturers, as he could not have said with their approval six months ago, that "the chief credit for the fact that we are not now in the midst of a serious panic lies with the Federal Reserve system." What this meant was that, if the lending institutions had been left to overload their credit facilities by accommodating speculative borrowers on the scale of 1919, the cord might easily have snapped when the urgent Autumn demands began, as it did in 1907.

It would be rash to assume that every one has learned to recognize these facts. In the last few weeks we have had farmers' associations putting political pressure on the Reserve Board to expand the credit fund for the sake of $3 wheat and 40-cent cotton; we have had angry denunciation of the board's "wrecking policy," uttered by public men; we have even had suggestions from a member of the Federal banking administration itself as to how the Reserve system might, without expressly violating the law, expand its loans by a further huge amount and let its "reserve ratio" fall below the statutory limit.

No doubt most of us see the matter more clearly now; but it will not do to rest in false security. The after-war fall in prices which occurred in 1866, with the accompanying reduction of overinflated currency and credit, was greeted as a return to normal conditions by the banker and the plain consumer, but it also marked the birth of the Inflation Party. We shall at least be fortunate if we escape something similar when the delegations with grievances or new ideas, to whom the election results of Nov. 2 meant that everything would be changed for their personal benefit, descend on Washington next March.

There will be need for clear thinking in many directions. Less than a year ago a considerable number both of our economic experts and of our practical business men were publicly declaring that scarcity, the world's requirements and the state of the currencies would make impossible any decline whatever in prices of commodities during 1920. Last week, after the 25 to 50 per cent. decline which has already occurred, speakers at bankers' conventions were asserting that nothing could stop the movement, that "the fall in prices has only begun." If this prediction meant that an uninterrupted decline is before us, it only illustrated, as did the earlier predictions to the opposite effect, the habit of rushing to extremes, familiar among even economic prophets.

"Pre-war prices" are still pretty far away, taking the markets as a whole. If prices are now on the average 25 per cent. below the highest of the war period, the average is still 80 per cent. above that of 1914, and it required fourteen years after Lee's surrender to get the average of that day back to the level of 1861. But at least there has been a beginning of the readjustment.

Oil Report September 1920

Production of petroleum during September, amounting to 37,845,000 barrels, decreased slightly. Consumption, however, increased to the record figure of 48,670,000 barrels. The deficiency was offset by imports of 10,914,000 barrels, the largest ever recorded in a single month. Therefore, estimated consumption during September was slightly less than the domestic production plus imports. As a steady decrease in domestic production from now on is certain, only slow progress can be made to bring up the depleted reserve stocks.

EXPORT FINANCE PLAN OUTLINED

STOCK OFFERED TO PUBLIC

Long-Time Credits, Such as Bankers Cannot Give, One Main Purpose—Action Necessary.

A description of the proposed $100,000,000 corporation for financing American foreign trade is contained in a letter to be sent out today by John S. Drum, President of the American Bankers Association, to every bank in the United States. The company, to be formed under provisions of the Edge law, will be organized at a meeting of bankers and business men in Chicago on Dec. 10 and 11.

It is proposed to call the company the Foreign Trade Financing Corporation. Banks, business corporations and the general public will be invited to subscribe to stock at a price of $105 per share, providing $100 for capital from each share and $5 for surplus. The point is made in the prospectus that there will be no underwriting or promotion stock. The letter states that with $100,000,000, the new company would be permitted by law to issue its debentures against existing securities owned by it to an amount equal to $1,000,000,000.

"Debentures could undoubtedly be distributed," according to the prospectus, "secured by high-class foreign obligations of sufficiently long time to enable the restoration of industries in importing countries and allow of payment being made at maturity. Such operations would naturally be of a class that would not compete with investment bankers handling foreign securities; indeed, they should go far toward increasing the merits of such securities through helping in the reorganization of foreign industries."

Other proposals in the prospectus are that the management of the corporation shall be as prudent and capable as the management of our best banking institutions; that the directors shall be elected by the stockholders in a way that will provide for representation of the entire country on the board; that an executive committee shall be selected from the board of directors. It is further proposed that no business shall be handled by the corporation except that which shall be in the interest of American foreign trade, and then only if it be entirely safe from the standpoint of stockholders' investment; and that the stockholding banks of the corporation shall be its agents in distributing its debentures and for such service proper compensation shall be paid.

"The functioning of such corporation," it is added, "would unquestionably prove helpful to the banks of the country. It would relieve them of many transactions which they are now carrying on in short-time form, but which are in fact long-time credits. It would not be competitive with the banks, but would reinforce them. Under successful operation it would prevent the tying up of further funds by bankers in advances for foreign account at the expense of American industries, such operation being without any resultant detrimental competition to the banks.

"It is believed that the effect of the organization of such a corporation at this time would be most beneficial, and it also is believed that the functioning of the corporation would promote thrift, efficiency and greater production, the result of which would find reflection in our foreign trade and so prove profitable and be productive of greater wealth."

Mr. Drum comments on the diminishing trade of the United States, and the circumstances which, he states, have made the formation of this corporation a matter for immediate attention of the financial and business community.

"Stagnation has developed in the United States," he says, "for commodities such as wool, sugar, rubber, coffee, leather, certain metals, and various other staples, and, to a lesser extent, for wheat and cotton, whereas practically all such commodities are urgently required in many other countries of the world. The American dollar is at a premium in practically every country of the world to such an extent that:

"(1) Exports from the United States to many countries during a considerable period have not yet been paid for by those countries.

"(2) Future exports from the United States for an indefinite time cannot be paid for in large part except over an extended period.

"(3) In the case of countries where, it is believed, exchange may turn within a few months, buying in the United States has practically stopped, except where arrangements could be made for postponing payment until exchange turns.

"(4) European countries in general are being obliged to confine their purchases here rigorously to necessities of the moment and are unable to obtain sufficient raw material to restore their industries.

"Our export trade outside of Europe, which has been built up during the last several years, covering South America, South Africa, Australasia and the Far East, is beginning to back up and throw goods manufactured for export into competition with goods manufactured for domestic consumption in the markets of the United States.

"The banks of this country up to this time have taken part in foreign loans directly, and also indirectly through the advance of funds to manufacturers, who in turn have in effect loaned their production abroad. While such loans have been helpful in continuing our foreign trade, they have been carried about as far as conservatism warrants. Further credits, in order to meet the situation and allow the distribution of the over-supply of commodities in the United States and prevent the accumulation of manufactures, must be of longer time than banks and industrial institutions can legitimately be asked to carry."

It is stated that rendering of special assistance under the plan to any one country has not been considered, for the object of the plan is to encourage America's foreign trade as a whole, and the plan, as contemplated, would operate wherever America's trade extends.

The Committee of Arrangements for the Chicago meeting comprises John McHugh, Vice President, Mechanics and Metals National Bank, New York City, Chairman; President Drum of the American Bankers Association, who is President of the Mercantile Trust Company of San Francisco; Charles H. Sabin, President, Guaranty Trust Company of New York; John H. Fahey, Boston; Lewis E. Pierson, Chairman of the Board, Irving National Bank, New York City; George Ed. BIG SURPLUS IN YEAR FOR PANAMA CANAL

Governor Harding Reports Revenue $2,387,599 in Excess of the Expenses.

DEFICIT NOW NEARLY GONE

Prediction Is Made That an Actual Profit on the Cost Will Be Earned.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The Panama Canal has closed the best year financially in its six years of operation with an excess of $2,387,599 in revenue over the expense of operation and maintenance.

Brig. Gen. Chester Harding, Governor of the canal, predicted in his annual report to the Secretary of War, made public today, that within a reasonable period of normal world conditions the canal would earn an actual profit on its cost, which has been $366,650,000, exclusive of expenditures for its military and naval defense. In the meantime, the General added, the canal was performing an important commercial service by stimulating American trade with the west coast of South America and the Orient. More than 25 per cent. of the cargo handled through the canal since its opening was in transit between the United States and South America, and 14½ per cent. was between the Atlantic Coast of the United States and the Orient.

Discussing the amount of money expended by the United States on the canal, Governor Harding said:

"The investment, from one point of view, may be regarded as having been made and justified in the organization of an invaluable element of national defense. If this be true, the canal has an additional value in rendering useful service in time of peace, and in returning to the Federal Treasury revenue more than sufficient to defray the expense of its operation and maintenance. It is capable of doing more than this; and it is not an idle prediction to state that with proper management directed along the lines of a large business enterprise, it will within a reasonable period of normal world conditions earn an actual profit on the cost."

During the year 2,745 vessels passed through the canal, of which 2,478 were in commercial transit. Tolls and other revenues amounted to $8,935,871, while current expenses of operation and maintenance totalled $6,548,272. The excess of revenue this year reduced to $2,231,091 the excess of expense and maintenance over revenues for the six years the canal has been in operation.

At the rate of revenues this year it is expected that by June 30, 1921, the collections for tolls and other canal revenues will exceed by $1,000,000 or more the total current expenses of operation and maintenance from the opening to that date, after which, the canal authorities argue, there should be an excess of $5,000,000 or more each year.

The auxiliary services of the canal have been largely utilized and are of great value in carrying out the policy of making it attractive in all of the incidental services that are considered by shipping interests in routing their vessels, General Harding said. He added that it had not been the purpose to make large profits on these activities, but rather to regulate the charges so as safely to cover the cost. From these miscellaneous services the receipts for the year were: Coal, $6,032,578; water, $55,412; oil, groceries and miscellaneous supplies, $1,274,556, and mechanical repairs to ships, $3,863,933.

Dredging costs totaled $1,611,359 this year, $500,000 more than last year because of the slides in Gaillard Cut. The motion of the slides has been much retarded and a new period of stability is approaching, the report declared.

We Just Want To Say This

That when the shadow of abnormal interest rates from many securities has been dispelled, and losses are found where gains should be—when that time arrives, Prudence-Bonds holders will have the substance of their holdings and draw interest on their investment.

Their principal—backed by First Mortgages on a high type of income-earning property—will still be worth one hundred cents on the dollar.

Our booklet describing Prudence-Bonds in detail will be sent without obligation on your part, if you will call or write for Booklet F-97.

We pay the 4% Normal Federal Income Tax

A Canadian Bank but also an International Bank

The growing importance of Canada as an exporting nation makes it imperative that any study of the Canadian exchange market should be based upon a knowledge of world conditions, as well as an intimate knowledge of conditions in Canada.

The Union Bank of Canada bases the advice it gives to American exporters doing business with Canada upon knowledge of Canadian conditions obtained through the operations of its foreign exchange departments in Montreal, Toronto, Vancouver, New York and London.

To Yield Over 9½% With Further Possibilities

Upon the completion of the present financing the capitalization of the Channell Chemical Company of Illinois, having branches or affiliations in New York, London, Paris and Toronto, shall consist entirely of Common Stocks, of which there shall be two classes—Class "A" (40,000 shares) and Class "B" (80,000 shares)—both having voting powers—with no bonds, mortgages or preferred stock outstanding (it being the intention to retire the present preferred stock). The Class "A" Common Stock now offered to the public shall be the first capital obligation and have preference over the "B" shares, both as to assets and dividends, which shall be payable as follows: First—The "A" shares shall be put on a regular cumulative dividend basis of $6.00 per share, payable quarterly; the "B" shares will then receive a dividend of like amount. The Class "A" Common Stock shall participate in the further profits of the Company by reason of the fact that extra dividends, payable thereafter, shall be divided equally between the holders of the Class "A" and Class "B" shares. The stock is non-callable, free from the Normal Federal Income Tax and exempt from the Illinois Personal Property Tax.

Application will be made to list these shares on either the New York Stock Exchange or Chicago Stock Exchange.

O-Cedar—A Household Word—Annual Sales Now $5,000,000

O-Cedar, the phenomenal merchandising and advertising success, is sold the world over. Intrinsic merit and extensive advertising have brought so great an increase in demand that the Company is just completing the construction of a mammoth new Chicago factory, located on Western Boulevard and Forty-fifth Street. Upon its completion of this financing, it is planned to retire the outstanding Preferred Stock, making these Class "A" Common Shares the first capital obligation of the Company, being cumulative, non-callable and having preference as to dividends and assets and sharing in extra dividends upon payment of the two regular $6.00 dividends, or at the rate of over 9½% on the underwriting price. (without considering extra dividends) at which they are now offered. O-Cedar sales for 1920 will run about Five Millions of Dollars. Sales for 1921 are reasonably expected to be double this amount.

The Effect of Post-War Conditions on This Business

This is one of the few lines of business that have everything to gain and nothing to lose by general deflation now in process and the readjustment now going on in the business world. O-Cedar is the most popular of all popular-priced labor-saving household articles. Deflation and reduction in price of raw materials benefits, rather than injures, the Company's position by materially reducing the cost of manufacture while demand remains consistent, steady and always on the increase.

Company's Great Earnings Record

The total net earnings of this Company for the nine years, 1911-1919, inclusive, were 260% of the outstanding capital stock, or average net earnings of more than 40% per annum. The earnings of the Company for the seven months ending July 31, 1920, were Two Hundred Sixty-nine Thousand Eight Hundred Seventy-five Dollars, or over the entire annual dividend requirement of $6.00 per share on the Class "A" shares, without giving effect to the present financing. It is the opinion of the management that on account of the enormous increase in demand for the product and reduction in cost to manufacture, owing to decline in prices of raw materials, the Company will earn, before taxes, during the fiscal year about Six Hundred Thousand Dollars. Sales to September 1st have been Two Million Three Hundred Seventy-five Thousand Five Dollars and Thirty-nine Cents; English sales are now running at the rate of over One Million Dollars annually. These, with the sales of Aladdin Dye Soaps, it is estimated, will give a total volume of sales for the current year of about Five Million Dollars. It is confidently expected that the present financing will enable the company to double its business during the coming year, in which case profits, after operations, for 1921, in the opinion of the management, will total One Million Two Hundred and Fifty Thousand Dollars, or over five times the regular dividend requirement on the Class "A" Common Stock, leaving a large equity applicable to the payment of extra dividends.

PRICE

Subject to prior sale, we offer the Class "A" Common Stock, when, as and if issued and deliverable by us, at $62.50 per share, to yield on regular dividends over 9½% with further possibilities through extra dividends, which may be paid from time to time. Checks should be made payable to F. A. BREWER & CO. As we anticipate an early oversubscription for these shares, we advise clients to wire their reservations immediately; the right to reject any and all subscriptions or to allot a smaller number than subscribed for is reserved.

The GREAT SEAL of New York City

IT is significant that the Great Seal which made valid the official transactions of the little municipality of New York was wielded time and again by men who through the Bank of the Manhattan Company were serving the business community. Among the original stockholders and directors of this institution or of the Merchant's Bank, now merged with it, in whom the people thus placed their confidence, were DeWitt Clinton, Marinus Willett, Richard Varick, Walter Bowne, Jacob Radcliffe, serving as Mayor and Robert R. Livingston, Richard Harison, I. B. Prevost and John L. Riker, as Recorder. Today, with the same confidence, Depositors and Customers of the Bank are relying in great measure on the counsel of its Officers and Directors in their modern and increasingly complex problems of financing, markets, credits, labor, price policies and policies of manufacturing.

COMMODITY PRICES

Heavy Decline Last Week—11 Out of 19 Articles at Year's Lowest.

Last week witnessed the most extensive and general declines in the wholesale cash market for commodities of any week this year. The conspicuous downward movements were wheat, which declined 13 cents per bushel, corn 13¾ cents, oats 3½ cents, flour 75 cents per barrel, coffee ½ cent per pound, sugar 1 cent, iron $1.50 per ton, copper ½ cent per pound, tin ¾ cent per pound, cotton 1¾ cents per pound, wool 3 cents, print cloth ½ cent.

Eleven out of the nineteen commodities in the subjoined list reached in the past week the lowest prices of the present year to date. Coffee is only a small fraction above the lowest wholesale price of the entire war period. Rubber and tea, which are not included in this list, have also this month gone to the 1914 prices. MINISTER CONFIRMS MONEY SMUGGLING

Says Accused Berlin Firms Sent Large Sums to America Among Other Countries.

Copyright, 1920, by The New York Times Company.
By Wireless to THE NEW YORK TIMES.

BERLIN, Nov. 21.—Dr. Joseph Wirth, the Federal Minister of Finance, told THE NEW YORK TIMES correspondent today that he would not answer Herman Müller's question regarding the alleged shifting of many millions of German capital to Holland by the bankers, Grusser, Philipson & Co., before Monday in the Reichstag because it was too difficult to sift the enormous mass of evidence sufficiently.

"Are the Hohenzollerns really so deeply implicated?" asked THE TIMES correspondent, "as Vorwärts makes it appear, intimating that Grusser shifted more than 60,000,000 marks for the former Crown Prince alone to Holland?"

Dr. Wirth admitted Grusser had done business with the Hohenzollerns. "But it is out of the question," he added, "that Grusser shifted 60,000,000 of the Crown Prince's money because the latter never had that much. It is not quite clear yet which members of the Hohenzollern family are mainly responsible for these transactions. Besides, the sums removed for the Hohenzollerns are much surpassed by Grusser's transactions with other princely houses and rich families not of noble rank.

"The evidence also shows that Grusser, Philipson & Co. did not confine their activity to Holland, but removed capital to any country desired, especially to America, France and Switzerland.

"Grusser's method of smuggling banknotes, pearls, diamonds, &c., across the frontier was very simple. He would secure an export license for some unsuspicious goods packed in boxes, two or three of which would generally contain the valuable to be smuggled. Grusser also very often made his way across the frontier by automobile, bribing the frontier guards or escaping their watchfulness, in which cases the smuggled goods were packed in brand new suitcases, of which more than fifty were seized at the banking house in Vossstrasse.

"Often Grusser used motorboats, of which he had several stationed at Emden, Kiel and Wilhelmshaven. One starting from the last named place, captured by the coast guards recently, gave the first clue.

"We shall not be able to give a fuller account at present because that might interfere with the Public Prosecutor's duty," concluded Minister Wirth.

Communist and Independent Socialist members of the Reichstag have submitted a motion asking the appointment of a committee to investigate how far former Chancellors Scheidemann, Bauer and Müller were to be held responsible for the doings of Grusser, Philipson & Co., who started in business soon after the revolution.

TO THE HOLDERS
Four Per Cent Gold Bonds, due 1954
OF THE
UNITED STATES OF MEXICO.

Default was made in the payment of the interest on the above Bonds due June 1st, 1914, and, since January, 1914, default has also been made in the sinking fund payments provided for the redemption of these Bonds.

Since the above defaults occurred, we have made repeated efforts, on behalf of the owners of the Bonds, to have the interest and sinking fund instalments paid, but without avail.

General Alvaro Obregon, who has been elected President of the United States of Mexico, and who will assume office on December 1st, is reported, however, to have publicly declared that the new Mexican Government "will recognize all legal foreign debts," and that all its debts will be paid "as far as possible."

There are a number of foreign loans of the Mexican Government, secured and unsecured, and guarantees given by it, on which default has been made, as well as a large amount of other claims against it, which will have to be recognized and provided for by the Mexican Government.

We therefore consider it important that the holders of the above Bonds should unite, without delay, for the proper and effectual protection of their interests. To that end, we invite holders of the above mentioned Bonds to deposit the same, with all unpaid coupons attached, with The Equitable Trust Company of New York as Depositary, at its office, 37 Wall Street, New York, or its Agents, on or before December 31st, 1920, subject to the terms of a Bondholders' Agreement, dated November 22nd, 1920. Copies of this Agreement may be obtained from the Depositary, or at our office, 24-26 Pine Street.

Temporary certificates of deposit will be issued by the Depositary, exchangeable for engraved bearer certificates. Application will be made for the listing of the engraved certificates on the New York Stock Exchange.

We will make no charge to depositing Bondholders for our services under the Agreement.

CHALONER FINDS MUCH GOOD IN SATAN

Says He Is an Ally of the Lord to Weed Out the Weak and Bad.

ISSUES NEW GOLDEN RULE

Old One Too Hard to Live Up To—Tells in Lecture Workings of "Subconscious Mind."

John Armstrong Chaloner, who was declared sane in this State last year after a twenty-year fight following his escape from an asylum, revealed the workings of his subconscious self, revamped the Golden Rule and upheld Satan as the friend of all good men, in a lecture given last night at Christ Church, Broadway and Seventy-first Street. He admitted that he was a medium on the authority of the late Prof. William James of Harvard, in an opinion in the County Court of Albemarle, Va.

Not only was he a medium, but his subconsciousness was a prophet of the Lord, for his other self has been foretelling events of the future, day by day and year by year, Mr. Chaloner declared. Had he not passed the acid test set by Jehovah to distinguish the false from the true prophet, namely, that a prophecy come true? He had. Did he not foretell the stirring events of the World War? He did, said Mr. Chaloner.

And as further witnesses of his power as a prophet, Mr. Chaloner offered to bring two witnesses "in the odor of sanctity, for they are vestrymen of the Episcopal Church, who could repeat the story of the veiled picture."

The "said picture" in his country home was called "Virginia, 1864," and represented an artillery engagement between Federal troops and the Confederates, Mr. Cnaloner said. There were lots of soldiers in it but three figures alone figured in the story, a mounted artillery officer with a calm face, an artillery soldier struggling with a refractory horse, his attitude expressing anxiety and struggle, and a gunner who seemed sure of hitting his mark.

"After a lapse of months it began to dawn on my consciousness that as my eye fell on one of the said figures in the veiled picture so were my fortunes to be for the next twenty-four hours," Mr. Chaloner said impressively. "Gradually it was borne in on my consciousness that as my eye fell on the officer, on the gunner, or on the struggling artilleryman, so would my mail, within the next twenty-four hours, bring tidings of calm confidence; if my eye fell on the officer or gunner, of the victorious fact that the legal paper just written by me, or the legal action just outlined by me, to my army of lawyers aforesaid, would hit the mark or, alas and alack-a-day, if it fell on the struggling artilleryman that a defeat was imminent, or I was going to be sued by somebody, all within a period of twenty-four hours from that moment.

"After standing the shocks the above clairvoyant or prophetic experience entailed for some years, I decided that I had stood about enough of it. For, you must know, that that was the limit of the prophecy—its result only, not its subject matter.

"My subconsciousness knew, but my subconsciousness would not tell. How did I know that it knew? Why, because from time to time it would inform me of the gist of the contents of a letter, just received in the mail, as I had the letter in my hand and was about to cut it open with a paper knife. Therefore, I told said gentlemen to please order enough thickness of gauze to completely hide said picture from my gaze, and for years the picture has played, and is playing, the rôle of a masked prophet, but prophet whom I have taken by the throat and gagged and not allowed to prophecy—for I don't care to have my night's sleep disturbed by the thought that I am to receive what is vernacularly described as a 'black eye' next day."

The Golden Rule as Mr. Chaloner fixed it up, was as follows: "Do not do unto others as you would not they should do unto you." He said that "Do unto others as you would they should do unto you," was too good for weak and faulty human nature to live up to.

And as for Satan—well, he agreed with Thomas Jefferson Miller that Satan wasn't as black as painted," in fact not even black or dark brown, but a splendidly idealistic creature employed by Jehovah to try out all souls of both sexes in order to save Jehovah the time and trouble to do it himself." As a matter of fact the Devil was not the enemy of man but the friend of all good men—the executioner of all bad and weak men.

MADE MORE FIRST DOWNS.

Record Shows Colgate Put Up Stiff Fight Against Orange.

HAMILTON, N. Y., Nov. 21.—There is more than a little satisfaction among Colgate adherents that the football eleven did not sustain a more humiliating defeat yesterday in the game with Syracuse. Syracuse won, 14 to 0, but, considering the weight and experience of the Orange players and the advantage that yesterday's slippery field gave them, the plucky little Maroon team was able to play its adversaries almost to a standstill, as the total of twelve first downs against six of the Syracusans shows.

Despite the gloom, the prospect for next year seems bright. Webster, the elusive and fleet star halfback, who has startled the football world on more than one occasion, has played only three years of college football, and it is expected that he will return next year to play for Colgate. As he is the only member of this year's varsity who will be a senior next Fall, he is likely to be elected to lead the Maroon.

The freshmen who composed the bulk of the Colgate line-up this year have been kicked about and beaten by colleges that have never beaten Colgate before, but the experience they have gained will be of immense value to them next year. Such players as Sanford, Mason, Beardsley, Leonard, Vose, Welsh, Kraus and Swenner, with Webster, would form, another season, the nucleus of a formidable eleven.

BUCKEYES MAY GO WEST.

Special to The New York Times.

COLUMBUS, Ohio, Nov. 21.—An inquiry has been received by Athletic Director L. W. St. John of Ohio State from an official of the Tournament of Roses which will be held at Pasadena, Cal., the first week of January, asking whether or not the Scarlet and Gray eleven, winners of the Western conference championship, would be willing to meet the champion football team of the Pacific Coast Jan. 1 at Pasadena.

Inasmuch as there is a Western conference ruling limiting all members of the Tig Ben to seven football games during a season, the majority consent of the ten universities comprising the conference will be required. The request was made that Ohio State furnish a reply to the inquiry by Tuesday of this week.

Director of Athletics L. W. St. John is now seeking an expression of opinion from the Western conference representatives at the various universities. The University of Illinois has already sanctioned the extra game. It is understood that the sentiment of the Ohio State athletic officials favors the proposed match, but no definite expression will be possible until permission has been obtained from a majority of the Big Ten representatives for the Buckeyes to play the extra contest.

TRADING FOR FURS AMONG SIBERIANS

WANT AMERICAN GOODS

An Interesting Journey of an Old Fur Trader as Told by Himself.

Probably no other American trader has had such a varied and successful experience in bartering as Meyer Krupp, manager of the Alaska Fur Company, who has just returned from the Siberian coast, where bartering for furs is the custom. For more than twenty-five years Mr. Krupp has been an extensive dealer in furs, and has traversed the interior of Siberia, Russia, Formosa, Egypt, Turkey, Korea, India, South Africa and many other countries during his career as a trader to buy direct from the hands of the makers the articles he sought.

Upon his latest return he brought a big shipment of Siberian furs, concrete evidence of the success of his bartering expedition. For the most part all of his dealings were carried on without the intervention of money. It was a case of measuring the value of a sable fur in the terms of flannel cloth, or a phonograph; an ermine skin in terms of so many pairs of woolen socks or cans of maple syrup.

"To attempt to successfully engage in barter with the natives on the Siberian coast and on the adjacent islands without first gaining a thorough appreciation of the 'atmosphere' peculiar to these districts would be just as barren of results as an attempt to sell derby hats in a Turkish stronghold," says Mr. Krupp, telling of his experiences upon this last journey in Pacific ports.

"Bartering in the year 1920 is by no means an easy undertaking—it calls into play a much greater diversity of real merchandising skill than enters into any transaction in which payment for goods is made in money or its recognized equivalents.

Transact Business Slowly.

"Hunters and trappers on the mainland and on the islands off the coast of Siberia—native Siberians as well as Japanese and Chinese—are quite slow in transacting business, and they usually take plenty of time to consider trades. While many are fond of American bills, particularly the gold certificates, and some will accept the Japanese yens, it is merchandise—articles that either meet their pressing everyday needs or that appeal to their fancies that are essentially wanted. The best furs will be traded for the following articles: Small hornless phonographs, a liberal supply of assorted mixed candy, 30.30 rifles and cartridges, heavy woolen socks, maple syrup, hunting knives, cube sugar in ten-pound boxes, duck tents, colored drill, linen and cotton thread, safety razors, scissors, white enameled plates, cups and saucers, heavy woolen underwear, smoking tobacco and chewing tobacco, candies, nails, leather boots, glass beads of all colors, animal traps, metal lamps, pocket knives, three-cornered needles and plain needles, ginger snaps and cookies, dried slice fruit such as pears, peaches and apples in ten-pound boxes, &c. Tea is also very good, particularly when pressed into brick form.

"The trader entering the thinly settled sections of Siberia on a bartering expedition will succeed much better by refraining from quoting any price on his merchandise. In fact, it is best that he completely forget that his articles ever had an actual price in terms of money because he must follow the primitive method of swapping goods for so much furs. An important point for the visiting trader to remember is to present a useful present to the native after every deal is completed. Custom decrees that this should invariably be done.

"In a village of 200 to 500 inhabitants there are usually several fur gatherers in town, and they are posted on values to some extent. With them trading is carried on, generally speaking, somewhat on the following basis: One 30.30 rifle for one dark cross fox, twenty pounds of cube sugar for one good mink, one phonograph for one dark sable, and so on down the line.

Cheap Things for Cheap Ones.

"The trader should always offer cheap goods for cheap furs and high-priced goods for high-priced furs. For example, phonographs or rifles should never be offered for squirrel or bear skins. The trader coming from the United States should seize every opportunity offered to emphasize that his wares are of American make, as the natives have had considerable adverse experience with merchandise from other countries, and they are eager to trade for American goods and will offer more furs in return.

"Clothing and garments to be bartered off in Siberia should be of large sizes, as the inhabitants of the islands where I spent considerable time are very well developed. Musical instruments and confectionery are items always in demand. No trader should be without a liberal supply of such items of musical merchandise as accordions, mouth organs, phonographs and a large supply of records, particularly of the lively variety. As to the brands or makes, this is immaterial.

"Patience is one of the chief requisites to success in bartering in Siberia, especially because in many instances the trader is dealing with only partly civilized people. With but few exceptions, conversation must be carried on with the trappers in their native tongue, and, as there are such a conflicting array of languages spoken, this phase of the situation is of unusual importance."

"Entering one home, I told the trapper that I had plenty of American goods to swap for furs," said Mr. Krupp. "I handed the Indian's wife and daughter a bundle of flashy bead necklaces to examine, and then started a phonograph going. The members of the native family were very much interested. 'How much moneys music box cost?' the Indian asked in his own way. 'I do not sell phonographs or beads for money, but I may trade them to you for furs,' I replied. I looked his furs over and made several lots.

Articles of Barter.

"I traded a phonograph for one lot, a mackinaw coat for another lot, a ten-pound box of candy for another, and three strings of beads and one calico dress for still another collection. Before departing I presented the Indian with a harmonica and gave gumdrops to the women folks. They were highly delighted with their trade and happy over the additional presents.

"Another trade was with a Japanese hunter. His home was without any furniture whatever, not even a chair. It was very clean, however. The husband, wife and children were all sitting around a small fire pot, glowing with charcoal, in the centre of the room. When I entered a small piece of matting was laid on the floor and I sat down on it in true Japanese fashion, knees under one. The conversation commenced with an invitation for me to guess the ages of the girls—an old Japanese custom.

"I started a phonograph going with a Japanese record, and they were actually dumfounded. I handed the members of the family some gum drops and fudge, which they accepted with avidity. I was asked if the phonograph would play throughout the entire year, or 'just when I wanted it to play.' The women folks greatly admired the many things I showed them. They thought the gum drops, some of which I gave them, were wonderful. My visit finally was concluded by trading one 30.30 rifle, six boxes of cartridges, four boxes of chewing gum, one small phonograph and forty records, six pairs of heavy woolen socks, twelve pairs of woolen stockings, one field glass, twelve fox traps, one small flute, one flashlight, ten yards of fancy cretonne, ten yards of red flannel, one bottle of perfume and 200 yen for a good lot of ermine and white fox skins. The entire trade was consummated in the Japanese language, interspersed with a smattering of pidgin-English.

When in Rome, &c.

"Any trader intending to enter Siberia on a bartering trip should conform himself strictly to the conditions of the country and get to 'roughing it.' He should avoid giving any lessons, imparting knowledge or exhibiting manners, for where ignorance is happiness, it is unbecoming to be wise, and it is sure to be unappreciated. The most important feature is to have something original to barter with. Very small sized trunks, with metal covering; field glasses, large size; small music boxes that play two or three airs, such as come from Switzerland by the thousands; alarm clocks, large and square, that play music; large and medium sized butcher knives that curve at the end; strong linen twine for gill nets; plenty of American silver dollars; are among the best articles with which to barter.

"I would emphatically caution against the use of 'Ponzi' methods on any of the natives as they have a clear and lasting memory. The trader should make a good margin on his stock in trade, but he should give full value for his product. If this is done, the native will hold his furs, ivory, bristles, &c., for the trader when he visits him again.

"To attempt to negotiate a trade immediately upon entering the home of a native is to lose out. The visiting trader should proceed more or less leisurely partaking of tea that is offered, and commenting on the nice cool climate. Another important point involves the matter of economy. Traders should not try to trade too economically, particularly among Japanese settlers. Traders should also leave presents after a trade is consummated for the trapper and each member of his flock, otherwise they are likely to rename him 'Kechimbo San' which in plain English means 'Mr. Tightwad,' in which event the trader's days of profitable bartering are of very short duration.

"No attempts should be made to force a trade, no matter how zealous a trader may be to barter off his merchandise and get back to his home country. The natives must be given ample time to inspect and examine the articles that are offered for their furs, otherwise a proposed deal is certain to fall flat, and the visiting trader will receive an invitation to call by and by, which may be taken to mean a year or two, for no one in that country classified time of any value, not even the fire department."

CALL MORE MEXICAN BONDS.

Speyer & Co. Ask Deposits of 4 Per Cents, Due 1954.

Speyer & Co. are asking holders of United States of Mexico 4 per cent. bonds, due in 1954, to deposit them with all unpaid coupons attached, on or before Dec. 31, so that holders may be protected in any dealings with the Mexican Government regarding payment of back interest. This is the second issue of Mexican bonds that has been handled in this way, the call having gone out several days ago for the deposit of Mexican irrigation 4½ per cent. sinking fund bonds.

The depositary for the 4 per cent. bonds is the Equitable Trust Company. The total amount of the issue is $40,000,000, the bonds having originally been placed by Speyer & Co. in the United States, and by their banking connections in London, Amsterdam, Frankfort and Paris. The bonds were offered here in 1904 and 1905. Interest was defaulted June 1, 1914. Since January, 1914, default has been made in the sinking fund payments provided for the redemption of the bonds.

The total amount of defaulted interest up to Nov. 1, 1920, amounts to over $11,000,000. It is understood that arrangements will also be made for receiving deposit of these bonds in London, Frankfort-on-Main, Berlin, Amsterdam and Paris, where considerable amounts of this issue are held.

CHILD WELFARE IN ENGLAND.

For the protection of maternity and infancy last year the British Ministry of Health made grants totaling more than two and one-half million dollars, according to information received by the Children's Bureau of the United States Department of Labor.

Six years ago the necessity was recognized of providing medical and nursing care for mothers and babies in order to reduce the high death rates. The first year a small appropriation was granted, but the results obtained were so encouraging that the appropriations have been greatly increased each year.

The funds are administered by the Ministry of Health in co-operation with local authorities. The local authorities appropriate a sum equal to the amount granted by the Government. The service available includes instruction in hygiene of maternity and infancy, midwifery and maternity nursing, and hospital and maternity home care.

In commenting upon the results of the work, Dr. Christopher Addison, Minister of Health, says: "The development of the services throughout the country in nursing, midwifery and other facilities and the combination of the whole big effort has been able to reduce the infant mortality rate in twenty years from 151 to 78.

PRICES IN PARIS DROP AS CREDIT TIGHTENS

Decline Affects Sugar, Coffee, Butter and Wine—Meat and Eggs Continue High.

PARIS, Nov. 21.—Newspapers of this city give considerable prominence to the decline in prices of merchandise of first necessity. This decline is especially important on sugar, coffee, butter, wine and dried vegetables, but the price of meat, eggs and cheese still remains very high. Clothes and shoes are beginning to gravitate to lower price levels.

It is asserted that the exorbitant prices recently charged for certain manufactured articles were due to the efforts of holders of important stocks, who, on account of the refusal of banks to extend further credit, cannot resist the declining movement. Newspapers generally express the belief that the crisis will be short, but they admit it will involve slackening activities in certain industries.

STIRRED BY ATTACKS UPON US IN ITALY

BLAMES AMERICA FOR ILLS

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—What are declared to be inspired attacks in the Italian press on the United States, making the accusation that this country has been guilty of reprehensible practices in foreign countries to the alleged detriment of Italy, have attracted semi-official attention in Washington and caused some irritation because the statements made are declared to be absolutely contrary to the facts.

An editorial article in the Popolo Romano, the reputed mouthpiece of an official high in the Italian Government and which has had wide circulation, is objected to in particular because it is believed to reflect the views of this official. This article, published on Oct. 24, asserts that the American production market is hostile to the Italian production market, that certain American interests are exerting great influence on the British mining disorders, that the United States had tried to seize the Argentine and South American markets to the alleged detriment of Italy, and that American representatives are being sent to Lenin to stir him up to activity against Italy.

"Little by little public opinion of the United States and its better representatives must be convinced of the error of not helping Italy out of the difficulties into which she was drawn by the war, by the favorable result of which—due to the Italian participation—the United States, like others, profited largely. * * *

"We all feel it our duty to speak clearly, so that nobody shall be ignorant of the fact that the American market of production is now in absolute opposition to the Italian market of production, not for political reasons (inasmuch as business has no political coloring), but for the purpose of an egotistical defense against any European competition. Even more than Soviet Russia, certain colossal American interests are exerting a great influence on the British mining disorders and on the labor crises harassing Great Britain, a fearsome competitor of the United States.

"Serious Anxieties" Over Italy.

"Now, this little Italy of ours has aroused serious anxieties on the other side of the Atlantic. During the war—after the cessation of the interchange between Europe and South America—the United States seized the Argentine markets and those of the other South American nations. However, as soon as Italy was in a position to resume her exportation—we are citing examples of immediate interest — American goods were refused at Buenos Aires in favor of Italian goods and especially Italian cotton stuffs.

"The representatives of the American business firm were told in the Argentine that their goods were no longer required since the Italian goods had reappeared on the market. Can we, then, be astonished if some Americans, directly or indirectly, are working in Italy to bring about the paralysis of Italian production by means of disorders, strikes, the high cost of living and continual demands for increased pay? * * * Italy was about to supplant other competitors, hence it was necessary to deal her a mortal blow. And this action is not carried out by the men of the Government but simply—and on their own initiative—by the various categories of American business men and by the banks which finance them. For this reason, well known persons who in the United States were forcing inexorable measures against Bolshevist propaganda sent messengers to Lenin; it was necessary for them to sharpen their weapons against England and Italy, excluding France, which cannot be a serious competitor for a number of years. * * *

"The Government commission for industries in the State of New York published that from April to October more than 100,000 workmen were discharged in the State of New York alone. * * * Even several agencies of the United States banks which had sprung up in the Argentine Republic during the war for the purpose of financing commerce between North and South America have closed their doors at Buenos Aires. Many American firms have returned to New York. * * *

"Such is the situation, without dissimulation. When it is added that for certain worked metals and for some special Italian products, such as automobiles, Italy is able to export even to the United States at better conditions than these of the local producers, one can easily understand the pitiless war being waged against Italian economy and the Bolshevist campaign which is being carried on amongst us to destroy national industry. This explains also why attempts are being made to cut off our supply of coal and other raw material.

"Private and plutocratic egotisms rule collectively and conspire against our country. Hence the necessity to strengthen the internal bulwarks and not to weaken ourselves abroad by yielding; with the strength and the authority which are the reward of a country united by a firm and dignified foreign policy, we must take measures for the conquest of the raw materials in the territories of which we can still dispose, if we are able to secure them."

All the Charges Denied.

Officials and others in positions of responsibility here challenge the accuracy of these allegations. An expert authority with full knowledge of the foreign trade policy and practices of the United States Government, commenting today on the article in The Popolo Romano, said:

"This is, perhaps, the first intimation from any source that American interests were behind the British coal strike. As the British strike necessitated additional bunkering of American ships in the United States, it is difficult to see how it has benefited American interests. The statement that Americans are attempting to cut off the Italian coal supply is far-fetched. American coal is available for Italian purchasers whenever they desire to buy. The high prices of coal for delivery at Italian ports, a price set by competitive conditions and not by anti-Italian manipulations of the market, have been the chief factor in decreasing Italian purchases in the United States recently.

"In the statement that the United States seized the South American markets, the fact is ignored that before the war the United States was the greatest exporter to South America. If the United States has lost some of its wartime trade in the Argentine because of the reentry of Italy into that market, it does not follow that the loss has caused great American banking interests to foment revolution in Italy.

"The editorial mentions cotton goods specifically. An examination of the recent trade statistics published by the Department of Commerce will show that the decrease in the American export trade in these goods to the Argentine is very slight. It is hardly to be believed that the diversion of a few millions in the cotton goods trade would influence American financiers to foment trouble in Italy, which owes the round sum of a billion and a half dollars to the United States in war debt alone.

"The statement that Italy was about to supplant other competitors in the Argentine is untrue. Italy is not in a position to fill the goods requirements of the Argentine, and it is doubtful is she ever will be.

"The statement about American representatives being sent to Lenin is new. As the Moscow wireless is very active in announcing the arrival of foreign missions of whatever nature, it seems unlikely that an American mission has been there recently. W. D. Vanderlip, of recent prominence, was never accused of having been an emissary of American capital to stir up Lenin to activity in Italy.

"The statements concerning the straits of American industries, and the great amount of unemployment, do not seem to be born out by facts. While it is true that 100,000 less workmen were employed in New York in October than in April of this year, it is not true that there are 100,000 walking the streets in New York State seeking work which they cannot find.

"The statements about the American banks in the Argentine are incorrect. There are three such banks, and a trust company. They are, according to the latest reports, doing business, and have indicated no intention of closing their doors. The method of retaliation quoted in the editorial, namely, breaking Argentine exchange, seems to be a most unenlightened course for the American banks to pursue and one which no banker would think of. The logical result of a break in exchange is the refusal of the foreigner to honor American drafts—a result which followed the allegedly diabolical attempt to ruin Italian commerce in the Argentine. It is difficult to believe that American banks deliberately set out to destroy their draft business out of spite. Indeed, as is admitted in the editorial, by destroying American commerce in the Argentine, they made the way easy for European commerce owing to the low rate of exchange. Thus Americans are accused of ruining Italian trade on the one hand, and their own on the other—surely a very clumsy piece of work.

"Italian automobiles have never been serious competitors with American automobiles in the American market. About 275 foreign cars were imported during August, 1920, certainly not enough to cause a panic among American manufacturers.

"The supply of American coal for Italy is always available for Italy. This coal has been going forward in large quantities throughout the war and since the armistice. There are no restrictions upon its exportation. The only factor is the price; though this is high, it is no higher to the Italian than to any other purchaser abroad.

"The whole editorial is based upon a distorted idea of international economics, trade policy and banking. The great obstacle to American foreign trade today is the low value of foreign money in comparison with the American dollar and the poverty of foreign nations following the war. Every great American interest is eager to see conditions abroad stabilized, and to see European peoples resume capacity production, as this is the only means whereby Europe may go on buying from the United States. Almost all American financial institutions have a great stake in Europe, and it is ridiculous to believe that hard-headed American bankers are interested in anything but the speedy return of Europe to normal, so that European debts may be made more secure."

VERMONT FRESHMAN KILLED IN BOXING BOUT

BURLINGTON, Vt., Nov. 21—Donald R. Hendrick of Franklin, a 23-year-old freshman at the University of Vermont, died in a hospital early today from the effects of an injury sustained when he was knocked out in a boxing match at the university gymnasium last night.

The bout was part of one of the annual freshman-sophomore activities and Hendrick was pitted against Thomas Purcell, a sophomore, and member of the varsity football team. A minute after the match started Hendrick was knocked out with a swing to the jaw. When he fell his head hit the floor beyond the mat.

Special to The New York Times.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 21.—The Fifteenth Field Artillery, now stationed at Camp Travis, Texas, has as a regimental mascot an army mule, bearing the name of Mlle. Verdun, foaled on the battlefield in France. The men of the regiment consider her the "most aristocratic equine" in the army. No recruit is considered fullfledged unless he has been permitted to groom and otherwise "doll up" the mascot and thus be introduced to "Mlle. Verdun, gold-striper, from France."

She was foaled April 16, 1918, on the slopes of Verdun, just four hours after her dam had finished hauling shells for Battery E, of which she was a wheel mare. Mlle. Verdun came into the world at 3 o'clock in the morning, when the artillery fire was at its height. Instead of dying of fright she thrived, and a few days later the battery marched ten miles, the new-born mascot going along under her own power. Before she was a month old she hiked another thirty miles in two days and was in the thick of every subsequent major offensive in which the Second Division took part. Then, for good measure, she traveled 100 miles to the Rhine, keeping watch with the rest of the Army of Occupation.

Then the question arose as to how she was going to be brought back to the United States as the regimental mascot because of an ironclad rule which had been issued against bringing animals home. The men of Battery E decided that they had not fought in France for nothing, with the result that Mlle. Verdun, mysteriously missing for some days, reappeared at Quarantine on this side of the Atlantic, too late to be sent back to France. A ruthless veterinary officer thrust her into quarantine, but she was released in due time and taken to Camp Travis.

DROWNS IN OIL ABOARD SHIP

Severin Hansen, a mechanic on the Standard Oil tanker De Soto, moored at Pier 5, Constable Hook, was drowned in oil early yesterday morning, when 120,000 gallons of the crude product rushed into the pump room of the tanker.

The De Soto, one of the Standard's newest and largest vessels, arrived Saturday at the oil docks in Bayonne with a capacity cargo of oil from Mexico. In preparation for unloading the oil tomorrow Hansen, the police said, went into the pump room to repair one of the feed pipes. In some manner a plate on one of the big pipes was loosened and the oil under its own pressure spurted out in a great stream.

Whether Hansen was overcome by the oil vapors before he could get to the hatchway, or whether the flood of oil had been too sudden and big for him to get away, the crew of the tanker were unable to say last night. Special pumps were working at capacity trying to get the several thousand barrels of oil out of the tank room by this morning. Hansen's home was in Copenhagen, Denmark.

FAR EAST SUPPLIED OUR SUGAR NEEDS

TRADE CONDITION OUTLINED

President Rionda of Cuba Cane Sugar Corporation Expects Europe to Take Surplus.

The sugar requirements of this country for the remainder of this year and well into the first quarter of the next were more than provided for by the importation of between 350,000 and 400,000 tons from Far Eastern countries, according to Manuel Rionda, President of the Cuba Cane Sugar Corporation, in a review of the situation just made to his stockholders. Because of the present low market, he said that it was not unreasonable to expect a European demand sufficiently large to absorb between now and next January in the form of "Cuban raws and American refined a good portion of the 350,000 to 400,000 tons that were unnecessarily imported from the Far East."

Mr. Rionda gave the following table showing the world's cane and beet production two years previous to the World War and the estimate for the present crop:

	1912-1913. (Tons.)	1913-1914. (Tons.)	1919-1920. (Tons.)
Cane	9,232,543	9,821,413	11,808,673
Total	18,208,814	18,697,331	15,154,179

"The European beet crop in 1920-21 is likely to be about 1,000,000 tons more than the present one," Mr. Rionda said. "During pre-war times the world's consumption of sugar was between 18,000,000 and 19,000,000 tons a year. It was undoubtedly diminished this year by the high prices prevailing at intervals, but sugar is an article of universal need, and its consumption will greatly increase at the present prices.

"Not having previously provided for their requirements, pending legislation by Congress, American refiners in the Fall of 1919 found it necessary to meet the demands of the Cuban sellers in order to obtain prompt deliveries for the month of December. Upon the subsequent announcement that no direct control would be exercised by the Government upon the sugar market of this country prices advanced still further during January. Stimulated by foreign demand and by the lack of shipments caused by strikes in Cuba, quotations quickly reached 12 cents, cost and freight, for sugars afloat in January."

Prices declined upon the settlement of the Cuban strikes to the low level of 9 cents in February, but American refineries were not able to buy much because of the large quantities previously purchased by other countries. In March the price climbed back to 12 cents, when it was realized that the Cuban crop would be greatly curtailed, advancing to 18 cents in April and 23½ cents in May.

"Encouraged," continued Mr. Rionda, "by the expected shortage in the Cuban crop and by the apparent scarcity of sugar in the United States during May, Cuban and Porto Rican planters retired from the market with the conviction that prices would go much higher. Being unable to induce the Cubans and Porto Ricans to tender a sufficient quantity of sugar for this country at the prevailing prices, the principal American refiners turned to the Far Eastern markets for sugar with which to avert a serious scarcity of the article in the United States. It did not take long for American refiners and other interests to secure 350,000 to 400,000 tons from these Far Eastern countries for arrival here during the late Summer and early Autumn at prices below those prevailing for Cuban and Porto Rican sugars.

"Simultaneously with the above purchases made by American refiners from the Far East, they sold American granulated to the trade for delivery to suit the arrival of those raws, at correspondingly high prices.

"With sugar pouring into the United States from other countries, under the effect of high prices here, the future needs of the country were more than provided for. The Cuban and Porto Rican planters, disappointed in their expectations of higher prices, in June and July tried to force their holdings upon a market already satisfied by the purchase of Java sugars. Each successive offering during those months marked a violent and rapid decline.

"The situation became more complicated in August due to the difficulties encountered by the American refiners in having the buyers of their refined live up to the contracts made at higher levels, when refiners were buying the Far Eastern sugars as stated above. These complications necessitated the granting by the refiners to the buyers of more time in which to receive and pay for the sugars purchased. The developments regarding deliveries in the refined trade could not but be reflected in the raw sugar market, as they caused the absence of the principal refiners from the market. This resulted in the small offerings from Cuba and Porto Rico not finding ready buyers during September and October and the decline continued until Cubas sold as low as 7 cents, cost and freight, only ½ cent higher than the lowest price at which sugars started selling last Fall."

CONVICT WINS FREEDOM.

Special to The New York Times.

OSSINING, Nov. 21.—Supreme Court Justice Arthur S. Tompkins of Nyack has just rendered a decision which will be filed tomorrow, holding that Louis Volesky, a Sing Sing prisoner, can legally serve two sentences at a time, and ordering his release from confinement.

Volesky was sentenced by Judge Roy of Brooklyn to two and one-half years' minimum sentence for attempted grand larceny. Later he got two years from a General Sessions Judge in Manhattan, to run concurrently. Volesky, having served the longer sentence of the two, asked to be released, but, on orders from Attorney General Newton, Warden Lewis E. Lawes detained him in Sing Sing. Justice Tompkins's decision was the result of action taken by the Volunteer Defenders' Committee.

WOUNDED HUNTER LOSES RACE FOR MEDICAL AID

Mortally wounded by the accidental discharge of his own hunting gun on Muncie Island yesterday, James B. Lowerre, 16, of Babylon, L. I., a freshman at St. Paul School, Garden City, made a brave effort to encourage his companions in a motorboat race more than three miles across Great South Bay in search of medical aid. He died before they reached the mainland.

Lowerre, with his brother-in-law, E. B. Ketcham, the latter's brother, Raymond, and Charles Hines of Richmond Hill reached the island Sunday morning for duck hunting and camped there until dawn to be ready for entering a "blind" to begin their sport. Lowerre was the first to hit a bird, which dropped some distance from the place the hunters had concealed themselves. Ignoring protests of his companions, Lowerre dashed out, one hand on the muzzle of his double-barrel weapon, dragging it by his side, which contained one cartridge. How this was discharged is not known, but he was seen to fall with its explosion.

When the others got to him it was found that the shot had pierced his right lung. Lowerre was unable to speak, but he pointed to his injury, smiled and motioned toward the boat. He was the son of Mrs. May Lowerre of Thompson Avenue, Babylon, widow of James B. Lowerre, a retired Brooklyn merchant.

PUT NEW TAX ON SMOKERS.

Julius H. Barnes, former head of the United States Grain Corporation, brought back to New York from a recent Western trip news of the latest invention in taxes.

"There is a rule against smoking on the floor of the Duluth Board of Trade," Mr. Barnes said. "The other day, Mr. Stockman, the President, sold a one-day privilege to break the rule, charging a dollar a member. The money was sent to the American Relief Administration European Children's Fund for the Prevention of Child Starvation in Eastern and Central Europe this winter."

At the American Relief Administration headquarters, 42 Broadway, it was said yesterday that the taxation netted $50 and that the check had been received.

PASSING EVENTS CITE 1921 BUILDING TREND

BRICK MAY GO UP

Course of Construction in Next Twelve Months May Be Traced Even Now.

As building materials settle down to price minimum are apparent course of construction for 1921 becomes clearer.

Present unfavorable factors appear to be unsatisfactory leasing laws, fear of inequality of values of structures finished next year as against those erected and finished five or ten years hence, burdensome tax laws, continuation of "frozen" credits, coal shortage, lack of free lighterage in the harbor and fear of labor union complications.

Favorable factors include a known excessive demand for building construction of all kinds, good crops insuring continued tendency toward lower living costs, building material price stability after Spring of next year, immigration, increasing efficiency of labor, continued improvement in railroad freight transportation, probable exemption from taxation of housing enterprises starting within the immediate future, freer building conditions and a building material and equipment supply already so close to demand as to dictate immediate purchase in order to insure against delayed delivery.

Elements of doubt still extant include the fate of the present excess profits tax law, effect of Winter upon manufacture and transportation, character of legislation that is to be enacted arising from the present building investigations, attitude of lending institutions with reference to speculative building enterprises in the immediate future and revision of the building code.

Under normal conditions and times there are no forewarning signs of the turn-about of conditions in the building construction industry sufficiently clear to permit of general preparation, but the building market has sunk to such deep depths of inactivity and the demand for construction has arisen to such majestic heights that the mere arresting of the plunge downward on the one hand and the achievement of such record-breaking peaks of prospective construction on the other combine to impress even the casual observer with the consciousness that the long expected era of building activity must be just over the threshold of the new year.

At any rate, says the current Dow Service Daily Building Reports, building material manufacturers are preparing for such an eventuality, although with little success so far in the way of getting ahead on reserve stocks. Even window glass, which has been in a ragged and almost hopelessly weak price market, is now actually strengthening, although plate glass has not yet shown the determined rebound that window glass has evidenced.

Some lumber items are sagging in price, especially on the cheaper items, as dealers vie with each other for current spot business offered, but the fundamental lumber price, or mill base minimums remain just as rigid as they were when first announced. Common brick is edging for a price above $18 wholesale. Steel price maximums are still crumbling and some of the independents have actually accepted orders at the stabilized corporation level. Linseed oil is weak even at the new low price level.

Cement manufacturers are experiencing one of the most remarkable Autumns ever known. Shipments in September and October were minus 8 per cent. and minus 8 per cent., respectively, whereas the shipments in the first fifteen days of November are reported as plus 21 per cent., indicating that there is, first, a greater amount of cement passing into distributers' or consumers' hands, mostly for building purposes, because there is little road work now in progress, and, second, that the confidence as to the immediate future of building is supported by hard-headed buyers.

Cement stock on hand at the end of October in Zone 2, one of the districts supplying the New York market, was approximately minus 60 per cent. of what it was at the end of October, 1919, whereas the stock on hand for the same ten months represented a gain this year of approximately plus 13 per cent., which was, however, offset by shipments of plus 38 per cent.

Half-month statistics covering November, as presented in the foregoing paragraph, clearly indicate that there can be no supported pessimism regarding the immediate future of building in this territory. When it is recalled that wherever cement is used steel, clay products, all the concrete ingredients and lumber in large quantity also have been purchased for the same job, it becomes evident that the favorable factors are heavily outweighing the unfavorable ones or the doubtful minority, with respect to contracting policies as 1920 draws to a close.

STATE BEGINS WAR ON RUM SELLERS

First Arrest Made Under Walker Law Elates Federal Authorities.

BIG STEP TOWARD DRY ERA

Supervising Agent Boyd Says Local Enforcement Would Relieve United States Courts.

About the time Saturday afternoon that Acting Police Commissioner Leach was giving out a statement at Police Headquarters that the police would begin immediately the enforcement of the State prohibition law, known as the Walker act, following an opinion from Corporation Counsel O'Brien, the first arrest for the violation of this law was made, it became known yesterday. Antonio Baumatti, 36 years old, a porter, of 233 East Thirty-seventh Street, was arraigned before Magistrate Francis X. McQuade in Yorkville Court. Baumatti pleaded not guilty to selling liquor in violation of the State law and was released under $500 bail for examination on Wednesday.

"I am glad to see the activity of the police," was the comment made last night by Frank L. Boyd, Federal Supervising Prohibition Agent, when he learned of the first arrest here under the State law. He again emphasized that the enforcement by the police of the State liquor tax law would mean a big step toward making New York dry. Mr. Boyd also remarked that the Federal Courts throughout the country were congested with prohibition cases. Especially is this true in New York. The cases brought by the police will be in the State Courts, so that the activities of the police will not increase the congestion in the Federal Courts, Mr. Boyd said.

When Baumatti was arraigned Magistrate McQuade remarked that "this is another test case." Baumatti was arrested Saturday, by Detectives Henry Hanson and John Gorman of Inspector William A. Coleman's staff, on a warrant issued by Chief Magistrate William McAdoo. The detectives furnished affidavits that on Thursday they visited the saloon of P. J. Keegan, 358 Third Avenue, and bought and paid for "a whisky and a beer." They did not make an arrest at the time, but waited until they could present the facts to the Chief Magistrate and obtain a warrant.

The detectives told Magistrate McQuade that Chief Magistrate McAdoo had remarked that if a conviction was had under the State law "the case would prove the entering wedge for State and municipal authorities to assist Federal officers in the prosecution of violators of the Volstead act."

It was said that if Baumatti is not held in the Magistrate's Court under the alleged liquor tax violation the detectives proposed lodging a charge of violating the Volstead act against him in the Federal Court.

Federal Supervising Agent Boyd said last night that he expected to know today who would succeed him here as Supervising Prohibition Agent. Mr. Boyd expects to return within a few days to Washington, where he will again have charge of the field agents in the Internal Revenue Department, with a staff of 2,700 men in different parts of the country. Knox Phagan, Internal Revenue Agent for Tennessee and Alabama, who came here with Mr. Boyd as his assistant, expects to return to his former duties when Mr. Boyd leaves. Mr. Phagan, who is now in Washington, is expected to bring to the city today the name of Mr. Boyd's successor. It is said that he will be a man from Washington who is not at present connected with prohibition enforcement.

According to the Yonkers police, Nicholas Donora of 314 Warren Street, Brooklyn, who was arrested in an automobile with three others in Yonkers yesterday as a suspicious person, made an affidavit in which he stated that his party had just taken forty gallons of alcohol to Troy, N. Y., without a permit and had taken John Geary, a Deputy United States Revenue Collector of Brooklyn, along for company. Geary was in the automobile when Policeman Whalen stopped the car. Louis Maua, 22 years old, of 162 Carroll Street, Brooklyn, was arrested on a charge of reckless driving, and Donora and Salvatora Canara on charges of suspicion.

Geary was allowed to go without any charge being made against him after he had presented his card to Police Captain Hugh Brady. The Yonkers police say that when they asked Geary how the men came to deliver the alcohol without a permit while he was with them, he replied: "I am on sick leave; I am not connected with that branch of the revenue office."

PHILADELPHIA, Nov. 21.—Bishop Herbert Bury of England, Episcopal head of the Agrican Churches in North and Central Europe, in an address today at the closing service of the 225th anniversary of Christ Church, urged the people of the United States to unite in a strong bond of friendship with England "for the purpose of Christianizing and civilizing the world." The Bishop spoke of the great men, notably George Washington, who had worshipped in the historic edifice and referred to the ancient church which brought the faith from England.

"There should be a close bond between the great nations," he said, "not for self-protection, but for civilization, humanity and for good generally. To further our union, let us deepen our religious and church life. This would be a wonderful tie. With two great nations coming into close touch, we may bring about an understanding in industrial, social and economic conditions, for all these things come with fellowship."

Speaking of the League of Nations, Bishop Bury said it was inconceivable to him that the United States would keep out of "what was intended to promote the world's interests at this time. Forty nations have gotten together for this purpose, and we cannot imagine that one of the greatest nations of the world can refuse to join us."
